Members questioned whether the application could proceed before the zoning changes are in place and, also, questioned the ownership of the parcels.

"We couldn't vote on this," said Raymondi, noting that the parcels are not zoned for PUD development at this time.

"It's prudent not to have the clock start ticking," Timmins said, agreeing with councillors that following every detail of the process is essential.

In order to review the PUD application for Lowe's, the City Council can only meet in their role as Special Permit Granting Authority (SPGA).

"I disagree that judgement can be made that it's a defective filing at this point," Fleming said prior to withdrawing the application.

After the meeting, Davis said that Lowe's will lease the property from the Brewster Family Trust.

Davis, also, outlined the benefits of the Lowe's project, citing the potential commercial tax boon for the city as well as future construction jobs and company jobs for local residents.

"I have had more than five neighborhood meetings," said Davis, acknowledging that some residents are unhappy with the warehouse plan.

However, he added, "The area's an eyesore. The neighbors know something is going to be built there." Davis believes the Lowe's project is better for the neighborhood than a high-rise apartment building or an industrial project.

Davis outlined a number of concessions that Lowe's has made in efforts to work with the neighborhood. He said that Lowe's changed the direction of their building, increased the buffer zones, and moved their parking area.

Lowe's also agreed to replace Grasso Park with a better park, build a bigger monument, and provide a scholarship for a Quincy High School student, according to Davis.

Davis also said that, once the project is complete, residents will be able to see Town Brook which is now blocked from view.

The rezoning petitions ask that five parcels on Penn Street and three parcels on Columbia Street be rezoned from Industrial A to PUD. Also, certain Open Space on Columbia Street would be rezoned to PUD.

The new parkland will include five parcels on Columbia Street as well as a portion of 0 Plain and 0 Mitchell Street, all of which would be rezoned from PUD to Open Space.

Lint Buildup Can Fuel Dryer Fire

Q. I read another columnist recently who warned about keeping dryer vents clean and free of lint, in order to prevent a house fire. Since then, I've cleaned the lint trap after every load, and had my son clean behind the dryer (as he's strong enough to move the appliance). Is there any other area we should clean to make sure all excess dryer lint is gone? — Gladys K., Trenton, N.J.

A. You've done a great job in keeping the area around the dryer free of extra lint. Built-up lint can catch fire easily if it contacts a heat source, such as overheated dryer parts or a stray spark.

Another area that needs to be cleaned is the exhaust vent and duct, all the way to the outside of the house, if possible. Unplug the dryer before cleaning, detach the duct from the back of the dryer, and vacuum the vent and inside the duct using the vacuum hose attachment.

Gardus Inc., which sells a dryer duct-cleaning appliance called the LintEater System, recommends cleaning the vent and duct four times a year. The company also suggests checking the exterior vent for squirrel or bird nests, and making sure the exterior flap is open when the dryer is on, and closes when the dryer is off.

Other tips:

- Install a smoke alarm near the dryer — test it monthly and replace the battery each year.

- Don't put rubber-backed bath mats, foam-padded bras or cloth soaked in oil, gas or other flammable chemicals into the dryer.

- Don't run the dryer when asleep or not at home.

Energy Saving Tips For The Bathroom

(NAPS) — Making a few small changes in your bathroom may result in big energy savings. For example, about 75 percent of the water used in the bathroom, according to the Energy Information Administration. Knowing that one room in your house can utilize so much of a valuable resource, you can take small steps to live more eco-friendly and even save money on your utility bills.

Challenge: If your bath happens to be on the second floor of a two-story house, it probably takes some time for the hot water to make its way up the two floors and finally into the sink's faucet.

Solution: Make use of the cold rush of water. Try brushing your teeth before you wash your face or collect the water in a pitcher to then water your plants. Not only will you save money, but it allows you to multitask, saving time, too.

Challenge: An average toilet uses about five to seven gallons of water with every flush, but if you have a leaky toilet, you probably waste more than 10,000 gallons of water a year.

Solution: Install an eco-friendly toilet, such as the new Cottage Elongated High-Efficiency Toilet (HET) from Pegasus. It is elegant but also affordable, and some states offer up to a full rebate for purchasing an EPA WaterSense-certified product. Its design allows for retrofitting with no double flushing, which can save homeowners over 4,000 gallons of water per year.

Challenge: Does your faucet continue to drip?

Solution: A faucet that leaks enough water to fill a soda bottle every 30 minutes will waste 2,192 gallons of water a year, so be sure to either fix your old one or replace that leaky faucet with a new two-handle model, such as the sleek Pegasus Series 2000.

Challenge: Every minute you spend under a standard showerhead, you use as much as four to six gallons of water.

Solution: Simple-take shorter showers and smaller baths.

Challenge: The lights always seem to stay on when the bathroom is unoccupied.

Solution: Install motion-sensored lights so when the device does not track movement after just a couple of minutes, the lights will turn off and save you energy.

Visit www.pegasus.com for more information.

Home Inspections Ensure You Know the House Inside and Out

(NAPS) — The last thing a homebuyer wants to do is to discover any issues in the home after moving in, and the last thing a home seller wants is for an issue to appear before the sale. That's why it's so important for both buyers and sellers to have a home inspection. Simply put, the seller doesn't want a surprise he or she didn't even know about to come out that will stop the sale, and the buyer wants to make sure there are no costly repairs waiting.

Home inspections provide many positives and build a foundation of knowledge about a home and its systems that are stated in the Home Inspection Report—which contains a maintenance checklist.

"Homebuyers don't want to get a cold reception because of improperly sealed windows or a wet one because of a leaky roof," says Dan Steward, president of Pillar to Post, North America's leading provider of home inspection services. "Home inspectors check for these things. They also check furnaces, air-conditioning ducts, soot and creosote building in the chimney, crawl spaces and other hard-to-reach spaces," Steward adds.

Four Common Items To Repair

1. If you discover the seals around sink fixtures and counter penetrations are disintegrating, that means water may be passing through and causing damage to the countertop or the underlying cabinetry. You may want to examine the seals visually, and test to see if the sink or fixtures feel loose. Repair or replace as needed.

2. Clogged filters and improper duct connections may become major fire hazards. You should check air filters for built-up grease and clean or replace as needed. Have a professional check the connections to determine if the model requires exterior exhaust.

3. Insufficient insulation in the attic can allow excessive heat loss (or gain, depending on the season) and drafts. If you suspect a problem, consult a professional to determine if additional insulation is needed and/or advisable.

4. Improperly sealed windows can allow moisture, wind and insects into the home. The caulking around the windows should be checked and repaired or replaced as needed.

Dollars and sense

by David Uffington

Scrimp and Save

If you made New Year's resolutions to save money wherever you could, how are you doing? Are you meeting your goals? For many of us, the initial rush of determination has worn off, and we're back to our normal spending patterns — which means we're not saving much at all.

It's never too late to try again. It's said that if you can do something for 21 days, it will be come a habit. Here are some relatively painless ways you can save a few dollars.

Food: Are you still eating out twice a week, or back to grabbing an expensive cup of coffee on the way to work? When you cook at home, fix double the amount and freeze half. Take lunch to work a few days a week.

Money: Empty your pockets and purse of all coins every night and put them in a jar. Don't carry your credit cards. Don't pay full price for anything. Look for bargains. (This keeps you from making fast purchases, as well as saving money.)

Maintenance: Is the bathroom faucet still dripping? Spend a few minutes and a few cents, and the savings will add up. Get in the habit of tending to money-draining repairs immediately.

Insurance: Can you logically raise your deductible and reduce the monthly insurance payment?

Telephone: Many people have realized that they're paying for two phones — a landline at home and a portable cell phone — and have dropped the home phone altogether. This could be a savings of hundred of dollars per year. If you absolutely need the landline, consider dropping options such as call waiting or call forwarding.

Coupons: Are you clipping grocery coupons and actually using them? Coupons aren't just for food and entertainment. Check your local phone book. Quite often there's a whole section of coupons from local merchants for oil changes, carpet cleaning, video rentals and more.

Cable TV: Compare the cost of the premium movie channels and one of the by-mail video rentals. Some of the rental plans will let you have up to four movies at a time for less than $20 per month.

Try to develop frugal attitudes about your money. Remember: It takes 21 days for a good habit to be formed, but you have to do it every day.

David Uffington regrets that he cannot personally answer reader questions, but will incorporate them into his column whenever possible. Write to him in care of King Features Weekly Service, P.O. Box 536475, Orlando, FL 32853-6475, or send e-mail to columnreply@gmail.com.

Hints For Homeowners

Extra Warmth: When, Where You Need It

(NAPS) — According to the U.S. Energy Information Administration, the average temperature this winter is expected to be four degrees colder than last year, and home-heating costs are predicted to increase as much as 10 percent for natural gas and 22 percent for oil compared to last winter.

Fortunately, rising prices and decreasing temperatures don't have to leave cost-conscious consumers out in the cold. Here are a few tips to help save energy and money:

- Get your furnace inspected to be sure it is working at maximum efficiency.

- Use weather stripping around doors to prevent cold air from entering. Caulk windows and replace cracked glass.

- Make sure you have adequate attic insulation.

- If your home has a basement consider covering windows with plastic shields.

- According to the Edison Electric Institute, if you turn down the thermostat by 15 degrees for eight hours each night, you can save up to 10 percent a year on your heating bill. Sunbeam Bedding has a variety of heated blankets and mattress pads that include the latest in warming technologies.

- While central heating systems warm the whole home, most people tend to spend the majority of time in only a few rooms. Use space heaters to target warmth in the rooms most frequented. Space heaters can also provide heat quickly and efficiently during a cold snap in a milder climate, or to delay the need to heat the whole home.

When selecting a space heater, energy efficiency is key. For example, Holmes heaters quickly warm a room and will help stretch a person's heating dollar. Holmes heaters with Eco-Smart technology provide even more energy efficiency by cycling between wattage while supplying continuous warmth. This innovation allows heaters to use 25 percent less energy than other space heaters.

One such Eco-Smart model is the Holmes Energy Efficient Heater, a compact and portable space heater designed to move easily from room to room. This heater also includes a 4-hour timer to ensure the heater is off when no longer in use and is good for taking the chill out of small or midsize rooms.

For the eco-conscious consumer, the Water Filled Radiator Heater is also an excellent choice. The heater saves energy by cycling between wattage, and also uses a water-based solution that's anti-corrosive and noncombustible.

Visit www.HolmesProducts.com for more information.

Jewish War Veterans Honor Five Students For Leadership, Brotherhood

By MIRIAM JOSEPH

Five high school students were recognized for their leadership and brotherhood to the community at the Quincy Jewish War Veterans' 54th Annual "Classmates Today, Neighbors Tomorrow" Breakfast.

More than 50 state and city officials, parents, educators and supporters joined the JWV at Morrisette Legion Post, Liberty Street, to honor the five high school seniors for their contributions to world brotherhood.

Mayor Thomas Koch, State Rep. Steve Tobin, and James Meigley of the Norfolk County District Attorney's Office, were there to personally present award citations from their individual offices to the deserving students.

Top honors were accepted by Quincy High senior Matthew Meyers, Weymouth High student Joseph Steinkrauss, Hingham High senior Michael Jones, and Emma Holmes of Hull High.

QUINCY HIGH SCHOOL senior Matthew Meyers, one of the recipients of the "Brotherhood in Action" awards presented by the Quincy Jewish War Veterans, with his parents, Heidi and Chris Meyers. Matt's father was himself a recipient of this same award 37 years ago.

North Quincy High recipient Lisa Setow could not attend as she was participating in the 50th Annual North Quincy High School Science Fair.

Citations were also presented by the Massachusetts State Senate, along with personal letters of recognition from Senator John Kerry and Congressman William Delahunt.

Harvey Weiner, past Commander of the Massachusetts Command of the Jewish War Veterans said, "The brotherhood program, which gives scholarships to students who have performed exemplary community service, has been around for 54 years, and is run by our Mass. Dept. of JWV. It is the only such program in the U.S."

of Quincy High School attended the ceremony. School Supt. Richard DeCristofaro's mother Betty DeCristofaro attended as representative of the superintendent who was ill.

Among the city officials attending the breakfast and award ceremony was former Mayor James Sheets who was acknowledged as a mentor by Mayor Koch, himself a recipient of the Brotherhood Award in 1981.

Koch said, "I congratulate the Jewish War Veterans for their outstanding program, and for honoring these five young people, who are the future of our city and our nation."

Just a few of the many leadership roles taken by these students were: raising money to build homes in Ecuador, working for Habitat for Humanity, raising money to aid students who aspire to attend college in Zimbabwe, and organizing groups to visit Washington to protest atrocities in Sudan and Darfour.

Recipient Matthew Meyers was introduced by his father, himself a Brotherhood award-winner 37 years ago. In accepting his award and citations, Matt said, "I thank my family, especially my parents, for raising me to care about the community, as well as my guidance counselors and everybody at school who helped me get here."

Program Chairman Harvey Solomon praised the 82 Massachusetts students who were recognized by their high schools for achievements in leadership and brotherhood. Of these winners, the top awards were then determined by a selection committee.

Post Commander Bertrand Shaffer of the Jewish War Veterans, who has headed this program since its inception 54 years ago, noted that the JWV is the oldest veterans' organization in the U.S.

A Job Well Done

On Monday, Feb. 25, at approximately 9:34 p.m., Officer Jim Whedbee was dispatched to The Dollar Tree Store at 215 Quincy Ave. regarding an unarmed robbery that had just occurred. Captain Allen Gillan arrived on scene first and a description of the two suspects were given over the radio as two males, both dressed in black jackets, black pants with masks. They were last seen fleeing north on Quincy Avenue towards O'Lindy's Bowling Alley and took a right onto one of the side streets.

Officer Whedbee, along with other Officers searched the immediate area and then expanded the search perimeter.

Officer Whedbee returned to the crime scene of the parking lot in front of the Dollar Tree Store and interviewed the victims. Officer Whedbee interviewed the female manager of the store along with her husband, who was waiting in the parking lot to drive her home. The manager said that she had just closed the store and was going to her car where her husband was waiting for her when two men came running from the side of the building, dressed in black jackets and black pants and black ski masks covering their faces.

One male grabbed her in a headlock from behind and tried to grab her bag but she did not let go. The victim's husband saw what was happening and immediately jumped out of the car to help her. The husband saw one of the suspects reach for his waist area like he was carrying a gun, but then both suspects fled. Both victims gave the same descriptions of the suspects, except that one of the suspects was wearing a black hooded "Carhardt" brand jacket.

The husband said he thought one of the suspects was black because he could see through the holes in the mask. Although both victims were shaken up, there were no physical injuries. The area where the suspects fled was kept clear so that Canine Officer Scott Smith, and his K-9 dog, Bark, were able to track the trail across Quincy Avenue and down Richard Street.

Officer Smith reported that the tracking was headed toward the rear of the Martensen Street area, so Officer Whedbee drove to 95 Martensen Street, the senior housing complex, and began looking behind cars, in bushes, and then in the rear of the building. A young couple waved Officer Whedbee down and said that two black males ran inside 95 Martensen Street and were on the first floor lobby area acting suspiciously.

They said that the suspects were asking for cigarettes and asking directions to Union Street. They added that one of the males was hiding his face with his hand, "like he didn't want us to see his face."

Officer Whedbee radioed dispatch this information and proceeded to the front entrance of the building, where he saw two black males exiting the front door. One was dressed in black pants and a large black sweatshirt, the other was dressed in black pants and had only a blue t-shirt on, which was suspicious since it was approximately 30-35 degrees outside.

Officer Whedbee immediately stopped them as other units arrived. He received identification of the suspects, then patfrisked them for weapons and asked them what they were doing in the building. No weapons were found on either suspect. When asked what they were doing in the building, one of the suspects said that he was visiting his aunt, but he could not remember her name or the apartment number.

During the questioning, Officer William O'Neill checked the first floor and radioed that he found a black Carhardt hooded jacket in the trashcan in the men's restroom floor. This door is accessible from the lobby area, located approximately 30 feet from where witnesses saw the suspects. While examining the jacket, thorns were found in the pocket. And this was significant because K-9 Officer Smith reported thorns as he tracked the suspect. It was also noted there were several sets of shoe impressions in the snow on the front lawn area of 95 Martensen Street, but two sets in particular that led to the front door from the road that had a long stride, as if made by somebody running, which is unusual in itself since this is a senior housing complex.

One of the shoe impressions was clearly identifiable near the front entrance. The imprint matched up with the bottom of the shoe worn by one of the suspects. Based on the shoe impression, the suspects' similar dress as the description given, the close vicinity the subjects were located, and the story about the unknown aunt, as well as their suspicious activity witnessed in the building, the suspects were read their Miranda rights.

Both suspects agreed to talk and they were asked separately where they were before 95 Martensen Street. One suspect said that he was at Union Street in Quincy. Officer Whedbee found this to be odd since this same suspect claimed to live on Union Street.

When asked how they got to Martensen Street, they said that they walked and when asked if they walked through the snow in front of the building at any time, they said they did not. When asked how it could be that a shoe impression that matched one of their shoes could be found in the snow leading to the entrance of 95 Martensen Street, they could not provide any explanation.

A check of the suspect's shoes showed that they were wet inside. Both suspects denied having possession of a black Carhardt jacket when they entered 95 Martensen Street. Officer Whedbee asked one of the suspects where his aunt lived in the building and how long she had been there. He said since he was three, yet he could not remember her name, her apartment number or how to get home from there.

During questioning of the suspects, Officer Matt Patten brought the victims to the scene for a possible identification, but they said that they could not be sure because the suspects were masked.

The victims did recognize that the Carhardt jacket looked like the one worn by one of the suspects. Based upon the totality of the circumstances, Officer Whedbee formed probable cause that the suspects were responsible for the crime. Both parties were placed into custody and booked at the Quincy Police Department.

One suspect is a 19-year-old male from Fall River and the second suspect is a 17-year-old from Quincy. They are both charged with joint venture in "Attempted Unarmed Assault with Intent to Rob." The assault occurred when the victim was grabbed from behind in a headlock.

The intent to rob happened when the suspect attempted to grab the bag from the victim. The joint venture is from both suspects being present with masks on, with the same motive and mindset and encouragement to commit the crimes mentioned.

Shoes from both suspects were seized and logged in evidence room. Detective Tom Cleary took control of the jacket and a pair of rubber gloves that were found at the entrance of 95 Martensen Street. A purple pair of gloves found in the trash can with the jacket and were also seized as potential evidence.

Detective Cleary will also get a copy of the security tapes used at 95 Martensen Street. Nice Work!

*Defeat #1 Seed Franklin To Advance
In South Sectional Div. 1 Semi-Finals*

North Quincy Girls Making History

By SEAN BRENNAN

Quincy, as a city, has been witness to enough history to fill a high school textbook.

Last weekend a new chapter was written.

The North Quincy High School girls' basketball team added its own chapter to that book last Friday night with a win in the South Sectional Division I quarterfinals.

The No. 8 seeded Red Raiders (15-6) defeated No. 1 seeded Franklin High School 65-57 in overtime to advance to the program's first-ever South Sectional Division I semifinal, which will be played today (March 6) at Bridgewater-Raynham High School (7 p.m.). The Raiders will be matched up against No. 5 seeded New Bedford with a trip to the South Sectional finals on March 8 at UMass-Boston on the line.

If North Quincy can continue its winning ways against New Bedford, the team will meet the winner of the other semifinal game between No. 3 Barnstable High School and No. 10 Sandwich High School.

To get to where they are now, North Quincy had to travel down into hostile territory to take on the top-seeded team (Franklin) in the South Sectional Division I tournament, and in the process needed to quiet the talk before the game even began that the Panthers were the superior team.

"Franklin was the No. 1 seed, people were writing articles about how good they were and were looking to the next game," said NQHS head coach Michael Jorgenson. "The players really kept their heads in the battle. They hung on, and their confidence carried them through overtime."

BASKETBALL

The Atlantic Coast League North champion Red Raiders were this close to having their season ended by the Panthers. Trailing by two points (51-49) with under twenty seconds remaining, North Quincy junior forward/guard Siobhan Carnell, who is having a breakout post-season, was fouled, and calmly stepped to the free throw line and buried both attempts to send the game to the extra session. Carnell finished the quarterfinal game with a game-high 26 points.

At 51-51 and with the game coming down to which team could handle the pressure of an overtime that would decide who moved on and who went home, the Red Raiders absolutely dominated.

North Quincy outscored, out hustled and frankly out played Franklin to the tune of a 14-6 margin, securing their spot in NQHS history as the only girls' basketball team to advance this far in post season play.

"This group of girls are so poised," said Jorgenson. "Not everyone expected us to go down to Franklin and beat the number one seed. But they all did."

"They have played plenty of tough games this season, and all experienced the 0-3 start to the season. But all of them have experience playing in these types of games, be it in basketball over the years, or in the state volleyball tournament or elsewhere. They know how to handle the pressure and the ups and downs that come with it."

Senior forward Rebecca Goreham finished the game with another double double (14 points, 19 rebounds) and juniors Catherine O'Connell (13 points, including eight in overtime) and Kathleen Lynch (8 rebounds) both played major parts in the victory.

But it has been Carnell who has opened the eyes of opposing teams and coaches during these first two post season games.

"(Franklin) didn't know what had hit them when it came to Siobhan," Jorgenson said. "She has been awesome in the tournament. Her decision making, her ball control, everything has been great."

"And with teams focusing on Rebecca Goreham, she has been able to hit her open shots and has forced teams to rethink their defensive game plans. Rebecca has continued to crash the boards and Catherine (O'Connell) came up huge in the overtime getting to ever rebound and scoring outscoring Franklin 8-6."

"This team is jelling at the right time."

The Raiders took an early 19-10 first quarter lead, and held a slim 28-26 advantage entering the halftime break.

After losing their lead by the end of the third quarter (40-36) and trailing by as many as eight points in the fourth quarter, the Raiders stormed back to force OT.

The rest, they say, is history.

North Quincy had opened its 2008-post season with a 67-58 win over No. 9 Bridgewater-Raynham HS in a first-round game at NQHS Gymnasium on Feb. 27.

The Raiders, behind Carnell's 28 points (54 points in two games) and Goreham's twelve points and QUINCY'S DOUG SCOTT looks to push the ball up the court against Catholic Memorial last Saturday in a South Sectional quarterfinal game. Quincy lost to CM 83-56 ending the season with a 14-9 record.

Presidents Postseason Campaign Over

By SEAN BRENNAN

The Quincy Presidents advanced all the way to the South Sectional Division II quarterfinals last Saturday afternoon against Catholic Memorial High School. But when the dust cleared, the Knights had knocked Quincy out of post-season play for the second consecutive year.

The 83-56 loss at the hands of Catholic Memorial ended a Presidents' run that had seen them defeat Bishop Feehan High School 53-51 in a preliminary round game (Feb. 25); followed by a first-round upset over Atlantic Coast League rival Plymouth North High School 65-57 on Feb. 27.

Quincy, which was looking to advance to its second straight South Sectional Division II semifinal, had its magical 2007 post-season ruined by these same Knights, 75-66.

The Presidents finished the year with a 14-9 overall record.

Catholic Memorial (18-4), the No. 6 seed, advances to play No. 7 seeded Falmouth High School (19-5) later this week in the semifinals.

The game last Saturday was played in the comfy confines of Catholic Memorial's Ronald S. Perry Gymnasium (West Roxbury), and the crowd, both home and away, was electric from the opening tip.

The Presidents, riding a wave of momentum after coming off an impressive win over Plymouth North, jumped out to an early first quarter lead (12-4) over the favored Knights, but the one thing Quincy could ill-afford to have happen, happened.

The Presidents' leading scorer, junior guard Doug Scott (24 points per game average), picked up two quick fouls, while at the same time trying to deal with double teams and a ball-hawking defensive strategy applied by CM.

The plan seemed to work as the opening quarter progressed, Scott and the rest of the Presidents had a tough time getting into any of their offensive sets, instead settling on contested jump shots and one-and-done possessions.

At the end of eight minutes of play, Quincy trailed CM 18-15.

Just five seconds into the second quarter, Scott picked up his third foul (on a tick-tack foul) and QHS head coach Bob Fisher had to send him to the bench and the Knights took advantage, quickly upping their lead to double-digits by using an up-tempo game. CM controlled the defensive and offensive boards and their ability to control most rebounds forced Quincy back on its heels throughout the latter part of the second quarter.

Facing an increasing deficit, Fisher reinserted Scott back into the game, looking to gain a spark, but with four minutes remaining in the half, he was called for his fourth foul.

With Scott back on the sidelines, the Presidents used a late-half scoring run (7-2) to cut the double-digit deficit back down to nine as the first half ended. After sixteen minutes of play, Quincy was down 34-25.

The third quarter finished off any hope Quincy may have had of playing in their second consecutive South Sectional semifinal. CM came out of the locker room on fire and dominated both ends of the court. Grabbing loose balls, collecting virtually every rebound and scoring with relative ease against a shell-shocked Presidents team.

Framingham Ends Red Raiders' Tourney Ride

By SEAN BRENNAN

A very successful season came to an abrupt end last Saturday afternoon for the North Quincy High School boys' basketball team.

The Red Raiders (16-8) had entered the 2008 South Sectional Division I tournament riding a six-game winning streak, a streak that had included two wins over rival Quincy High School (NQ went 3-0 versus the Presidents this season); a championship win in the annual Vin Moscardelli Tournament, and a second-place finish in the competitive Atlantic Coast League North Division, one game in the loss column behind Plymouth North High School.

North Quincy, by virtue of its strong regular season record, earned a first-round home playoff game and a number five seed. The team defeated Bridgewater-Raynham High School on Feb. 28, 76-69, for the program's first playoff victory since the 1991 season, but in the quarterfinals on Saturday, the Raiders were overmatched by a strong and athletic Framingham HS (16-6) team and had its season cut short 74-45.

"Overall this season has to be deemed a success," said NQHS head coach Kevin Barrett. "Whenever you can stockpile sixteen wins in a season with just eight losses it has been a good year. Some of our goals before the year began were to make the post-season, earn a home playoff game and win a tournament game. We accomplished all three.

"It was a tough loss against a good Framingham team, but we will take some time to regroup, step back and reflect. In a couple of weeks we will begin spring ball and get right back into it looking to get an early start on next year."

Against Framingham in the quarters, North Quincy fought the good fight in the first half, but still trailed by double digits entering the break.

In the third quarter, the Raiders cut the deficit down to twelve points, but Framingham exploded with a huge scoring run to start the fourth and put the game out of reach.

"They were an athletic team with a quick back court," Barrett added. "They may have been the first team we faced all season that could match-up with us man-to-man. All game long they caused us problems. You have to give them credit. They were a tough team for us to go up against."

Senior center Marcellus Lee finished his standout senior season with another stat-filling game. Lee scored twenty points and grabbed fourteen rebounds in the loss. Senior captain Dennis Martin, whose return from a late-season injury helped propel North Quincy's late season winning streak, finished the game with fourteen points.

"All the seniors really stepped up in this game and throughout the season," Barrett said. "Marcellus was so consistent all year and the play of Martin at the end of the schedule brought us to the next level. They along with our other seniors such as Sean Clifford, Jordan Thompson, Matt O'Neil and Alex Tragellis brought experience and toughness to this year's team."

"They (Framingham) were just a real good team."

The Raiders earned the program's first tourney win since 1991 with a gutsy 76-69 win over No. 11 seeded B-R (11-10) in the first round. The win avenged an early season 30-point loss to Bridgewater-Raynham HS.

Martin scored a career-high 24 points (13-of-16 from the free throw line), Lee finished with a double double (20 points, 17 rebounds) and senior point guard Phuoc Nguyen scored twelve points and dished out five assists.

"We played with a lot of energy and even after B-R cut our lead from eight to two points in the third quarter, we stood tall and made our shots from the foul line," Barrett said. "And that was the difference in the game."

North Quincy will be looking to reload in 2008-09 because this year's team will graduate nine players of its roster. Those playing in their last high school game against Framingham included Dennis Martin, Alex Tragellis, Phuoc Nguyen, Sean Clifford, Marcellus Lee, Chang Zheng, Jordan Thompson, Zach O'Hara and Matt O'Neil.

"This team and this group of seniors have set the bar for future North Quincy teams," said Barrett proudly. "They brought, with their play, a buzz to the program. All year and especially during these two playoff games, we had alumni coming back to support the basketball program and this team. It was a great thing to see and great for North Quincy High School.

"It was probably the most support one of my teams have had in the five years I have been coach. I hope it continues into next season."

John Fidalgo New North Quincy Baseball Coach

John Fidalgo, a 2002 graduate of North Quincy High School, and currently a second-year Sports Management and Economics teacher at NQHS has been named the new head baseball coach of the Red Raiders.

Fidalgo graduated from Johnson and Wales University (Providence, RI) in 2006 with a BS in Sports Management and he was a four-year starter at catcher and captain of the baseball team his junior and senior seasons. He is taking over for Rick Beach.

Fidalgo was a three-year varsity player at NQHS (1999-2002), played for the Rockland Cardinals of the Cranberry League (2005-2006) and he played four years for Quincy Legion.

Fidalgo's previous coaching experience includes a stint as the freshman coach at NQHS where his team compiled a 13-6 record and as head coach of the Quincy Red Stockings AAU baseball club.

"It is nice to come back to NQHS and have the opportunity to influence fourteen rebounds jumped out to a seventeen point halftime lead (37-20) and held on to hold off B-R despite being outscored 38-30 in the final sixteen minutes.

NQ's Catherine O'Connell contributed eleven points coming off the bench and the Raiders avenged last season's first-round home loss to then No. 13 Durfee HS 62-50.

The team has a tough match against New Bedford High School—a Big-3 Conference heavyweight—in tonight's semifinals, but Jorgenson is confident in his girls.

"New Bedford, our opponent in the semifinals, is a very talented team. But our team is not content with just showing up. We want to continue doing what we are doing and hopefully our confidence will carry us even farther.

"This group, this team has the ability to continue to win on the biggest stage."

Notes: Carnell's 54 points were the most points scored by an individual player during the first two games of the Division I South Sectionals... North Quincy (No. 8) and Sandwich (No. 10) are the final two Atlantic Coast League teams remaining in the South Sectional Division I state tournament.

advantage (34-25) to a twenty-two point lead by the end of the quarter (61-39), by outscoring Quincy 27-14.

The final eight minutes were a mere formality. CM outscored Quincy 22-17 and when the final horn sounded, the Knights were moving on by virtue of their 83-56 win.

Monteiro (21 points). The Knights Julian Colarusso, a Quincy native, chipped in with a double double (10 points, 14 rebounds). Scott's 13 points led all Quincy scorers.

The No. 14 seeded Presidents had advanced to the quarterfinals with a huge 65-57 win over No. 3 seeded Plymouth North in a first-round game late last week.

Ply. North (17-4), the ACL North Division regular-season champion, was no match for Scott and his team.

Scott, coming off a 20-point game against Bishop Feehan HS, poured in 39 points against the Blue Eagles (three three-pointers, 10 of 15 from the foul line) to lead his team to the upset win, avenging an earlier 11-point loss to Plymouth North on Feb. 1.

Senior guard Paris Amado scored eight points and held the Eagles' leading scorer, Brett Tirilia to a season-low 15 points with solid defense.

Quincy led 44-32 after three-quarters and held on to win despite being outscored 25-21 in the final eight minutes of play.

Notes: Quincy's Martin Bowes, Paris Amado, Kenny Francis, Andy Boucicaud and Kunta Martins all played their final high school game against CM... QHS head coach Bob Fisher's teams have a combined 65-23 record since he took the reins before the start of the '04-05 season.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Your soft-hearted self is drawn to a tempting offer. But your hard-headed half isn't so sure. Best advice: Do it only after every detail is checked out to your liking.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Your inventive mind should help you find a way to get around an apparently impassable barrier and make yourself heard. Your efforts get you noticed by the right people.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) You're enjoying this creative period. But by mid-week, you'll need to emphasize your more pragmatic talents as you consider a risky but potentially lucrative move.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) An unexpected rejection could turn into something positive if you pocket your pride and ask for advice on how you can make changes that will make the difference.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Your Lion's heart gives you the courage to push for answers to a job-related situation. Stay with it. You'll soon find more believers coming out of the ranks of the doubters.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Your curiosity pays off this week as you push past the gossip to find the facts. What you ultimately discover could lead you to make some changes in your plans.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) A new sense of enthusiasm helps get you out of on-the-job doldrums and back into a productive phase. Family matters also benefit from your more positive attitude.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) A bit of nostalgia is fine. But don't stay back in the past too long or you might miss seeing the signpost up ahead pointing the way to a new opportunity.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) If you feel you need to take more time to study a situation before making a decision, do so. Don't let anyone push you into acting until you're ready.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) As the Great Advice Giver, the Goat really shines this week as family and friends seek your wisdom. Someone especially close to you might make a surprising request.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Spiritual concerns dominate part of the week before more worldly matters demand your attention. An old promise resurfaces with some surprises attached.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) You're in a highly productive period and are eager to finish all the projects you've taken on. But don't let yourself get swamped. Take a breather now and again.

BORN THIS WEEK: You have a gift for learning new things quickly and applying your knowledge to best advantage where needed.

SPOTLIGHT ON HEALTH & FITNESS

by Andrea Wyatt
M.S.S., C.S.C.S.

Lifestyle Journal

Q. A friend of mine met with a personal trainer after she joined a new fitness center. The trainer told her to start keeping a lifestyle log. My friend is supposed to write down all her activities each day, plus everything she eats and drinks. After a week she is supposed to turn in her lifestyle log so they can discuss it. What benefit would keeping such a log have? I am trying to become healthy and lose a little weight.

A. Keeping a journal, or a lifestyle log, has been shown to be a very effective way to stay committed to your fitness goals and to have a written account tracking the process it took to get there. Although this is not a new concept, the traditional food log can be modified to include exercise, activities and other lifestyle components essential to a healthy lifestyle.

Many fitness professionals are asking clients to keep logs of their daily lifestyle choices so they can better help them develop realistic goals, and also to get a snapshot of what is happening with their clients on days they are not together. Most people who meet with a trainer or fitness professional do so only two to four days a week, leaving plenty of unknown lifestyle habits.

Developing or maintaining a healthy lifestyle includes factors not often realized. The traditional nutrition logs/journals include monitoring eating habits by keeping track of calories, portion sizes and fluid intake. Lifestyle logs also include daily exercise, hours of sleep per day and activities outside of organized exercise, such as playing with your children or walking the dog, and levels of perceived stress.

Noting on a scale of 1 to 10 how well you felt with each lifestyle component is also helpful. For example if you got only five hours of sleep, you would note if you felt well-rested, fatigued or tired throughout the day.

After keeping a log for a few days of normal activity, the results can be used to help make changes to your current nutritional and lifestyle routines to help you reach your goals. You might be amazed how just a few tweaks can make a major difference. You can also review old logs to see what worked and what did not work for you.

When keeping a log, it is most important to be completing honest. Withholding information is only going to hinder you from reaching your goals. Lifestyle logs can also be used to hold yourself accountable to your goals. Knowing that you will have to write down a poor lifestyle choice might make you think twice before doing it.

Whether you are meeting with a personal trainer or managing your own fitness program, a lifestyle log can be an extremely useful tool, and maybe the missing link in achieving a healthy lifestyle.

Always consult a physician before beginning an exercise program. If you have a fitness or training question, write to Andrea in care of King Features Weekly Service, P.O. Box 536475, Orlando, FL 32853-6475.

Reducing Risk Of Heart Attack, Stroke

By CHERIE DEWAR

Ba-bump, ba-bump.

This is the sound we literally live by, and the health of which we all must covet to lead long, prosperous lives.

A bilingual presentation recently at Thomas Crane Library entitled, "Health Matters: Heart Health-Who Should You Call?" reviewed how to reduce the risk of heart attack and stroke, and what to do if you have one.

This was a coordinated effort between South Shore Elder Services, Quincy Asian Resources, Quincy Medical Center and Thomas Crane Public Library.

Frank Poon, South Shore Elder Service's Asian Outreach Worker, recognizes the importance of a healthy heart. "You have to start eating well while you're young to be able to remain active and enjoy your family when you're older," Poon reasoned.

Dr. Jae Yong Lee, an internal medicine doctor with an office in Wollaston, and Dr. Ravi Lala, a cardiologist at Quincy Medical Center, spoke at the presentation. Quincy Medical Center's Allen So translated the discussion into Mandarin for the large audience who enjoyed heart healthy snacks of whole-grain muffins from Eatin' Healthy, fruit, granola, tea and coffee.

Dr. Lee and Dr. Lala noted and discussed how to prevent a heart attack and stroke.

As the No. 1 cause of death in America, there is a heart attack victim every 29 seconds. Stroke is the third leading cause of death or disability with a victim every 45 seconds in America.

Considering the HEART ATTACK and stroke risks can be reduced, according to Dr. Jae Yong Lee, who is shown offering tips to the 70 persons who attended a recent session of "Health Matters" at Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy. Dr. Lee specializes in Internal Medicine at Quincy Medical Center.

prevalence of cardiac arrest and strokes, these two conditions are not to be taken lightly, or be thought of as, "it won't happen to me."

The good news is that the measures necessary to reduce the risk of a heart attack are the same as those that prevent a stroke.

The steps necessary to take are:

- Be physically active. Take a walk every day for 30 minutes.

- Eat a heart healthy diet. Avoid foods high in saturated fats and cholesterol, like those in animal fats. Fish is a healthier option, along with eating 5-9 fruits and vegetables per day and reducing salt intake, a fact Dr. Lee emphasized for Asians since their diets tend to be salty.

- Watch your waistline. Measured around the bellybutton, a waistline for women of 35 inches, or more and a waistline for men of 40 inches or more indicates a high risk for heart disease or stroke. This risk is lowered by reducing your waistline's girth with a health diet and exercise.

- Know if you have diabetes. Diagnosis of diabetes can be easy to miss, and diabetics have a higher risk of heart attacks. If you have been more hungry or thirsty than normal, or have lost weight inexplicably, see your primary care physician for a blood sugar test.

- Quit smoking and reduce alcohol intake. The risk of a heart attack or stroke is greatly reduced when smoking is ceased. A maximum of one glass of wine or beer a day is recommended.

- Reduce your stress. You know what gets you upset and stressed. Find a way to avoid these factors, or how to decompress from them. Whether it is through yoga, massage, music, or free and open-to-the-public Health and Wellness classes at Quincy Medical Center (see www.quincymc.org or call (617) 773-6100 for more information). Controlling your stress is vital to your overall wellbeing.

- Know your numbers. Last but not least is the importance of your blood pressure and cholesterol. If plaque build-up is forming in your arteries, your heart will have to work harder to push blood through the narrowing arterial openings. An analogy is the difficulty felt when trying to drink water through a coffee stirrer versus a regular straw. You are at risk of a heart attack or stroke if your blood pressure is over 140/90 mmHg (millimeters of mercury), or if you have total cholesterol over 200 mg/dl (milligrams per deciliter of blood).

Several risk factors like age, gender, family history, and race can affect your cholesterol level and blood pressure, so your primary care physician (PCP) will take these into account at your annual appointment. These unchangeable factors could influence the safe level at which your numbers should be.

Dr. Lee cautioned that blood pressure machines at a pharmacy may not be maintained properly to give a trustworthy measurement. Only a reading at a doctor's office should be considered reliable.

Working with Your Primary Care Physician to Prevent Heart Disease and Stroke:

"Your physician can be a team member in your effort to reduce your risk of heart disease. Together you can come up with preemptive steps to take in hopes of avoiding a trip to the hospital with chest pains," Dr. Lee explained. He reviewed the information that is important to convey to your PCP to obtain this common goal.

Inform your PCP if other members of your family had a heart attack or stroke. If a family member passed away due to an unknown cause, be sure to report that. Answer your PCP's questions honestly, without embarrassment. Visit your physician consistently each year, and prepare questions ahead of time.

Quincy Medical Center offers a 24-hour-a-day, 7-day-a-week free physician referral service to find a PCP

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century

by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

REMOVING AN OBSTACLE

Children satisfy a natural sucking reflex by sucking on fingers and thumbs. If the habit continues for too long, thumb- and finger-sucking can adversely affect the alignment of permanent teeth as they grow in. With this in mind, parents are encouraged to help their children abandon the habit if it continues. Dentists generally recommend that parents not scold their children when they suck their thumbs or fingers. Instead, praise children when they aren't engaged in this habit. In addition, if a child resorts to thumb- or finger-sucking while anxious, upset or afraid, try to resolve the source of these emotions. Also, if a child is old enough to understand, let him or her decide how to give up the habit.

Most children stop thumb sucking on their own. When older children continue to suck their thumbs, it could mean they are bored, anxious, or have emotional problems such as depression. Seek advice from your pediatrician if you are concerned. We're currently accepting new patients and welcome your call at 617-479-6220 to schedule an appointment for superior dental care. We recommend regular checkups and cleanings. Take the time to understand your health—it is worth the investment. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street. We offer the services of anesthesiology with a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Visit us on the web at www.quincydentist.com.

P.S. In some cases, a thumb- or finger-sucking habit can be successfully addressed by wrapping the child's favorite digit with a bandage.

at (877) 479-CARE (2273), or visit their website above.

Should your PCP determine you have symptoms of heart disease, you would be referred to a cardiologist. A cardiologist would determine if your symptoms are related to heart disease; if they are, the cardiologist would decide the correct therapy to address the disease. Some therapies are behavioral changes (lose weight, quit smoking), medicine, angioplasty, or bypass surgery.

The saying, "Prevention is the best medicine," applies to your effort in avoiding these therapy options. Should you feel as though you are having a heart attack or stroke, to combat their ill-effects, you and your family need to jump into action.

Symptoms of a Heart Attack and Stroke

We've all seen a heart attack acted out in a movie as a clutch to the chest and keeling over. However, there are other symptoms to be aware of, especially for women for whom a heart attack can be harder to detect.

Classic symptoms of cardiac arrest are pain, discomfort, pressure, fullness or tightness in the chest cavity. The pain may move into shoulders, arm or jaw. Women may sense the same pain and/or stomach discomfort, dizziness, nausea, shortness of breath, unexplained anxiety, weakness, a cold sweat, or trouble breathing without pain.

Symptoms of a stroke are sudden. One minute you are fine, the next you may feel numbness or weakness of the face, arm or leg, especially on one side of the body. Other symptoms are confusion, dizziness, a severe headache with no known cause, or trouble walking, balancing, speaking, understanding, or seeing in one or both eyes.

If you or someone around you feels any of these symptoms, do not hesitate to call 911! Timing is critical to fight a heart attack or stroke. A blood clot grows over time, causing more and more damage; removal of the clot is imperative. Dr. Lee also recommended taking two baby aspirin pills if you feel any of the heart attack symptoms, and one pill for stroke symptoms, as long as you do not have allergies to aspirin, or a history of excessive bleeding.

It's Never Too Late!

The take-home message the doctors conveyed is that it is never too late to take action to reduce the risk of heart disease or stroke. Should you be at risk for these with high cholesterol or blood pressure, smoking, inactivity, obesity, or diabetes, altering your lifestyle to prevent an actual heart attack or stroke is the best route for you and your family. If you ever feel like you are having a heart attack or stroke, take action immediately to mitigate the effects it will have on your life.

Crowley Retirement Eases Police Tensions for second. Keenan is the brother-in-law of Mayor Koch and the brother of City Councillor at Large John Keenan.

The appointing authority is Mayor Koch, who must make his selection from the top of the list or else explain why he chose to take someone with a lesser Civil Service rating.

Chief Crowley told The Sun he is not sure what he will be doing after his retirement June 30.

"It has not sunk in yet," he said, "although I have been contemplating it for some time."

A graduate of Archbishop Williams High School, Stonehill College and Anna Maria College, he spent six years in the Marine Corps Reserve and six years with the Quincy Recreation Department.

He joined the Boston Police Department in 1970, assigned to District 3 in Mattapan. He transferred to Quincy in 1972, made captain in 1997 and succeeded William Falco as chief in July, 2004.

Feds Act To Strip Quincy Family Of $3.1M Award

The federal government has taken a new tack to dodge the court-ordered payment of $3.1 million to the McIntyre family of Quincy in a case that has echoes of the 12-year search for the fugitive murderer James "Whitey" Bulger.

U. S. District Judge Reginald C. Lindsay in 2006 awarded the money to the mother and brother of John McIntyre after ruling that FBI Agent John Connolly was responsible for warning Bulger and Steve "The Rifleman" Flemmi that McIntyre was an informant before they killed him.

Justice Department Attorney Thomas M. Bondy Monday filed an appeal in the First Circuit Court of Appeals, claiming that the FBI should not be held responsible for the actions of an agent, a claim that was rejected by Judge Lindsay.

"He's a traitor to the FBI," said Bondy.

Connolly, 67, is serving a 10-year prison term on racketeering charges for protecting Bulger and Flemmi from prosecution by warning them to disappear just before they were indicted for racketeering in 1995. Bulger got away. Flemmi didn't.

McIntyre, 32, was involved with Bulger and Flemmi in a 1984 plot to ship arms to the Irish Republican Army on the Gloucester fishing trawler Valhalla. His remains were discovered in 2000 in an unmarked grave in Dorchester.

2 Dogs Begin, 4 More Coming

K-9 Unit Joins Police In War On Illegal Drugs

Mayor Tom Koch has taken the first step toward fulfilling his campaign pledge to fight a war on illegal drugs in Quincy.

Using seized drug money, the Police Department has purchased two dogs to form a K-9 unit that can sniff out narcotics for the first time in the department's history.

Bruno and Shaggi, German shepherds, will start specialized training this week.

Four more dogs, specially trained in bomb and gun detection, will be added in coming months under a Federal Homeland Security grant of $220,000 obtained by Lt. Robert Gillan.

"Working together with Chief (Robert) Crowley and the entire department, we are committed to tackling the drug problem in our city and keeping our streets safe," said Koch.

"We have plenty of work to do but this is a positive first step."

The plan outlined by Koch during his campaign included increased enforcement, education and support for families that have been torn asunder by illegal drugs.

A 21-member task force is currently taking shape to help tackle the issue.

"Every tool helps, and these dogs will be a valuable addition to our drug unit and our department as a whole," said Crowley.

"I am proud of the work our men and women do every day and I look forward to expanding their capabilities."

In addition to their specialties, all six dogs will be trained to search for missing people and crime suspects, officials said.

Quincy's current K-9 unit has been largely retired in recent years and the department has had to rely on the State Police and other departments when the service of a dog is required.

"This is a huge lift," said Lt. Gillan. "We will now have a unit that will be able to respond to all aspects of K-9 work, from detecting drugs, bombs and guns to chasing down bad guys."

Adams HBO Series Seen Bringing Boom Tourist Season

The Adams story, based on the Pulitzer Prize-winning biography by David McCullough and starring Paul Giamatti in the title role, was screened in part in the Cannon House Office Building in Washington and again in the theater at the Boston Public Library.

"What a powerful interpretation of John Adams by Paul Giamatti," said Mark Carey, executive director of Discover Quincy, the city's tourist bureau. "This is such

Bragg Seeks More Resources For Teachers At All Schools

Teachers need resources, supplies, and teaching aides, according to School Committee woman Jo-Ann Bragg who wants to reinstate Teacher Resource Libraries at 20 school sites. She estimates the program will cost approximately $22,000.

"Quincy has hired 300 new teachers in the past three years," Bragg said in her presentation to the School Committee Wednesday, adding that the city has a "growing Special Education and English Limited Learners population."

"This is an important first step to support new teachers and all teachers," said Bragg of the libraries, noting that "Once they are established, teachers can be creative and share best practices and build on each others' strengths.

There will be even more new teachers in the future, according to Bragg who said that enrollment is increasing and more experienced teachers will be retiring.

Bragg said that these new teachers, in fact all of the approximately 900 teachers, should have the "support, the educational tools, (information on) classroom management techniques and the resources to be effective in their jobs."

Under Bragg's plan, the Teacher Resource Libraries would offer such items as computer supplies, books, periodicals, descriptions of the state and city's standards and benchmarks, suggested websites and activities, support service materials, extra teachers' edition textbooks, and best practices ideas and methods.

Bragg listed such

DOVE In New Approach To Combat Domestic Violence

By LAURA GRIFFIN

Quincy will pioneer a new team approach aimed at combating and reducing domestic violence, thanks to efforts by Ward 3 City Councillor Kevin Coughlin and Stephanie Flaherty, Executive Director of DOVE, an agency dedicated to aiding victims of domestic violence.

In reports to the City Council, both Coughlin and Flaherty described the current domestic violence crisis in Massachusetts and asked the city council to support new initiatives geared to a team approach which assesses the potential for serious danger.

Under the program called HART or the High At Risk Team, representatives of public and private agencies as well as the courts and the police, collaborate on high risk cases and use uniform assessment procedures.

Through HART, social workers, police and the judiciary will assess each case to determine how much danger the offender poses.

The team's goal is to identify the potential for danger or the dangerousness of each offender before the offender advances to physical assault or homicide.

At this time, the HART program will concentrate on cases in the Quincy community, then provide recommended resources and follow-up.

The HART team will examine parties involved in restraining orders and attempt to identify high-risk individuals or potential repeat offenders through a uniform "dangerousness" assessment.

"A Danger Assessment follows the offender through all appeals of court and probation, so that all parties involved in a domestic violence case can better estimate the offender's likelihood of killing or seriously injuring his or her victim," Coughlin said.

Coughlin modeled the HART proposal for Quincy after successful programs in Newburyport and New Bedford.

Quincy has long been "ahead of the curve and in the forefront of addressing domestic violence," said Coughlin, noting that the city's program for addressing domestic violence is nationally recognized as the "Quincy Model."

Under HART, city agencies, such as the police, will work with DOVE, the district attorney's office, judges, court officials, and social agencies.

Such an initiative does not come a minute too soon, according to Flaherty and Coughlin who outlined the growing need at the council meeting. Flaherty cited escalating domestic violence cases and reduced resources in Massachusetts.

After hearing Flaherty and Coughlin report on increasing domestic violence, increasing homicides and maiming, the City Council unanimously supported the HART project described by Coughlin.

The council also approved a $500 donation to DOVE from the Ward 3 Stop and Shop mitigation fund as requested by Coughlin. The funds will be used for a HART training program.

According to Flaherty, Massachusetts is the only state where domestic violence incidents are increasing while, all over the country, the numbers are going down.

Coughlin, also, cited statistics on the increasing number of incidents and the deadly consequences.

"In 2007, there were 55 domestic violence related deaths in Massachusetts, a 289% increase over 2005 and a 161% increase over 2006," said Coughlin.

Part of the problem involves the violation of restraining orders. For example, according to Coughlin, one in four restraining order issued was violated in 2006.

The HART team will use all the tools available to identify cases "which pose the greatest risk of re-assault or lethal violence to domestic violence victims," according to Coughlin.

Coughlin said that the Quincy HART program will "kick off" March 13 with an initial training session at Best Western Adams Inn on Hancock Street, Quincy.

Those invited include Judge Mark Coven, First Justice, Quincy District Court, and representatives from the offices of Norfolk County District Attorney William Keating and Sheriff Michael Bellotti. They will meet with representatives of DOVE, other private agencies and officials from police, corrections, and probation offices.

For Flaherty, the HART effort will be one highlight as DOVE marks its 30th anniversary with both a sense of sadness and accomplishment.

Flaherty said resources have dwindled recently while she finds it "incredibly disheartening" to know the numbers of domestic violence have increased.

"While the rest of the country's (cases) decreasing, the state of Massachusetts is doing just the opposite," said Flaherty.

Founded in Quincy in 1978, DOVE focuses on protecting victims through emergency shelters, housing, support services, as well as education and youth programs aimed at prevention.

The agency will mark its 30th anniversary this year with a record of helping thousands of victims of domestic violence.

A Special 'Thank You'

Firefighters Honor Mariano For New Rescue Vehicle

By MIRIAM JOSEPH

Quincy firefighters had a special "thank you" gift for State Rep. Ron Mariano in recognition of his help in obtaining a new rescue truck for the department.

Ernie Arienti, president of the Quincy Firefighters Association. Local 792, presented Mariano with an official framed, glass-encased firefighter's a at a "thank you" ceremony last Friday at Central Headquarters on Quincy Avenue.

The truck, a former MWRA vehicle, had been used as a tunnel-rescue truck for a Quincy-Weymouth-Braintree rescue team during construction of a tunnel shaft from Weymouth out to Nut Island. When the project was completed, the truck was sitting idle at the shipyard.

Arienti, a firefighter assigned to the rescue team for more than 20 years, contacted Mariano about the vehicle.

"Ron worked with the MWRA to transfer this truck back to Quincy for the Quincy firefighters and for the safety of the citizens of Quincy and the safety of the firefighters themselves," said Arienti. "Ron worked very hard on it . . . getting this truck at no cost to us."

Valued at nearly $500,000, the rescue truck and its equipment had been earlier promised to the Quincy Fire Department, but when that deal fell through, the truck remained the property of the MWRA and was parked.

"The fire department was trying to get this truck because our rescue truck was at a point where it was dangerous for the men to even drive it," said Arienti.

"We had a truck that was old and unsafe to drive anymore, so we used an old engine as a rescue vehicle and we couldn't fit all the equipment on the engine so there were limitations to what the rescue team could do."

On being presented with a plaque and his official fireman's ax, Mariano said, "This is quite a thrill to be honored by a great group of guys who do so much for the city."

"What I did was just help facilitate a much-needed piece of equipment into the inventory of the Quincy Fire Department. And these guys deserve the best tools we can get for them, so I am just happy that everything worked out and I am thrilled to be honored by them."

Noted for its early response time, the fire department's rescue team responds to all fires within the city, first alarm medical calls, industrial accidents, major auto accidents, high-angle rescues and accidents on state roads in Quincy.

"We have been on-scene when information is still being taken by the 911 dispatcher," said Arienti. "Our fire alarm dispatch monitors the call and as soon as it comes in and says "fire!" and we have an address, the apparatus is actually on its way to the scene while information is still being gathered by the dispatcher."

A portable cascade system has been purchased and installed on the new truck, which enables firefighters to fill the air bottles worn on their backs when fighting fires. Up the 30 bottles can be filled on the scene, saving valuable wait-time for supply vehicles to arrive on the fire scene and swap bottles.

The QFD has eight stations in the city, eight engine companies, three ladder companies, the rescue company and the deputies. Of the 200 firefighters in the department now — three are currently serving in Iraq — approximately 150 to 160 of them are qualified EMTs.

A GLASS ENCASED firefighter's axe was presented to Rep. Ron Mariano by the Quincy Firefighters Association, Local 792 for his help in getting the department a new rescue truck. From the left are Deputy Chief Gary Symth, Mayor Thomas Koch, Mariano and Local 792 President Ernie Arienti.

• On March 14, 1914, stock-car racer Lee Arnold Petty (father of Richard Petty) is born near Randleman, N.C. In 1959, he won the Daytona 500. Lee Petty never lost a race on account of being too kind to his competitors, even if those competitors were family.

• On March 13, 1942, during World War II, the Quartermaster Corps of the U.S. Army begins training dogs for the newly established War Dog Program, or "K-9 Corps." The most famous dog to emerge from the World War I was Rin Tin Tin, an abandoned puppy of German war dogs found in France in 1918 and taken to the United States, where he made his film debut in the 1922 silent film "The Man from Hell's River."

• On March 15, 1954, the Chords record "Sh-boom." The song's lighthearted melody and nonsensical lyrics kicked off a new era of "doo-wop" music. Doo-wop hits included "Earth Angel" by the Penguins and "In the Still of the Night" by the Five Satins.

• On March 12, 1969, the London drug squad appears at the house of Beatle George Harrison and wife Pattie Boyd with a warrant and drug-sniffing canines. Sergeant Norman Pilcher, the man behind the raid, was convicted of planting drugs in other cases and went to jail in 1972.

• On March 16, 1978, one of the world's worst super-tanker disasters takes place when the Amoco Cadiz wrecks off the coast of Portugal, France. Although it later became a more common-place feature of television news, this was the first time that images of oil-coated sea birds were seen by the world.

Sunbeams

Ker - Choo!!

Seems everywhere you go these days, someone's doing it.

Sneezing, wheezing, coughing.

The guy sitting behind you in church. (Why didn't the stay home?) The woman in the supermarket squeezing the tomatoes. And the waitress, putting away her handkerchief and asking, "What can I get for you?"

And everywhere you go someone sneezing is telling someone coughing. "It's going around. Everybody's got it."

We all can't escape it. But we can help keep from getting and spreading it, says Health Commissioner Drew Scheele.

He has a traditional few words of advice. Three to be exact.

"Wash your hands!"

Good advice anytime. But especially now with such a variety of ailments and germs floating around.

"Washing your hands," Scheele says, "is the most effective way to prevent the spread of germs."

"Don't just sprinkle a little water on them. Wash your hands with hot water and soap while rotating them."

"Wash them for at least 20 seconds or about the time it takes you to sing 'Happy Birthday.'"

"It's disgusting," he says, "to see a guy walking out of the men's room without washing his hands, touch a door handle someone else will touch after him, picking up his germs and go back to his table and handle a roll or butter someone else is going to eat."

Owners or managers of restaurants and other eating places should continuously stress to their food handlers the importance of washing their hands, Scheele says.

He thinks there should be as much public focus on washing hands as there is on smoking.

"Dirty hands are right up there with cigarette and second-hand smoke as a health threat," he says.

Unwashed hands run in some families like a sort of tradition, he says.

"If you see kids who don't wash their hands it's usually because their parents don't."

"And their parents before them probably didn't. And the kids will grow up and become parents and their kids won't wash their hands, either. And so on."

He notes you seldom see characters in a movie or TV sitcom wash their hands before sitting down to eat.

"It would be a nice reminder to viewers with last year!"

characters shown washing their hands once in a while."

And, to be safe, Scheele even suggests you wash your hands first chance you get after shaking hands with someone.

Another culprit in the spread of germs, he says, is the kitchen sponge.

"It's a bacteria carrier," he says. "It is used, say, to wipe a cutting board and then rinsed off. But that's not enough."

"Bacteria can develop and is then spread when the sponge is used to wipe the kitchen counter or that cutting board again."

If you want to keep that sponge from spreading germs, he has a couple of tips:

Put it in a microwave turned on high for a minute.

Or, in the dishwasher for a cycle.

Another villain in the war against germs is the guy who thinks nothing of taking a swig of milk direct from the carton and putting it back in the refrigerator with his mouth all over the opening.

And those who drink from the same glass.

But the best defense comes in those three little words: Wash your hands.

That means all of us.

It's pretty simple and inexpensive.

No prescription needed.

Just a bar of soap.

LOOK ALIKES: Rep. Bruce Ayers and Daniel O'Donnell, the Irish singer. Bruce, just think if you could sing like him.

SMILE DEPT: Fr. Raymond Kiley of St. John's Church, likes to mix a little humor in his homilies. Like this:

A husband's birthday arrived and he asked his wife if she had gotten him a present.

She said she had, but it was a rather unusual one. He said he didn't mind as long as it came from her.

She handed him an envelope. Inside was the deed to a cemetery lot.

An unusual gift, he agreed.

On his next birthday, there wasn't any sign of a present for him. Finally, he asked if she had a gift for him.

"No," she said. "You haven't used the one I gave you last year!"

Seniors To Share Stimulus Rebate

Senior citizens who rely primarily on Social Security income may qualify for an economic stimulus rebate check of as much as $600 from the federal government.

"The lowest rebate would be $300," said Sen. Michael Morrissey. "This is a wonderful opportunity for seniors to receive additional income this tax season. I encourage all qualifying seniors to apply for the economic stimulus rebate."

Seniors must file a 2007 federal tax return on IRS form 1040 or 1040A, even if their incomes are low enough that they were not required to file in previous years.

The IRS encourages filing a return by April 15 to receive a rebate by May.

Seniors who do not earn income through current employment may still qualify for a stimulus check if their Social Security, Veterans Affairs and railroad retirement benefits equal at least $3,000 annually.

The Volunteer Income Tax Assistance program provides help to low and moderate income taxpayers and can be reached at 1-800-906-9887.

The IRS also provides a listing of the nearest free tax preparation locations by calling 1-800-829-1040.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1924 POSTCARD view of the old Victorian styled Squantum Yacht Club on Wollaston Beach. The club organized in 1890 and their home was a small building on the shore at the foot of Channing Street. When the state decided to build the Boulevard the club had to move out of the way and they built this building over the water in 1904. This clubhouse was badly damaged by a fire in 1930, but was rebuilt with a larger second floor and stateroom lockers along both sides. It survived serious damage from a frozen Quincy Bay in 1960, but then was completely destroyed by a fire in 1973. The present contemporary styled clubhouse was built in 1978. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

Congratulates Quincy For Lunar New Year Festival

I would like to congratulate Quincy.

The 20th annual Lunar New Year Festival (LNYF), which took place on Sunday, Feb. 17 at NQHS, was a huge success. The event attracted more than 6,500 people from across the spectrum of Quincy and our neighboring communities, and there were plenty of activities to keep individuals and families entertained for hours.

The festival's enormous success depended upon the partnerships and support of many businesses, organizations and individuals.

First and foremost, our Committee Members and volunteers deserve high recognition. This event would not happen without their many hours of hard work and creative energy. Led by Co-chairs, Abby Nguyen and Josie Ng, many volunteers have been involved in Quincy's festivals for years while others bring new enthusiasm, the combination results in a large complicated event which every year offers something fresh and new.

NQHS and QHS students, along with those from other high schools were our largest and most enthusiastic group of volunteers. Over one hundred students contributed time; beginning at 7 a.m. on a Sunday, to ensure that everything went smoothly. The leadership skills they displayed and developed while planning and managing the festival were amazing and we are confident that they will make our city proud as they make increasingly greater contribution to our community in the future.

The LNYF is an important way for the Asian community to come together to mark the New Year, as well as for the non-Asian community to enjoy and learn about Quincy's cultural diversity. It requires financial resources, however, and we are grateful to our sponsors for providing such generous support.

We would like to recognize, in particular, our outstanding Grand Sponsors: Mohegan Sun and Sunshine Travel, who always provide entertaining games for festivalgoers. We had many other sponsors and vendors who supported the LNYF including Comcast, South Cove Community Health Center (new location 435 Hancock St.) and C & C Printing.

We also want to recognize the City of Quincy. Mayor Koch's office provided the LNYF with wonderful support, as did the Parks Department and Police Department. NQHS was, once again, the perfect space for the event and many school employees went above and beyond to assist us as we planned, executed and wrapped up the event.

Thank you to everyone who made this event not only possible but also spectacular, and to the community for their enthusiastic reception and participation. We hope you will all join us as we celebrate the August Moon Festival on Aug. 24 in Quincy Center.

Kudos To QHS Boys Basketball Coach Bob Fisher

Head Coach Bob Fisher and the QHS boys' varsity basketball team have recently completed their fourth consecutive outstanding basketball season.

Since the arrival of Coach Fisher four seasons ago, his team's have a superb record of 65-23; won back-to-back Atlantic Coast League championships and have been an outstanding representative in the state tournament every year. The team has played eight tourney games; three in each of the last two years, while playing in the quarterfinals this season and the semifinals last year.

While the record is outstanding, there is much more that reflects the true success of what Coach Fisher has brought to the QHS basketball program, specifically, the sense of pride, honor and sportsmanship that is prevalent throughout the school community and beyond over these past four years.

This is the direct result of the values, teachings and life lessons that Coach Fisher has instilled in the entire basketball program. Therefore, while there have been more victories, league titles and tourney games in the last four seasons than there have been in decades, it has been the direct result of hard work and proper teaching methods of lessons in life and the basketball court that has led to that success.

These accomplishments are evident to the entire community who have come to support the program, its players and their efforts, because the many achievements have been realized through fair play and commitment.

Seeing busloads of fans attend away games has given the community a wonderful sense of pride, and is truly a recognition and appreciation of the program, dedication and hard work that Coach Fisher, his staff of ex-players and his teams have brought to the community.

We are all fortunate to have such a leader; mentor and friend like Coach Fisher representing us at Quincy High School.

Shea Stepping Down As City Auditor

By FRANK MCCAULEY

City Auditor Charles L. Shea has announced his retirement, effective Monday, March 16, an apparent casualty of the bitter controversy surrounding the Tobin Administration's efforts to stay within the budget limits of Proposition 2 1/2.

"The actions of Mr. Shea will weigh heavily on any decision that I make in the future," said Mayor Arthur H. Tobin, an indication that he may be having second thoughts about running for a third term in the city's elections this fall.

Shea, who is 53 and has held the auditor's position since Dec. 23, 1974, said he is retiring "because I can't stand the hours anymore. I just can't take the 70 to 80-hour weeks anymore."

'BACK-ROOM' DEAL ON SCHOOL CLOSINGS DENIED

Was it politics or geography that closed the Quincy School? The question is still being asked, more than a month after closing it and four other schools. School Committee members are still reacting to charges that the substitution of the Quincy School for the Pollard School was the result of a "back-room deal."

School Committee Vice Chairman Christopher Kennedy called comments by Mayor Tobin, chairman of the School Committee, "deplorable."

According to Kennedy, Tobin had been quoted by the Patriot Ledger twice, saying that Councillor Daniel Raymondi had influenced the School Committee to close the Quincy School instead of the Pollard School, which is located in Ward 2.

Marie's Kitchen

BY MARIE D'OLIMPIO

St. Patrick's Day Goodies

I think by now everyone knows how to cook a corned beef and cabbage boiled dinner for St. Patrick's Day.

So today's recipes are for other foods sort of green. The focaccio bread is a great recipe from our daughter Rita and an alternative to the traditional corn bread usually eaten with a boiled dinner. It takes a bit longer to make but well worth the effort. When she brings it over at any gathering, it is "gone in a flash!"

The other recipes are for a pasta dish (my Italian version of St. Patrick's Day) and a green dessert by another daughter Ann Marie. She said the recipe resembles that of food network's Sandra Lee who cooks semi-home-made foods.

RITA'S FOCACCIO BREAD

- 4 cups flour
- 1 1/3 cup warm water
- 2 tablespoons yeast
- 1 tablespoon sugar
- 1 tablespoon salt
- 1/8 cup olive oil

Topping (and here is where the green comes in)

- 3 cloves crushed garlic
 - 2 tablespoons dried herbs-rosemary, basil, oregano, thyme, parsley.
 - 3 tablespoons olive oil
 - 1 tablespoon Kosher salt (or sea salt)
- Dissolve the yeast and sugar in water and let stand for about 10 minutes until yeast is frothy. Add the flour, salt and olive oil and mix in the mixer with the dough hook or knead until smooth, pliable and not sticky, using more flour is needed.

Place in oiled lightly covered bowl with a towel and place in a warm spot to rise (about 1 hour or until doubled in size.)

Punch down and dimple dough with fingertips while placing it evenly in a 9 x 13 lightly oiled and dusted with corn meal pan, cover and allow to rise for another 40 minutes.

Now for the last procedure, brush topping evenly on the top of dough. Bake in a 350 degree oven for 30 minutes and until golden on top. Careful not to burn topping.

GREEN FETTUCINE ALFREDO

- 1 stick unsalted butter
- 3/4 cup freshly ground Parmesan cheese
- 1 pint heavy cream (forget the calories in this recipe)
- 1 pound spinach fettucine

Melt the butter on low heat, Add the cheese and the cream and cook until blended.

Boil the pasta according to directions, and then add the sauce. Let set for a couple of minutes while everything is blended. Sprinkle with additional cheese if desired. It's a family favorite even when it isn't green.

ANN MARIE'S PISTACHIO CAKE

- 1 package yellow cake mix
- 1 package of instant pistachio pudding mix
- 4 eggs
- 1/4 cup vegetable oil
- 1 1/4 cup water
- 1/2 teaspoon almond extract
- 7 drops of green food coloring

Place the eggs, water and oil in a mixer or bowl and mix for a minute or so. Add the cake mix, the dry package of pistachio pudding mix, the almond extract and food coloring and mix for two minutes until well blended.

Bake in a slightly greased baking dish in a 350 degree oven for 50-55 minutes.

Wollaston Garden Club Designs Large Bay Window For New England Flower Show

The first Amateur Horticulture Structure Class Competition, called "Green Architecture" entered by the Wollaston Garden Club in the New England Spring Flower Show won a blue ribbon (first place) during judging last week.

"Green Architecture" will be on display from now until March 16 at the Bayside Expo Center, Boston.

The event features a collection of 25 plants grown by 20 different garden club members. The plants vary in age from less than one year to the oldest plant of 30 years.

The plants were chosen for their cultural perfection and green architecture, plus the structure and geometric patterns created by each plant's leaf formation.

Entries are judged individually for their cultural perfection, suitability, staging, and color effect.

The steering committee members for the exhibit are Pat Artis, Carol Fischer and Cynthia Lewis. The committee on designing and setting the display are Mary Brady, Karen Lundsgaard and Susan Sweetser.

Three members of the garden club, Pat Artis, Mary Brady and Gail Morganelli have all entered individual plants in the amateur division.

Christmas Parade Theme Contest Underway

With the Christmas Parade's "Theme Contest" already underway, George White, festival committee chairman, said the contest is the "first and very important step in the planning and preparation of the significant event."

All entries must be received by April 25. Mail entries to Ms. Carol Flynn, 79 Freeman St., N. Quincy, MA 02170.

The winner will be chosen the first week of May.

The theme winner receives a gift of appreciation from the committee, and invited to ride in an open convertible along the three mile parade route.

Vatican Decision Due In Star Of The Sea Appeal To Reopen As Parish

Another critical turning point is approaching, perhaps within a month, in the four-year-long fight to reopen the suppressed Mary, Star of the Sea Church in Squantum as a full-fledged Catholic parish.

The parish was ordered closed in January, 2004, by Sean Cardinal O'Malley, the archbishop of Boston, as part of an economy-driven reconfiguration of the archdiocese.

The Friends of Star of the Sea convinced the Cardinal to reopen the church as a chapel in July, 2005, and appealed the suppression to the Vatican, which suspended the Cardinal's decree in 2006.

"Now we just need the Vatican to take that final step in officially overturning the Cardinal's decree so that Star of the Sea can be established to full parish status," said Sean Glennon, co-chair of the Friends.

He predicted in the Friends' website that "perhaps within a month, a decision from the Apostolic Signatura could be forthcoming.

"There are two possible outcomes:

"The Promoter of Justice can rule in favor of Star of the Sea, and the case moves on to the next level, or

"The PJ finds in favor of the RCAB (the Archbishop). Star of the Sea can then appeal that decision, and move on to the next level.

"Or, we accept their Decision, walk away and run the risk that the RCAB will close us permanently."

Glennon left no doubt what the Friends will do no matter what the decision.

"Either way, the forthcoming decree should have no effect on our current situation," he said.

"And whether we proceed directly to the Apostolic Signatura or have to appeal, we still have to raise approximately $6,000."

The money will fund filing fees of about $1,500 at the Vatican and pay the Friends' advocate in Rome.

"We reached 15 per cent of our goal within the first 24 hours of our campaign," said Maureen Mazrimas, co-chair of the Friends.

"We view this as a sign that our members are anxious to reestablish a warm and vibrant faith community here in Squantum."

"Please keep in mind," added Glennon, "we have not yet received a decision from the current tribunal but we must be prepared to act immediately when we do hear from Rome."

Meanwhile, Glennon and Mazrimas noted that some former parishioners have proposed reestablishing the Squantum Catholic Club, the group that held the first mass in the peninsula on July 2, 1916, donated the land, built the church which was opened in 1924.

"We think this is a great idea and would like to explore that further," they reported in their website.

FIRE SAFETY

by Captain Tom Lyons
Fire Prevention Bureau
Quincy Fire Department

A Proactive Approach

In general, fire prevention requires a sustained effort at proactive code enforcement, not always entirely or fully embraced, making perseverance and our own educational efforts essential and quite important.

They typically both go hand and hand. We attempt to bridge our enforcement efforts with example; aware that an optimistic wish, "It can happen here" isn't enough. Through example and experience we convey that it can, but here's what you can do to avoid it.

Certain incidents also prompt us to convey the circumstances of fire to owners of similar occupancies, seeking out these occupants that we typically do not target, while informing them of the consequences when code and regulations are ignored. Here's an example.

A fire in a Cape Cod town caught our own Inspector Keegan's attention. There was a significant condition later discovered which intensified a fire that might have otherwise been confined to an oven. This condition raised the inspector's curiosity while he felt it important to study and convey his findings to the owners of similar occupancies in our own city.

He read what he could do about it; examined available photographs of the scene and called the investigating officer on the Cape, discussing cause, origin and various circumstances surrounding the fire. Here's what he discovered.

There was a fire in a radiant oven at a bakery. The oven had been used for years to bake bread. Typically the baker would broadcast flour and other substances over the top of the bread using atomized oils and butter as glazing in the process. A small amount of this flour and atomized oil and butter were drawn into the exhaust ductwork where over years it accumulated to the point where it totally occluded the duct.

An oven fire occurred this one day, while under normal conditions it might have been confined to that oven alone, in this incident, the fire extended into and through the ductwork into its combustible contents of accumulated flour and oil, further extending through the building. The building soon became a total loss.

With manpower and time constraints, we typically focus our attention on state mandates and proactive inspections at higher risk occupancies. Bakeries have not fallen into either category for us. However, when something like this incident catches our attention like it did for Inspector Keegan, we feel compelled to pass along a lesson learned.

Each bakery within Quincy has now been notified of the circumstances of this fire and the NFPA-standard, which applies stating that "...hoods, ductwork, etc., must be cleaned to bare metal at frequent intervals and inspected every six months or as needed."

This is one example of what fire prevention is all about. We will never know whether Inspector Keegan's efforts will make a difference; it's not possible to truly quantify efforts such as these.

However, it is through continuous efforts like this one, made on a daily basis, where it is possible for us to leave work feeling we have done what we can, and feel some satisfaction having done so.

That's what keeps us going. Be safe.

FOOT NOTES

by Joel Chariton, D.P.M.
Diplomate, American Board of Podiatric Surgery
Diplomate, American Board of Podiatric Orthopedics

RECOGNIZING PLANTAR FASCIITIS

If you notice pain in your foot where the arch meets the heel, and the pain is worse in the morning, you may have plantar fasciitis. The plantar fascia is a band of tissue that runs along the bottom of the foot from the heel to the forefoot. The fascia can become inflamed when it gets over-stretched or endures tiny tears. If you suffer from plantar fasciitis, you may experience a burning, stabbing, or aching pain, which is especially acute in the morning because the tissue has stiffened up overnight. The pain usually lessens as the day wears on, but it will return after you have been on your feet for a while.

Do you have pain that sounds like it might be plantar fasciitis? Do you suffer from other painful foot conditions? Don't hide behind these five dangerous words — maybe it will go away. Feet are vulnerable and prone to many complaints, but most problems don't just disappear on their own. Your podiatrist can treat them effectively and efficiently with medication, surgery, or other less-invasive procedures such as exercise and orthotics. Don't take feet for granted — call us at 781-986-3668 for an appointment. We're located at QUINCY MEDICAL CENTER. Office hours are also available at 999 North Main St., in the Randolph Medical Office Building, and Milton Medical Building in Suite 221

P.S.: Plantar fasciitis is the most common cause of heel pain.

MORE FOR YOU HERE AT HOME

Are you in the old "Shaws" building? - a question asked daily. With strong Quincy roots, QCU proudly boasts that the beautiful, stately building which stands in the former supermarket location is indeed, the financial institution's headquarters. What makes QCU's presence so strong aside from the brick facade and impressive size of the building? It's the history Quincy Credit Union has with the City of Quincy. Over 70 years ago, a group of Quincy Firefighters collaborated to help others meet financial obligations and savings goals by forming a credit union. Over the Credit Union's history, the field of membership has expanded to include all residents or employees in Norfolk, and Plymouth Counties, the Community of Dorchester and their family members. The Quincy Municipal City Workers and their family members still comprise a significant number of the credit union's 23,000 Members. This large percentage is due in part by the loyalty of Members who refer their family and friends for their first mortgage, auto loan, or savings plan. The name, location and operating charter of QCU may have changed, but its belief in people helping people is still the cornerstone of the Credit Union's service philosophy. QCU built its business on a strong commitment to the community and its Members. It is what differentiates it in the marketplace today. Quincy Credit Union has continued to give back to the community through major sponsorship to local youth programs and fundraisers. Then, there's the feeling of belonging.

Where else can you "belong" to your financial institution? Quincy Credit Union invites its "Members" to become part of the "credit union family". It is this strong commitment to being a part of something that fosters generation after generation of loyal Members and strong word of mouth endorsement, typically not found at the local banks. The success of Quincy Credit Union is attributed in part by three driving factors: the strong volunteer board of directors and dedicated staff; the ability to provide excellent service to loyal Members at every visit, and the willingness, and ability to quickly adapt to industry trends. QCU prides itself on its many no fee services, competitive interest rates on a wide variety of loans, and state of the art technology and security.

A Job Well Done

On Wednesday, Feb. 27, Officers Michael Powers and A.J. Carthas were dispatched to 1027 Southern Artery for a report of a Breaking and Entering into a motor vehicle in progress. Enroute to the call, the officers were updated by dispatch that a named caller (which, for court purposes means more credibility) from 1027 Southern Artery heard a loud "smash" outside of her apartment. When she looked out, she witnessed a gray sedan pulling away from another vehicle that was parked in the lot and had a smashed window.

LT. DAN MINTON

The officers arrived within the minute and entered in the apartment complex. Dispatch again notified the officers that the witness was still on the phone and she stated the suspect vehicle just left the parking lot. The officers turned off all lights on their cruisers and searched the parking lots for the suspect vehicle. Officer Powers found a gray sedan driving slowly through the parking lot and as he approached, the suspect vehicle changed from going very slow to darting between cars and then around the building and out of sight.

The officer quickly activated his headlights and accelerated around the corner of the building where there was a dead end, a dumpster, and numerous parked vehicles. As Officer Powers drove toward the dead end, he found the suspect vehicle parked and it appeared that no one was in it. Upon closer inspection, the officer discovered that both front seats appeared to be in the recline position and this raised his level of concern.

Officer Carthas joined Officer Powers and they approached the driver's side door and observed the driver and the front seat passenger leaning back with their seats reclined all the way and a third passenger laying across the back seat. The officers interpreted this as an act of evasion.

As the officers scanned the vehicle, they saw numerous cell phones located in the front seat between the driver and passenger, along with many loose CD's and three different sunglass cases. On the passenger floor there was a towel, a flashlight, a pair of grip gloves and a case with the tip of what looked like a screwdriver sticking out.

Officer Powers approached the driver side door and none of the suspects looked at him, so he knocked on the window and then all three occupants just looked at him. Since no one responded to him, Officer Powers opened the driver's side door and instructed the driver to give him his license and step out of the vehicle, to which he complied.

For officer safety, the driver was placed in handcuffs. The driver, (suspect #1) said the car was a rental. Officer Carthas kept the other two suspects in the car while he obtained identification from them. Officer Carthas then removed the suspects individually, handcuffed them and then pat frisked them.

Suspect #2 had a folding knife located in his front right pocket, which was confiscated. Each suspect was interviewed separately and asked what they were doing there and they each gave a different story.

Suspect #1, the driver, said that he "was just sleeping and I woke up to you at my window." He added he "used to live here and I was just giving them directions while my car was in Dorchester."

Suspect #2 said, "I'm picking up my girl", while suspect #3 stated they were "just leaving and had just dropped off the girls."

Officer Michael King arrived on scene and met the caller in the lobby, then transported her over to the scene to see if she was able to identify the vehicle she had seen earlier. Once on scene, the witness stated she was positive that the gray car the officers had stopped was the same one she saw pulling away from the damaged car.

Officer King then contacted the owner of the car with the broken window, who confirmed that his car window was not damaged when he last saw it. The victim stated that his GPS was missing.

With this information, the Officers informed the suspects of their Miranda rights and asked further questions. With all suspects handcuffed and monitored by Officer King, Officers Carthas and Powers searched the suspect vehicle and found five different cell phone chargers and an iPod in the center console. On the passenger floor there was a screwdriver and in the backseat underneath the driver's seat there was a Phillips DVD player. There was also a small CD case containing 16 CD's - all written in Indian.

MWRA Pipeline Project Will Restrict Traffic At West Quincy-Milton Line

Traffic restrictions will be enforced in West Quincy and East Milton beginning Tuesday, March 18, when the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority (MWRA) resumes work, weather permitting, on pipeline construction on Granite Avenue, Milton.

As part of the Southern Spine Distribution Mains Project, contractors will install 48-inch water lines on Granite Avenue from East Milton Square south to the Quincy line.

During the construction period, traffic will be restricted on Willard Street in Quincy and Granite Avenue in Milton. Traffic will be open only to abutters and to the patrons of the businesses and medical facilities on these roads.

In addition, Exit 9 off I-93 Northbound will be closed in the period between the morning and evening rush hours for approximately one month. Smart traveler notifications will be posted in advance of the ramp closure. Traffic exits from Exit 9 directly north into East Milton Square.

The next Exit 10 allows traffic traveling north on Granite Avenue into Dorchester over the Neponset River with a south turnaround before the drawbridge.

The Southern Spine Project involves the rehabilitation and replacement of three water transmission mains serving Boston, Milton and Quincy. The goal is to modernize the water distribution system in all communities and provide adequate capacity through access to sufficient supply through the new Blue Hills Covered Storage Facility.

supporters as Dr. Richard DeCristofaro, Superintendent of Schools, as well as Colleen Roberts, Director of Curriculum, the Teacher Mentor Planning Team, the Professional Development Team as well as principals and teachers.

Under the plan these libraries "will be updated at a minimum of once a year."

Bragg wants the libraries in next year's budget and has submitted her plan to the Budget and Finance Subcommittee of the School Committee.

The idea has worked in the past, according to Bragg who noted that "Before Proposition 2 1/2 in the 1980's, the Quincy Public Schools had an extensive Teacher Resource Library with a research assistant whereby teachers could request educational tools for their classrooms.

"More new teachers will be hired in the near future," said Bragg who said teachers has asked for these resources.

"I have asked teachers and one of the items which I talked about during my last School Committee campaign was a need for more teacher resources."

"Cleaner Logs" Are No Substitute

Q. My wife and I recently moved into a house with a nice fireplace, and we love to have a fire going almost every night. I want to make sure the chimney does not get too filled with creosote, however, so about once a month I burn a "cleaner log" that says it cleans the creosote from chimneys. A friend told me these logs are useless. What's your take? — Jamie T., Hartford, Conn.

A. While the cleaner log industry might argue with me, I'm inclined to side with your friend on this one. Burning matter — wood, paper and so on — creates ash, soot and other byproducts. Much of this floats up and out of the chimney, but some of it — especially heavier particles — drifts to the side and down and adheres to the inside of the chimney. It doesn't matter how "clean" an item burns — it still produces ash, soot, pitch and other residues. A "cleaner log" produces less of these items, but you're still burning something in your fireplace.

A better way to maintain your fireplace for the long run — and ensure nice, bright and warm fires for many years to come — is to avoid burning items that contribute more creosote deposits than others. These include trash, food items, glossy magazines, "cheap" wood like many pine logs, and green wood (fresh-cut wood that hasn't had time to season properly).

Once a year, in the late spring or summer, have a professional chimney cleaner inspect, clean and make any needed repairs to your chimney. He or she will check the system thoroughly — including a look up on the roof at the stack — and will scrub away creosote deposits. That's the only sure way to have a clean fireplace system.

Hints For Homeowners Going Green At Home

(NAPS) — An increasing number of homeowners have found an easy yet effective way to help the ecology and their own economy.

Every time they buy a home appliance, tune up their heating system or fix a leaky faucet, they make decisions that affect the environment. According to the Department of Energy, the cost of using appliances and heating and cooling equipment averages more than $1,200 each year. By following these tips, homeowners can have a house that's friendlier to the environment and to their bank account when it comes time to pay energy bills.

Shop Smart

Energy-efficient appliances can save you as much as a third off your energy bills, with similar savings in greenhouse gas emissions. If you're in the market for new appliances, you may want to consider products that the Environmental Protection Agency has certified as EnergyStar efficient.

Save Water

Simple things, such as fixing leaky toilets or keeping a pitcher of water in the refrigerator instead of running the tap until the water is cool, can add up to more than a drop in the bucket in water and money savings. More high-tech solutions include dual-flush toilets and water-saving washers and dishwashers.

Bright Idea

Considering putting lamps on timers in your home, so that they shut off at night in rooms you're not using. Also, switching to more energy-efficient, compact fluorescent light bulbs could add up, as these use 50 to 80% less energy than incandescents and last up to ten times longer.

Insulate

The right insulation can keep heating and cooling costs down. Fiber glass insulation, which is a longtime favorite, does a superior job of saving energy and is produced from renewable materials such as sand and recycled glass. It has a positive effect on the indoor environment by controlling heat loss and gain, reducing condensation and providing sound control. Some, including InsulSafe SP Premium Blowing Wool from CertainTeed, are certified for superior indoor air-quality performance.

Computer Seminar At Registry Of Deeds

Norfolk County Register of Deeds William P. O'Donnell will host an informational seminar on computer assisted land records research at the Registry of Deeds in Dedham Wednesday, March 26 from 4:30 to 5:30 p.m.

The seminar is intended for both real estate professionals and the general public.

The program will include a brief presentation, written reference materials, and hands-on exercises. There will be opportunities for both basic and advanced questions and answers.

Computer assisted land records research is available both at the Registry and on the Internet at www.norfolkdeeds.org.

There is no charge for the seminar, but persons planning to attend are asked to register by calling 781-461-6116. Include name, address and a daytime phone number when registering.

The Registry of Deeds, located at 649 High St., Dedham, is the principal office for real property in Norfolk County.

For more information, visit the registry website at www.norfolkdeeds.org or call 781-461-6116.

screening of Episode 2 ("Independence") of the mini-series along with some of the heaviest hitters from the political and entertainment worlds.

It began with a reception in Statuary Hall of the Capitol Building when Nancy Pelosi, the speaker of the House, introduced executive producer Tom Hanks, director Tom Hooper, Giamatti, McCullough and the contingent from Quincy, including Ethel Harmin and Mary Robinson of the Society of Colonial Dames as well as P.J. and Bob Foley.

The gathering then moved through the tunnels of the Capitol to the Cannon Building for the screening before a crowd of some 200 people. Congressman Bill Delahunt delivered the opening remarks, introduced Hanks and issued an open invitation to all — "Come to Quincy and see where it all began."

ecutive for choosing to screen the second, not the first, episode of "John Adams," then paid warm homage to McCullough while introducing him. McCullough took the podium and poignantly expressed his opinion on how significant Adams' role was in forming the nation.

The Boston premiere, held on Friday, March 7, at the Boston Public Library, also began with a reception filled with a who's who of the area's celebrities, including Quincy Mayor Tom Koch, who speculated enthusiastically on the influx of visitors the mini-series was expected to bring.

"We are prepared and are working with the Adams National Historic Park, Discover Quincy and all of the other tourism entities in the city," he said. "We are the keepers of a national treasure and we're looking forward to the economic impact that this movie will bring to Quincy."

The party then moved into the library's theater where Hanks again gave the opening statement before introducing McCullough.

"This is one of the single greatest nights of my life to be able to share this with my family," said the author, with a nod to his family members, some 30 strong, in the audience.

McCullough also spoke of John Adams's obsessive love of books and, reaching into his pocket, he pulled out Adams' first book, a volume of Cicero. Adams was 14 years old when he received it and he signed his name in it five times.

Hanks then took the stage one more time to introduce the screening. This time it was Episode One ("Join or Die!").

"It was a week to remember without any of it actually taking place in Quincy," said Mark Carey. "It's clear that the after effects of this epic series will impact Quincy for quite some time."

SPOTLIGHT ON HEALTH & FITNESS

by Andrea Wyatt
M.S.S., C.S.C.S.

What's the Best Time to Exercise?

Q. Is one time of day better than another to exercise? I've heard that to burn more calories it is better to exercise in the morning than in the afternoon or evening. Is this correct? Does it really matter what time of day I exercise?

A. The easy answer to this question is that your caloric expenditure has more to do with the level of your heart rate throughout the time you exercise, rather than the time of the day you exercise.

If you complete 45 minutes on the treadmill at 7 a.m. and keep your heart rate at around 150 beats per minute and burn 300 calories, you will burn the same amount of calories completing the exact same workout at 7 p.m.

The popular fitness myth that it's better to exercise in the morning came about because of the notion that you can burn more fat in the morning than in the evening. The argument goes that doing cardiovascular exercise the first thing in the morning without eating and after a full night's sleep will enable you to utilize a higher percentage of fat as a source of fuel.

Although this may happen to some extent, I would not base my workout schedule or routine on this idea. I would focus more on completing an exercise program and maintaining an intensity that will give you the most efficient caloric expenditure.

One of the first questions I have to ask is if you currently exercise at ALL? If not, then the first priority is to develop a well-balanced, safe, realistic and effective exercise routine that you can complete consistently. If you ARE currently participating in a workout routine, then you must determine when during the day you have the time and energy to exercise.

Some people enjoy exercising the first thing in the morning or before work because they can get it "out of the way," while others prefer to exercise once their day is complete as a means to relax and possibly socialize. The best time of the day to exercise is truly when you commit to it.

Try exercising at different times of day, and find a time when you feel comfortable, have the energy to complete your workout and can still function throughout the remainder of your day or night. Everyone is different, so find the best time for YOU, and commit to consistently completing your exercise program.

Always consult a physician before beginning an exercise program. If you have a fitness or training question, write to Andrea in care of King Features Weekly Service, P.O. Box 536475, Orlando, FL 32853-6475.

Declines In Colon Cancer Incidence, Mortality Highlight Importance Of Screening

March is National Colorectal Cancer Awareness Month, and the American Cancer Society continues to encourage all Americans at average risk to begin screening at age 50.

The fight against colon cancer has seen much progress in recent years—the 2007 Annual Report to the Nation on the Status of Cancer reported that death rates from colon cancer dropped 4.9% per year in men and 4.5% per year in women between 2002 and 2004, and that incidence rates have been declining steadily over the past decade in both men and women. These important declines can be attributed to prevention and early detection of the disease through screening, as well as increasingly effective treatment.

Despite this progress, colon cancer remains the third leading cause of cancer death in both men and women in the U.S. The American Cancer Society says 108,070 people in the U.S. are expected to be diagnosed with colon cancer in 2008, 40,740 with rectal cancer; and 49,960 are expected to die from the disease. Wider use of proven screening tests could save more than half of these lives.

"Colon cancer is one of only a few cancers that can be prevented through screening," said Janet McGrail, American Cancer Society State Vice President for Cancer Control.

"Precancerous polyps, from which colon cancers often develop, can be identified and removed before they become cancerous."

The American Cancer Society recommends that men and women at average risk for colon cancer begin screening at age 50, utilizing either the fecal occult blood test (FOBT) or fecal immunochemical test (FIT); endoscopy procedures such as a flexible sigmoidoscopy or colonoscopy; or radiological imaging with double-contrast barium enema. People at increased or high risk should talk to their doctor about the appropriate screening test and schedule for them.

Colorectal cancer screening rates have recently increased, possibly due to multiple efforts to increase awareness of the importance of screening, expansions in health care coverage for colorectal cancer screening, and the establishment of screening programs in certain states.

However, in spite of these advances, only about half of men and women age 50 and older have been screened. A recent report from the American Cancer Society shows that the uninsured are less likely to receive recommended cancer screening tests, including colon cancer screening. While nearly half (48.3%) of men and women ages 50 to 64 with private insurance had a recommended colorectal cancer screening test in the past ten years, only one in five (18.8%) of those who lacked insurance had received recommended screening. Further efforts are clearly needed to remove financial barriers to screening and to encourage testing.

Colorectal cancer risk increases with age, with more than 90% of cases diagnosed in individuals aged 50 and older. A personal or family history of the disease also increases risk. Studies indicate that men and women who are overweight are more likely to develop and die from colon cancer and a diet high in red or processed meat is known to increase risk.

For behavior and prevention recommendations that can reduce risk of colon cancer and other cancers, individuals can take the Society's Great American Health Check. The Great American Health Check focuses on the importance of prevention and early detection by helping consumers understand what cancer tests are right for them and how to adopt healthy lifestyle behaviors throughout the year that may reduce their cancer risk.

The Great American Health Check consists of an online health tool available at www.cancer.org/greatamericans, where users can access a personalized guide on which cancer-screening tests are appropriate, as well as healthy behavior recommendations based on their response. DENTISTRY for the 21st Century

by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

MORE THAN JUST A SMILE

There is much more to oral health than simply having a nice smile. Left untreated, oral diseases and conditions can adversely impact the overall quality of one's health. In fact, periodontal (gum) disease has been linked with stroke, heart disease, and pre-term and low-birth-weight infants. There is also research to show that infections inside the mouth can affect major organs of the body. In addition, poor oral health can alter the digestive process, leading to intestinal problems. Moreover, because more than 90 percent of systemic diseases show signs in the mouth, the dentist may be the first health professional to alert patients of their presence. Thus, patients should look at a dental examination as more than a "tooth checkup."

Dentistry today is constantly changing, and new technologies and treatment methods abound. Here at our office we are committed to keeping up with the new practices and providing our patients with the best dental-care experience one can find. Our goal is to help preserve your natural teeth for a lifetime. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street, where we take the time to be gentle and provide the best possible dental care in a friendly and comfortable environment. PH: 617-479-6220. We offer the services of anesthesiology with a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Visit us on the web at www.quincydentist.com.

P.S. An important part of any dental examination involves looking for possible signs of oral cancer, which usually begins in the tongue and floor of the mouth.

SPORTS

Accomplishment Marks North Quincy History-Making Season

By SEAN BRENNAN

A season that was filled with accomplishment (both individual and team) and history making came to an end last Thursday (March 6) night at Bridgewater-Raynham High School for the North Quincy Red Raider girls' basketball team.

The Raiders fell in defeat in the Division I South Sectional semifinals 53-46 to New Bedford High School, thus ending a season that saw them win fifteen games (15-6 overall record); capture a second straight Atlantic Coast League North Division championship and advance to the program's first-ever appearance in the Division I South Sectional semifinals.

North Quincy, which began its 2007-2008 season with three consecutive losses, finished their league schedule with twelve straight wins, including two over city rival Quincy High School, and entered the post-season as the No. 8 seed.

The Raiders, behind junior guard Siobhan Carnell's 28 points and senior forward Rebecca Goreham's 12 points and 14 rebounds knocked off Bridgewater-Raynham HS 67-58 in the first round.

Carnell (26 points), Goreham (14 points, 19 rebounds) and junior Catherine O'Connell (13 points) propelled North Quincy over No. 1 seeded Franklin HS, 65-57 in overtime, in the quarterfinals, setting up the team's game against No. 5 seeded New Bedford in the semifinals last week.

Against New Bedford (which beat Sandwich HS in the South Sectional finals over the weekend), North Quincy trailed after one quarter (15-12). After watching the Whalers extend the lead to 21-12 two minutes into the second quarter, Carnell and Goreham ignited a Red Raider run over the next five minutes of play.

Carnell and Goreham both scored four points each as North, down by nine points, went on a scoring run that saw them cut the lead down to two points. New Bedford responded to the Raiders scoring punch with a mini-run of their own to end the half. At the break, the Whalers held a slim three-point advantage at 25-22.

When the teams came back onto the court to play the final sixteen minutes, New

GIRLS' BASKETBALL

Bedford and North Quincy traded baskets on each team's first possession of the third quarter, but it was the Whalers who capitalized with baskets in transition off two Red Raider misses. With just under six minutes remaining in the quarter, New Bedford upped its lead to 30-25.

Goreham, playing in her final high school game, knocked down a fade-away jumper on North's next possession to draw her team to within three points at 30-27, but that would be it for scoring for both teams over the next three minutes.

New Bedford finally broke the scoring drought and the Raiders spirit with an 8-0 scoring run to end the third quarter. With eight minutes to play in the South Sectional semifinals, the Whalers held a double-digit lead at 41-31.

North Quincy did its best to come back in the fourth, but with a little more than three minutes to play in the game, the Raiders trailed 47-39. But this year's Red Raider team has been resilient all season long and this game would be no different.

NQHS Baseball To Hold Spring Training Clinic

The North Quincy High School baseball program, in an effort to raise monies for the upcoming season, will host a Spring Training Clinic on Sat., April 12 at O'Rourke Field.

The camp is open to all kids ages 6 to 13 that are looking to get a head start on their spring baseball season. The camp will run from 8:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m., with registration beginning at 8 a.m.

Cost will be $30 and all money will go to support NQHS baseball.

The camp will offer instruction in all areas of the game including pitching, hitting, fielding (both infield and outfield), base running, throwing technique and stretching. Instructors will include the NQHS coaching staff and players along with several college players.

Any question regarding the clinic, email nqhsbaseball@yahoo.com for the answer.

Four Quincy-North Quincy Track Stars Heading to NYC

Four young track stars recently boarded a van from Quincy to New York City to make city track and field history.

Erica Brady, Mary Schwartz, Jessica Davis (all from NQHS) and Alyssa Mullen (QHS) traveled down I-95 to attend and compete in the National Scholastic Classic of Indoor Track and Field in New York City. They will be competing in the 4,000-meter distance medley relay, a race comprised of a 1,200-meter, 400-meter, 800-meter and 1,600-meter leg.

The Quincy Public Schools applied for and received "Cooperative" status for all-track programs, so QHS and NQHS are combined, approved by the MIAA (governing body for all high school in Massachusetts).

But due to "out-of-season" competition rules the girls have to represent the Quincy Track Club (QTC), which they will do proudly because the QTC is the largest youth track club in the United States.

All four will be accompanied by Q-NQ head coach Geoff Hennessy, and the group will be staying at the Marriott-LaGuardia while competing at the New Balance Track and Field Center in Manhattan, formerly known as the 168th Street Armory.

Runners Bios:

Brady, a NQHS freshman, is one of a handful of talented Massachusetts' freshmen in distance running. During the fall, Brady won the Baystate-McIntyre Invitational, as well as the Catholic Memorial Invitational.

She will run the 1,200-meter leg in NYC.

This fall she was voted an Atlantic Coast League all-star and won the ACL championship in the one-mile with a best mile time of 5:26.

Schwartz was the "Jane-of-all-trades" this year for Q-NQ track program. She qualified for states this winter in four different events (600, 1000, Mile, 4 x 800 relay).

She will run the 400-meter leg in NYC.

She is also a cross-country runner and spends her summers helping coach younger children in the QTC.

Davis has improved, perhaps, more than any other

O'Connell helped lead a 5-1 scoring charge that cut New Bedford's lead down to 48-44 with two minutes left, but that would be as close as North would get. The Whalers responded with a huge bucket to make the score 50-44, and when the Raiders where forced to foul, New Bedford stepped up and hit their foul shots.

"The team believed that they could come back," said head coach Michael Jorgenson. "They have done it several times this season, and until the horn sounds, they think the game is within grasps. I thought so, too."

It didn't happen this time because when the final horn sounded, New Bedford had advanced with the 53-46 victory.

The season may have ended three wins short of a state title, but North Quincy has a lot to be proud of. Number one on that list may just be they way the team as a group came together after the 0-3 start.

"They never gave up or changed their work ethic after we started 0-3," added Jorgenson. "They believed the whole time, and even in defeat, they are a classy bunch."

The leading scorers for North in the semifinals were Carnell (13 points), Goreham (10 points, six rebounds) and O'Connell (11 points, five rebounds).

The Red Raiders will graduate seven seniors off this year's team. That list includes Rebecca Goreham, Rachel Goreham, Mary Kate Stille, Simone Leary, Paige Bonanni, Kasey O'Connell and Kerry Coughlin.

Notes: NQ shared the ACL North crown in 2006-07 with Whitman-Hanson HS... New Bedford defeated Sandwich HS 65-62 at UMass-Boston on 3/8/08 in the South finals... Carnell averaged 22.3 points per game in the tournament... Goreham became a member of the 1,000-point club this season... NQ lost to Dufree HS 62-50 in a home first-round game in 2007.

John Storella-Mullin Having Standout Senior Year At Tabor

John Storella-Mullin, a life long Quincy resident, is having himself a standout senior year in the classroom and on the athletic fields at Tabor Academy (Marion, MA).

In the classroom, Storella-Mullin received honors award recognition for the first semester grades.

This past fall, he was captain of the Tabor varsity football team and was selected by the coaches to the 2007 All-New England Class B Prep School Football Team and the All-Colonial League First Team.

Storella-Mullin was the only Tabor football player selected for these awards.

This spring, he will be playing in his third season on the varsity lacrosse team.

Storella-Mullin has been accepted and will be attending Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute (RPI)

JOHN STORELLA-MULLIN, a Quincy resident, has enjoyed a special senior year at Tabor Academy on both the athletic fields and in the classroom. He will be attending RPI next year and will play lacrosse for them in the fall.

in Troy, New York studying in the field of science and will play lacrosse next fall for RPI as part of the Class of 2012.

athlete has on the Q-NQ team. She was an ACL honorable mention all-star. Her best time this winter is 12:09 in the two-mile and she has also run a 5:37 mile.

She will run the 800-meter leg in NYC.

She also works summers helping children in the QTC.

Mullen a former three-sport athlete (soccer, basketball, softball) at QHS decided to give track a try after winning the Degan Memorial Road Race last fall, but no one could have predicted what she would accomplish this past winter.

After qualifying in five different events for the state meet, she set her sights on the mile. She ran a 5:18 mile in the MSTCA elite meet, breaking a 20-year old QHS record, and then went after the two-mile record.

After getting nosed out for victory in the two-mile at the ACL championships (despite clocking an 11:55 time), she stunned the crowd at the Reggie Lewis Center with a come-from-behind 11:22 fourth place finish in the Division I State Championships (a 33-second improvement).

She will run the 1,600-meter leg in NYC.

The expenses incurred by the travel party will amount to around $500 for rooms, gas, meals, entry fees and USATF cards. Any donation would be appreciated.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19)

You could have some problems with doubters who don't share your enthusiasm for that new project you're supporting. But use the facts to win them over to your side.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Someone is impressed by how you managed to get your case to the right people, despite attempts to keep you on the outside looking in. Expect to hear more about this.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Good for you — your gift for seeing both sides of a dispute helps cool down a potentially explosive workplace situation. Some family-related tensions also begin to ease.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Your determination to prove yourself is put to the test by midweek. Counting all the positive factors you have going for you will help you get over your self-doubt. Good luck.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Several co-workers are still determined to resist coming over to your side. But don't let that stop you from presenting your proposal to the people who count. Stay the course.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) You might prefer to be taken on faith and not have to prove yourself. But the truth is, you need to offer more facts if you hope to persuade people to accept what you say.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) A family situation takes an unwelcome turn. While others might be looking around for answers, you'll soon sort it all out logically, and the matter will be resolved.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Someone might try to create doubt about your reliability for his or her own agenda. But your reputation and your colleagues' long-standing faith in you saves the day.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) An unexpected change of plans forces you to come up with an alternative by the end of the week. Look for colleagues to offer valuable suggestions.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Nothing upsets the Goat as much as broken promises. But before you vent your anger, consider that this could ultimately prove to be a blessing in disguise.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) An old workplace problem you thought you had solved for good resurfaces. But this time, co-workers will take a more active role in helping you deal with it.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Be careful not to be misled by a negative reaction to one of your more important projects. If you believe in it, then it has worth and is, therefore, worth staying with.

BORN THIS WEEK: Everyone appreciates your gift for finding beauty, even where it seems least likely to exist.

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

ages the participation of everyone, and so the Hagadah used is very 'hands-on'; everyone who wishes to do so has the opportunity to read and to lead the group.

"This year," the pastor continued, "our church's Sunday School students will be contributing to the Seder in a new way: they're going to be making the charoseth."

The meal will be pot luck, so everyone is asked to bring a salad, main course, or des-

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

"Give us the fortitude to endure the things which cannot be changed, and the courage to change the things which should be changed and the wisdom to know one from the other." — Oliver J. Hart

Today, perhaps more than at any other time, it takes a lot of courage to bear witness to our beliefs, to avoid compromise when we know it is wrong, and to stand resolutely by our convictions when conscience says we must. It takes courage at times to agree. And it takes courage to disagree when we disagree we must. When we know we should do that which is right, and we don't have the courage to do it, it shows a lack of trust in God. It shows we don't realize He is the source and supplier for courage to face any disconcerting reality of life.

There is no substitute for courage. Nor is there a substitute for a trust in God. Would it not seem when you have the one, you have the other?

Officer Powers asked the driver if there was anything in the trunk and he replied "no." Once the trunk was opened, two more large CD cases were found, with numerous CD's in them, all with Chinese writing on them. All three suspects were asked if they could speak or read either Indian or Chinese and none would reply.

Suspect #1 then said the CD's were his girlfriends, who "live in one of these buildings." Officer Powers asked suspect #1 to have her come out numerous times but he wouldn't make the call.

A further search of the trunk revealed two GPS systems, one matching the one that was in the victim's car. Inside the trunk, there were also little pieces of broken auto glass on the otherwise spotless interior. Officer King then brought the victim over to the suspect's car, where he verified that one of the GPS units was his.

All three suspects denied ownership of anything found in the suspect car. The driver/suspect #1 stated that everything in the vehicle belonged to his girlfriend, but again he refused to make a call to help clear up any misunderstandings. The front passenger/suspect #2 would only say, "It's not my car". The back seat passenger/suspect #3 said, "I was asleep the whole time - when I woke up all this *^% was in the car."

All of the unclaimed cell phones, Ipods, CD's, CD cases, sunglasses and cases, GPS's, and the DVD player were confiscated and transported to the station as evidence.

The burglars tools (to put over the window to muffle the sound of the glass breaking) were also tagged as evidence.

All three suspects were placed under arrest and transported to the station for booking on the charges of: B&E Motor Vehicle in the Nighttime, Possessing Burglars Tools/Malicious Destruction to Motor Vehicle over $250 and Receiving Stolen Property over $250.

At the station, it was determined that suspect #3 had an alias and a trespass warrant. Officer Powers also noted in his investigation that the suspect's rental vehicle was in pristine condition and in the lower left hand corner of the windshield there was a Massachusetts State Police "Safe Driving Tips" flyer, folded in half so that all that was facing out was the Massachusetts State Police patch. This was taped to the windshield. The rental vehicle is almost an exact replica of numerous unmarked State Police Dodge Chargers (same exact color) throughout the state. When asked why and how this flyer was folded in that manner and taped to the windshield, the suspects would not answer. The Officers concurred that the suspects used this ploy to impersonate Police Officers, but their actions did not meet all the elements of the law to charge them with an offense. Nice Work!

POLICE IMPERSONATORS: Recently, there has been a rash of incidents where people impersonate Police Officers, most notably in Chelsea where two men entered a home after identifying themselves as Detectives, showing the residents their badges. The suspects then searched the home and stole cash and other items before they left.

Tips to prevent this from happening to you: the first question you should be asking yourself is why the Police would be at your house. Do they have a reasonable story as to why they are there? If you have any reason to believe that they are not Detectives or Police Officers, call the Police Department and ask for a uniformed Police Officer to respond to your home to verify their identity. If a Detective states that he has a search warrant for your home, again, ask yourself what you could have done to prompt a court order to allow your home to be searched. In most cases, Detectives would have uniformed Officers with them when conducting a search. When in doubt, be sure to contact the Police Department so that we can confirm that they should be at your home!

RECENT SCAM: Citizens are receiving recorded calls instructing them to dial "1" for Mastercard and "2" for Visa. Just hang up!

Old Celtic Eucharistic Liturgy At Union Congregational Sunday

St. Patrick's Day will be observed Sunday at the Union Congregational Church, 136 Rawson Rd., Wollaston, with its annual Celtic Worship Service, adapted from an eighth-century Celtic Eucharistic Liturgy by the Rev. John Carl Swanson, the pastor.

The Rev. Swanson will preach on the Palm Sunday story found in the Gospel of John and will draw a parallel to Patrick's return to Ireland following his escape from slavery and his subsequent conversion of the native tribes to Christianity.

The 10 a.m. service will be followed by an Irish tea in Union's Fellowship Hall. The Church Choir will perform "St. Patrick's Breastplate." For more information, call the Church office at 617-479-6661.

Councillors Plan Hearings To Bring Quincy College Campus Back Downtown

City councillors plan to conduct hearings in an effort to bring the entire Quincy College campus back to downtown Quincy as soon as possible.

The council's Downtown Committee will schedule future discussions of the issue.

Councillors approved the resolution filed by Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi who noted that Ward 1 Councillor Leo Kelly had filed a similar request in late August. Raymondi is a former member of the college Board of Governors.

Raymondi and Kelly have both cited the economic loss to businesses in Quincy Center when the college moved 2000 of its students to a Newport Avenue campus in North Quincy last fall.

Quincy College will maintain a campus at both locations and plans to invest over $1 million in a science facility in Quincy Square.

In his motion, Raymondi noted that "students, faculty and staff infused thousands and thousands of dollars yearly into the downtown economy. The absence of the college downtown has had a negative impact on the downtown business community."

In addition, Raymondi noted the college would be best served in downtown Quincy with access to public transportation and parking.

Quincy College opened its Newport Avenue campus in September after the college's president, Sue Harris, tried unsuccessfully to find sufficient space in downtown Quincy.

The college, with the council's approval, executed a five-year lease with a three-year extension for the 150 Newport Avenue property.

At the time of the original vote, councillors agreed to work to bring the college back to downtown Quincy.

FINAL BEAM is hoisted into place atop the science and technology building at the new Quincy High School by the 230-foot crane. Note the tree placed on the beam to signify that no one died on the often perilous job.

First New Building Topped Off At QHS

They placed a fir tree on a beam four stories high above Woodward Avenue Tuesday morning, signifying the successful completion of the framework of the first building in the new $126 million Quincy High School.

When Phase 2 of the project is completed in February, 2009, the new school will have a 128,000 square foot science and technology wing and workers will go on to a 224,000 square foot gym, auditorium and administration wing.

Shortfalls, Reduced Revenues

Mayor, Council Grapple With Inherited Deficits

By LAURA GRIFFIN

Auditor Rick Fitzpatrick and James Fatseas, the mayor's Chief of Staff, told city councillors Monday that the city will face major financial hurdles in the 2009 budget as the city copes with millions of dollars in major shortfalls and reduced revenue resources.

"We are not pointing fingers," said Fatseas, referring to Mayor Thomas Koch's promise of "full transparency and accountability."

However, Koch who's been in office less than three months, has, also, pledged to identify problem issues and address them.

Earlier in Monday's meeting, councillors spent considerable time with Information Technology Chief Chuck Phelan who described a six month old $61,000 communications bill left over from the previous budget.

Councillors questioned the reasons for the extended delay in paying the bill and referred the issue to the Finance Committee.

Topping both Fitzpatrick and Fatseas's list is an estimated $3.9 deficit in the Water and Sewer Enterprise Accounts, attributed by them, in part, to laggard collections and too low of a sewer rate. Both said that no absolute answers have yet been determined.

"We are currently reviewing the process from start to finish," said Fatseas of the mayor's efforts which include meetings with all related department heads, as well as seeking advice from the Governor's Division of Local Services.

In addition, Fitzpatrick described a $1.3 million deficit in the snow and ice budget and another $1.1 million in unfunded contractual obligations due employees.

Quincy has a bad reputation for being late in paying vendors, said Fatseas who added, "We have been informed that some vendors are pricing city services at a premium to offset these carrying costs."

Fatseas reminded the council that $1.2 million will be due in 2008 as the first payment for the $32 million Honeywell Energy program. He said that the city's bond counsel recommended different financing options which may have been cheaper.

Estimated $3.9 Million Deficit In Account

Davis Says City Should Shut Off Water If Bills Not Paid

City Council President Jay Davis said Monday that the city should shut off the water for ratepayers when water and sewer bills are not paid.

Davis spoke after Auditor Rick Fitzpatrick and James Fatseas, the mayor's chief of staff, described an estimated $3.9 million deficit in the water and sewer enterprise accounts.

Fitzpatrick and Fatseas outlined a number of reasons for the potential deficit. Both cited lagging collections and billing problems.

"We should be able to shut off their water," Davis said after explaining that some ratepayers deliberately hold off payments in order to gain tax benefit. Others believe the late payers are waiting for revisions and corrections in the city's billing system.

Davis explained that water and sewer bills can not be charged off on the federal income tax, but real estate taxes can. When the water and sewer bill is overdue and becomes a property lien after a year, it also becomes a charge-off as a real estate tax payment.

Davis believes some property owners are using this logic and should lose the incentive by losing access to water.

Quincy District Court Hailed For Leadership

A total of 33,037 cases were filed in Quincy District Court in Fiscal 2007, nearly three times the average filing in the 62 district courts throughout Massachusetts.

And that, said District Court Chief Justice Lynda M. Connolly, is a tribute to the leadership team in the courthouse at One Dennis Ryan Parkway in Quincy.

"The ability of the Quincy District Court to adjudicate the wide range of criminal, civil housing, domestic abuse mental health and other types of cases speaks volumes about the efforts of each of the individuals," she said.

"There is no doubt that the leadership exhibited by First Justice Mark S. Coven, Clerk-Magistrate Arthur H. Tobin and Acting Chief Probation Officer Brian Weber has been instrumental in the success of the District Court."

The Quincy Court serves the Norfolk County communities of Quincy, Braintree, Cohasset, Holbrook, Milton, Randolph and Weymouth.

Pleads Innocent, Held On BailHomeless Man Fails In Bank Robbery, Suicide

A 35-year-old homeless man, unsuccessful at both bank robbery and suicide, pleaded innocent Tuesday in Quincy District Court and was ordered held in $5,000 cash bail for a probable cause hearing April 15.

Reginald B. Raines was charged with unarmed robbery, assault and battery on a police officer and resisting arrest in the Monday afternoon incident at the Citizens Bank branch at 1200 Hancock St.

Raines was taken by police only moments after a man slipped a bank teller a confusing note that apparently demanded $3,000. The note read, "Held by force render cash amount 3"3 grand or die."

"Are you serious?" asked the teller. Then convinced that he was, the teller gave the man the money and he fled. The teller managed to trip a silent alarm while he was getting the money.

The man fled down Coddington Street, where he ran into Officer Joseph McGunnigle, who tried to stop him. He pushed McGunnigle away and ran down Spear Street where he was tackled by Officers Thomas Pepdjonovic and John Leuchte.

Police said Raines had $660 on his person, which was returned to the bank and he was identified as the robber by bank personnel.

Police said Raines tried to commit suicide Monday in his cell at the Quincy Police Station and District Court Judge Mark Coven ordered him to undergo a mental evaluation. He was kept on a suicide watch overnight.

An Easter Miracle On Shirley Street?

Did someone say "miracle?"

The word comes to mind when Sean and Erin Glenn relate what happened when they buried a statue of St. Joseph on the lawn of their home on Shirley Street, West Quincy.

A church tradition says that European nuns in olden times used to bury a medal with the likeness of St. Joseph, the patron saint of home selling, on land they hoped to acquire for a convent.

The Glennons planned to put their house on the market after Easter so they buried the statue of St. Joseph in their front yard, upside down so that the feet point to heaven.

After the home had been sold, the statue was to have been removed from the ground and given a place of honor in their new into place by crane at 11:45 a.m. after it was signed by some 30 of the project's workers in the tradition of the construction industry. The tree was added to indicate no one died on the job.

Brief remarks were made by School Committee members Anne Mahoney and Kevin Mulvey, City Councillor At Large Michael McFarland, Principal Frank Santoro and Assistant Principal Maureen McNeil.

Also Eugene Caruso, project manager, Tishman Construction Corporation; Ed Frennette, principle, Symmes Maini & McKee Associates; and Jim Driscoll, project manager, Gilbane Building Company.

The new high school is being constructed in three phases planned to minimize disruption to classes already in session. The completion of the project is scheduled for December, 2010.

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

• On March 23, 1839, the initials "O.K." are first published in The Boston Morning Post. Meant as an abbreviation for "oll correct," a popular slang misspelling of "all correct." OK steadily made its way into the everyday speech of Americans.

• On March 18, 1852, in New York City, Henry Wells and William G. Fargo join with several other investors to launch their namesake business. In July 1852, Wells Fargo & Co. shipped its first loads of freight from the East Coast to mining camps scattered around northern California.

• On March 17, 1901, paintings by the late Dutch painter Vincent van Gogh are shown in Paris. Eleven years earlier, van Gogh had committed suicide without any notion that his work was destined to win acclaim beyond his wildest dreams. In his lifetime, he had sold only one painting.

• On March 19, 1916, eight Curtiss "Jenny" planes of the First Aero Squadron take off from Columbus, N.M., in the first combat air mission in U.S. history.

They flew a support mission for the 7,000 U.S. troops who invaded Mexico to capture Mexican revolutionary Pancho Villa.

• On March 22, 1929, Will Rogers signs with Fox to write and star in four films for $600,000. His films included "Happy Days" (1929), "A Connecticut Yankee" (1929) and "Ambassador Bill" (1931). In 1930, Rogers' radio show — full of his trademark humor and thoughtful political observations — was a hit.

• On March 20, 1965, President Lyndon Johnson notifies Alabama Governor George Wallace that he will use federal authority to call up the Alabama National Guard in order to supervise a planned civil-rights march from Selma to Montgomery.

• On March 21, 1983, the last episode of the long-running TV series "Little House on the Prairie" airs. The series, based on the children's book by Laura Ingalls Wilder, premiered in 1974 and was one of television's 25 most highly rated shows for seven of its nine seasons.

You can never be too sure what to expect at the Quincy Partnership's annual St. Patrick's Day dinner-roast.

But this year you could be sure of one thing: it wasn't going to be a testimonial or comeback rally for former Mayor Bill Phelan.

You didn't have to go inside the Quincy Lodge of Elks to get that message.

Outside, in clear view of everyone arriving, was a table with a Phelan sign on it-and one chair.

That, someone explained, was for him claiming to be the "outsider" in last November's mayoral election.

But there were plenty of jabs, zingers and barbs, for just about everyone, including new Mayor Tom Koch.

Most of them were in good fun, a few maybe a little questionable, but if you're a politician and don't get zinged at this roast, it's like being ignored.

The event was co-emceed by City Clerk Joseph Shea and real estate manager/developer Dan Flynn.

Bob Curry welcomed the crowd of 300 and noted that Koch was a founding member of the Quincy Partnership in 1986.

SHEA

"We couldn't mention that last year," Flynn jumped in.

Flynn held up a copy of The Quincy Sun and turned to a story about Rep.

Ron Mariano being presented with a glass encased firefighter's axe by Local 792 as a thank-you for helping to get the Fire Department a new rescue truck.

"That's the first time Mariano ever got the axe in front," Flynn said. "It's usually in his back."

Koch told of his helicopter ride with Phelan and other mayors that went something like this:

"I'm going to throw out a $100 bill to make someone happy," he quoted Phelan.

Someone suggested he throw out 10 $10 bills instead, to make 10 people happy. Someone else suggested 100 $1 bills to make 100 people happy.

And another: "Why don't you throw yourself out and make everyone happy."

Phelan was invited to take a turn at the mike. It must have been something like walking through the lion's den. But he got a warm reception.

Koch stood up at his table to greet him and the pair shook hands. The crowd liked that.

PHELAN

"Don't worry, they told me," Phelan said. "Bumper stickers don't vote. Teachers don't live in Quincy. But it's so good to be here with all my friends." (A ripple of laughter across the room.)

The hardest part about losing, he said, wasn't so much leaving projects (Quincy High School, downtown Quincy redevelopment) unfinished.

"It's that there were still people out there I hadn't — off yet."

Flynn: "Yeah, the two of them."

Phelan seemed to be having a good time. Relaxed. Personable. And the pro-Koch crowd seemed to enjoy having him there.

"If he had shown more of this side of him the last six years," said someone at one of the tables, "he might still be mayor."

Shea did his traditional Johnny Carson-like "Amazing Shea-Zack" routine with Flynn in the Ed McMahon role.

Sampling:

Q: The ushers at Sacred Heart Church, Roy or Gary at Tony's Clam Shop, Steve McGrath at City Hall.

A: The people to see for summer job applications.

Q: U.S. Atty. Gen. Deval Patrick, Governor Tim Cahill, Ambassador to Cuba Bill Delahunt.

A: Three reasons why Quincy supports Barack Obama.

Q: You get hired by Sheriff Mike Bellotti. You go into a magician's box. You go for a ride with Whitey Bulger.

A: What are three things you do and then you disappear.

Shea, in another role as Pope Benedict XVI, robes and all, said he was bringing 10 new commandments to Quincy. Among them:

"Thou shalt not take the mayor's name in vain.

"Thou shalt not vote for any Republican, nor any candidate named Tobin, Bellotti or Phelan.

"Thou shalt make sure the parking lot of Sacred Heart Church (Koch's parish) is plowed.

"Keep holy the Sabbath. Thou shalt not fire Phelan's people on the Sabbath."

Mike Bellotti, always a favorite at this event, got his turn at bat.

"This is the flu season. Drew Scheele (Health Commissioner) says wash your hands and avoid all human contact. Bill Phelan should be all set.

"Mayor Koch, isn't he doing a great job. Fulfilling his promises. He told us he would bring back all the Sheets people and he did."

Bellotti explained why an inmate recently escaped:

"He heard Jay Davis was the court appointed attorney.

"He was late for Tom Koch's prayer meeting.

"The mayor is going outside the department for the (new) police chief and he wanted to apply early.

"He heard Kevin Coughlin was the probation officer.

"Bruce Tait said he could."

Bellotti also had a few things he said you won't see in Quincy:

The Frank Bellotti Senior Center. (He endorsed Phelan.)

Dan Raymondi saying, "Geez, I never looked at it that way."

Arthur Tobin letting another son-in-law run for mayor.

"Pat McDermott having a bad hair day.

"Bill Phelan saying, 'It's not you, it's me. It's me.'"

Flynn urged everyone to "drink and have a good time," declaring Quincy police don't pull anyone over anymore. (A reference to the drop in issued traffic citations and the feud between Police Chief Robert Crowley and the patrolman's union.)

Crowley jumped up and took the microphone.

"They don't pull over anyone but me," he said. (A citation was issued to him last year that didn't hold.)

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A POSTCARD view of Washington Street in Quincy Point taken almost 100 years ago. This view is looking south from in front of the fire station. The old Quincy Point Congregational Church was just out of sight on the right. The large white house on the left was the Yule Hotel. Postmarked in 1912, this was one of a series of postcards published by George Gragg who had a drugstore just beyond the hotel on the corner of Baker Avenue. In World War I the U.S. government, through its Housing Corporation, took all the properties on the left from Washington Street to the Town River and demolished the buildings to build housing for shipyard workers. The trolley tracks on the right were originally laid out in 1888 as the East Weymouth line of the Quincy Street Railway Co. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

Enough With The Squabbling

Enough with the squabbling between Quincy Police Chief Crowley and the Quincy Patrolman's Union, specifically Bruce Tait.

Yes, it seems the union got its wish, as Chief Crowley will retire this June.

All I know is, and some of my dear friends won't like it, but I believe the Chief brought back a sense of order and discipline, a professional attitude, back to the Quincy Police Department.

I hope the new incoming chief continues to bring order to the department. And I hope the union works with the new chief to bring out the best in the department so it serves the residents of Quincy. No more bickering, please.

No more childish behavior. No more fingerpointing. "Protect and Serve."

Thank You, Firefighters

This past Sunday I marched in the annual St. Patrick's Day parade. I parked my car at the North Quincy firehouse and want to thank all the firefighters at Engine 2 and Ladder 1 for helping me with my car-parking problem now that I live in Dorchester.

As I waited for my ride, I did a little standup routine for the firefighters but the more jokes I told, the more they asked me when my ride would be arriving.

Seriously, there was a whole lot of laughing going on. When my ride got there, the firefighters clapped and I retold all my jokes all over again to the two Quincy guys I rode over to the parade with.

The more jokes I told, the faster I thought the car was going. Hey, the jokes weren't the best in the world but they weren't that bad, either.

Once again thanks to the group that was on Sunday morning at the firehouse for parking my car and putting up with my jokes.

City Council Expected To Pass 1942 Budget

By FRANK MCCAULEY

Although the deadline is not until Friday, the city council is expected to pass the 1942 budget at its meeting (March 16) at 7 p.m. in Harry Tirrell Hall.

The budget will take precedence over other business, Council President William W. Jenness said after stating that he would entertain a motion to suspend the regular order of business to make passage of the appropriation order possible.

With $215,000 already slashed from the budget, the finance committee will roll up its sleeves with the intention of completing the rest of the city departments.

Schooner Thomas W. Larson Historical Society Topic March 27

Historian Thomas Hall, author of the definitive work on the seven-masted schooner Thomas W. Larson, will speak on the Fore River-built ship Thursday, March 27, at 7:30 p.m. at the Quincy Historical Society, 8 Adams St.,

Quincy Center.

The Lawson, built in 1903 and named for the Scituate copper baron, was the only seven-masted schooner ever built and the largest schooner ever constructed.

Hall will share his years of painstaking research in an illustrated lecture that covers the facts of the ship's construction and fate and an insight into the early years of the Fore River Shipyard.

Admission is free. Everyone is welcome to attend. A book-signing will follow the talk.

Annual Easter Egg Hunt Aboard Salem Saturday

The USS Salem's annual Easter egg hunt will be held Saturday, March 22, from 12 noon to 3 p.m. aboard the former Navy heavy cruiser moored at the foot of the Fore River Bridge. Admission is $5 per person.

Each year the Salem hosts hundreds of children for the event, one of several major fund raisers for the Museum, which receives no city, state or federal funds for its support.

"We try to do unusual and fun events like the Easter Egg Hunt and the Haunted Ship to attract people to the ship who may not ordinarily think of visiting the Museum," said Michael Condon, the executive director.

"In years past we have hidden as many as 3,000 Easter eggs. This year our goal is 4,000 eggs."

"The kids get so excited, you can feel their enthusiasm," said Frank Campbell, the volunteer coordinator.

"We organize the event so every child gets a chance to hunt for Easter eggs in addition to having a fun afternoon of activities aboard the ship."

In addition to the egg hunt, there will be lots of activities for kids to enjoy, including egg painting, cup cake decorating, face painting and a treasure hunt.

Two Teams From QHS's Math Club Take The Moody's Challenge

Instead of sleeping in this morning, seven students from Quincy High School were up before 7 a.m. to do math.

Why?

How does winning a share of $65,000 in Moody's Mega Math Challenge sound?

Two hundred eighty-seven teams, each consisting of three to five students, gathered in kitchens, libraries and classrooms—actually anywhere they chose—to solve an applied math problem based on a real-world issue.

They did not know the topic until they downloaded the problem at 7 a.m. Using any inanimate sources of information to help them, teams had until 9 p.m. to research the problem, formulate assumptions, develop and test a model, analyze their findings and summarize their response in a solution paper to send to the Challenge website.

The goal of the entirely Internet-based Challenge is to encourage students to pursue math-related studies and careers.

Sponsoring the Challenge is the Moody's Foundation, the charitable organization of the Moody's Corporation. In 2008, the Challenge expanded beyond the confines of the New York City metropolitan area to include more than 60 counties from lower New Hampshire through Wilmington, Delaware.

The top six teams will receive their awards in Manhattan on April 30.

"That was really exciting," said Quincy High student Shuimiao Ge. "I hope we do it again next year."

Pizza kept Lili Gu's team fueled. "I felt bad for the delivery guy," he said. "Making all those runs in the rain was hard for him."

'Wollaston Beach Green Walk' Rescheduled For this Saturday

Fr. William McCarthy To Be Honored April 3

The John M. Corcoran Award for Excellence will be presented to Rev. William McCarthy, Quincy's 'Father Bill,' at the annual 'Diamonds of Dorchester' ceremony Thursday, April 3, at the Seaport Hotel, Boston.

The Corcoran award is presented annually by St. Mary's Women and Children's Center of Dorchester in honor of John Corcoran, a major force in the creation of the center and in the groundwork needed in its first ten years.

The award committee seeks to honor individuals whose works, like Corcoran's, exemplify compassion, excellence and dedication.

REV. WILLIAM

Rev. McCarthy, former pastor of St. John's Church, was one of the founders of Father Bill's Place, one of the early efforts to house and clothe the homeless.

In 1984, Father Bill McCarthy was one of the founders of Father Bill's Place, one of the early efforts to house and clothe the homeless. He was named Quincy Sun Citizen of the Year in 1984.

This year's award will also be presented to Boston philanthropist, A. Raymond Tye, chairman of United Liquors, who founded the Ray Tye Medical Aid Foundation.

An Easter Miracle On Shirley Street?

home. But it didn't quite work out that way.

"When I left for work the next morning," said Erin Glennon, "I noticed the statue was laying above ground. I ran back into the house to ask if my husband was playing a trick on me."

"I had no idea what my wife was talking about," said Sean Glennon. "I thought she was making it up."

But there it was, big as life, defying logic, on the lawn, not in it.

Who would dig up a statue?

They told no one of their plan to enhance their chances of a sale. They knew of no one who saw them bury the statue. Even if someone did, why would they spend the time and effort to dig it up?

"The statue is clearly not food and we buried it about a foot below ground," said Sean Glennon. "I couldn't find any scratches or teeth marks on it so I think that rules out animal interference."

What's left?

Given the fact that March 19 is St. Joseph's feast day and Easter is just around the corner, the Glennons are not ruling out the possibility that the "risen" statue is a miracle.

Community Development Week To Highlight Quincy Programs

Over the past 32 years, the city of Quincy has benefited to the tune of more than $67 million in community development grant funding from the federal govern-

To show the city's appreciation, Mayor Tom Koch and Planning Director Dennis Harrington have proclaimed March 24 to 28 National Community Development Week, joining communities across the nation.

The goal of the celebration is to encourage those who have benefited from Community Development Block Grants and similar programs to tell their congressmen of the important roles the programs play in their quality of life.

"The CDBG program continues to strengthen our city by channeling federal funds directly through our Planning Department to address crucial neighborhood issues," said Koch.

"From community center funding to street and sidewalk repair, the CDBG program is a very powerful and effective tool to assist us in meeting the needs in our community."

Several events are planned for Community Development Week, including community center programs, the dedication of a new North Quincy Community Center and the grand opening of an affordable housing project.

The schedule:

Monday, March 24, 10 a.m. - Dedication, North Quincy Community Center, 381 Hancock St.

Tuesday, March 25, 9:30 a.m. - Parent-to-Parent Playgroup, Ward 4 Community Center, 100 Brooks Ave.

Tuesday, March 25, 12 noon - After School Enrichment, Germantown Neighborhood Center, 366 Palmer

Thursday, March 27, 11 a.m. - Affordable Housing Project Grand Opening (preceded by an open house at 10 a.m.), 356 Washington St.

Thursday, March 27, 3 p.m. - Sewing Class, Houghs Neck Community Center, 1193 Sea St.

MORE FOR YOU HERE AT HOME

Grandasia

If you have not heard of our store Grandasia Bridal of Quincy, we apologize for not reaching out to you sooner! We laughed sometimes when realized that even people from distant communities as far as New York and Connecticut have traveled to our store to shop for WEDDING, PROM and FIRST COMMUNIONS needs; yet a great percentage of the residents in Quincy didn't even know our shop exists in their own neighborhood right in the heart of the Wollaston business district...

Why our apology? Because we feel strongly that our store is a positive thing that happens to the Quincy and South shore communities and more people should know about it. Over the past four years, Grandasia Bridal has made many brides, bridesmaids, mothers, and prom girls happy by making their dress shopping experience "too easy, too painless, too unreal"! Through many repeated instances, we found out that some of our customers had shopped at five different major bridal/prom stores and could not find a single dress that they fell in love with. When they came to Grandasia, they found too many styles they LOVED and had a hard time deciding which one! On one hand, we work very hard to put only the best fitted dresses on the racks. On the other hand, the secret to our success attributes to the fact that we take time to listen to each of our customers' needs and exhaust all possible avenues in order to accommodate those needs. Sometimes we even made personal trips to different sewing supply stores just to find the right color of fabric to craft onto our customers' dress. Other times, we worked overnight with our seamstress to complete certain emergency alteration jobs. Ultimately, our reward is to see our customers feeling satisfied from the services they received from our store. And even though our vision is to be recognized by a wider customer base across Massachusetts, our immediate goal is to get every single resident of Quincy to know about Grandasia first! We truly offer a one-stop shopping convenience. Besides wedding and prom apparels, Grandasia also offers wedding photography/videography, wedding invitations, professional hair and makeup, tuxedo rentals, and limousine rentals. For those who do not have a chance to stop by our store physically, we welcome your "virtual" visit of our store at www.grandasia.com.

City Solicitor James Timmins cautioned councillors to "wait until the city figures this out" before rushing into "The Davis Plan."

The rate we set last year did not cover all of our costs," said Councillor Michael McFarland after he provided statistics indicating that the sewer costs increased by 31% and the sewer rate only increased by 16%.

Ward 5 Councillor Douglas Gutro described the number of water and sewer billing complaints he has received from constituents. The callers describe, "erratic water bills. It's a bad management approach."

Both Fitzpatrick and Fatseas suggested that the sewer rate was not properly adjusted to meet increased costs.

In addition, they both noted that the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority (MWRA) is billing the city for water that can not be identified.

Fatseas said the MWRA water use is 32% higher than the amount of water identified through billing. He later indicated that some of this water could be lost through old pipes.

In addition, the mayor's

Director of Policy, Chris Walker, said that approximately seven percent of the unaccounted water appears to be used by municipal buildings.

SWAP Earns Tax Abatements For Seniors

The Council on Aging has a SWAP (Senior Workers' Abatement Program) that enable the elderly to work 89 1/2 hours a year and earn $600 towards their real estate tax bills.

For further details, call Dorothy Dow at 617-376-1508.

"Projections need to be re-examined," said Fatseas.

Fatseas, also, suggested that the Honeywell energy program was on an 18-month fast-track that affected quality, "too much, too quickly...." In addition, he said there was no clerk of the works appointed to protect the city's interests.

Fatseas, also, described change orders and unanticipated bills like a leftover charge of $424,000 for road and sidewalk repair from the city's Chapter 90 state funding in which "procedural rules were ignored."

"We're coming in and we're encountering things," said City Solicitor James Timmins who added that different mayors have different styles and approaches. "This stuff does happen in transitions."

Fatseas said that the multi-million dollar water and sewer shortfall was "not brought to our attention," during the transition period between the end of Phelan's administration and Koch's inauguration in January.

Fitzpatrick said the potential for a looming deficit was evident in November and December discussions.

"I made it very clear," Fitzpatrick said, recalling his concerns and the concerns of the Department of Revenue (DOR) of "whether we would meet our revenue requirements."

There will be no windfalls from state coffers or anywhere else, predicted Fitzpatrick who said state payments will be at least $1 million lower than a year ago and tax collections are coming in slower, as are sewer and water payments.

"We're now in the world of depending on recurring revenues," warned Fitzpatrick who noted that the city has kept on a level keel in recent years by cutting into "free cash used to the tune of $5 million."

Ward 5 Councillor Douglas Gutro asked whether recent state legislation allowing a local tax of utility poles would help ease the burdens and bring in new funds.

Fitzpatrick said that bill, when passed, will spend considerable time winding through court appeals before local cities and towns see any of the cash.

There will be no extra funds from any sources so that taxes, fees and other income must cover the city's expenses.

Fitzpatrick also warned that the Stabilization Fund must be improved, as debt service bills will be coming due for the high school building project and, very likely, a new Central Middle School building.

"Going into 2009, this administration needs to be very focused on a financial plan," said Fitzpatrick who urged council members to be "very pro-active when we get into budget hearings."

"There are hard decisions that have to be made," Fitzpatrick said, adding, "You can not close out the year with a deficit."

"We will get to the bottom of this," said Fitzpatrick, describing the combination of an in-house team and experts from the DOR ready to review the water and sewer account problems.

"We are doing things aggressively," said Fatseas, noting that the administration found and eliminated three "phantom" positions. In each of the three cases, department heads hired persons but the position did not exist and had not been budgeted.

There's another problem, though. Fatseas said that, in some cases, promotions were awarded and raises paid that, also, were not budgeted.

Despite the litany of financial woes, Ward 1 Councillor Leo Kelly reminded the council that Quincy was in much better shape than most of its neighbors and other cities in the state which are going bankrupt and are beyond their tax limits.

"There are not just home foreclosures, but city foreclosures," said Kelly, referring to problems in the western area of the state.

Public Service Brings Public Recognition

By J. Keith Motley, PhD, UMass Boston Chancellor

Greetings again from the University of Massachusetts Boston. I am pleased to provide Quincy Sun readers with information about UMass Boston activities and events. This month, I'd like to call your attention to several people and organizations being honored for their contributions as public servants.

Each March, at our Robert H. Quinn Community Breakfast, two special awards are presented: the Quinn Award, which recognizes local citizens who have made outstanding contributions to the greater Boston community, and the Chancellor's Award for Longstanding Community Commitment and Service. The Quinn Award was established in honor of Robert H. Quinn, a founding architect of the university and a prominent Massachusetts public servant. This year's Community Breakfast will be held March 20 in the Campus Center Ballroom.

The 2008 Quinn Award will be shared by two worthy recipients. One is UMass Boston alumnus Bill Walczak, CEO and cofounder of the Codman Square Health Center, a major provider of medical and other clinical services. He is also cofounder and co-CEO of DotWell, which serves nearly 45,000 individuals with its two health centers and other facilities. The other Quinn Award recipient is Frederica M. Williams, president and CEO of Roxbury's Whittier Street Health Center. Ms. Williams has positioned that organization as a leader in culturally competent urban health care and social services.

The Chancellor's Award will go to Leah P. Bailey, director of the Boston Globe Foundation and Community Affairs. Ms. Bailey oversees the distribution of nearly $2 million annually in Foundation grants and corporate sponsorships in greater Boston. Under her leadership, the Foundation recently completed a reorganization of its mission and philanthropic focus.

UMass Boston itself boasts a number of accomplished public servants, and two in particular merit mention here. It is my pleasure to inform you that Gary Siperstein is one of six University of Massachusetts professors to win a President's Public Service Award for 2007. Professor Siperstein is being honored for his work in addressing the needs of at-risk children and for his leadership as founder and director of UMass Boston's Center for Social Development and Education, recognized nationally for enhancing the lives of children with learning and behavioral difficulties.

And late last month, Give US Your Poor: The Campaign to End Homelessness was honored at the twenty-fifth-anniversary celebration of the Jericho Project, which serves New York City's homeless population. Founded by John McGah, who is also executive director, Give US Your Poor is a national initiative, based at UMass Boston's McCormack Graduate School of Policy Studies, that is committed to ending the homelessness epidemic in the United States.

I know I speak for the entire university community in congratulating the Quinn Breakfast award recipients, Professor Siperstein, and John McGah for well-deserved recognition of their accomplishments.

A Job Well Done

On Thursday, March 6th, at approximately 1:23 p.m., police officers were dispatched to Citi Bank, located at 475 Hancock St. for a "Robbery in progress." While enroute to the call, Dispatch updated the responding units that the perpetrator was still inside the bank and that he did not show a weapon or mention one.

Quincy Communications gave the description as a scruffy white male wearing a gray jacket.

Officer Dan Francis arrived on scene first, followed by Officers Matt Tobin, Kevin DiMaggio and Kristen Bowes. Officer Francis peered inside the bank from the corner of the glass windows and saw only one customer and he fit the description.

LT. DAN MINTON

As Officer Francis cautiously entered the bank, the suspect attempted to flee by him but the Officer latched on to his arm and handcuffed him as bank employees yelled out, "He tried to rob us." Officer Francis pat-frisked the suspect but there was no weapon.

Officers Tobin and Bowes entered the bank and quickly questioned bank employees to confirm the identity of the suspect and remove any concerns about him being armed.

The tellers stated that the man in custody was the suspect. They stated that he came to the counter with a note that read, "Please $3,000.00" as he said, "Give me $3,000.00." The teller asked the suspect if he had an account at the bank and he responded, "Don't you read - give me $3,000.00."

The Teller then walked away from the window and went into a back room of the bank, where she told her co-workers, who in turn called the Police. The teller stayed in the back room and waited for the Police arrived.

The suspect then spoke with a teller who was at the next window. This teller heard the suspect say, "Give me $3,000," but she was unaware of the note and then watched as the Teller walked to the back room. After a short period of time, the suspect turned to the teller and asked her, "Where did she go?", referring to the Teller he initially spoke with.

The suspect then angrily stated, "I'm going to come over this counter" and then made an attempt to climb on the counter, pulling on a keyboard. The Teller said that the suspect then retreated to a small room in the general lobby of the bank. When Officer Francis came into the bank, they directed him to the suspect.

After positive identification was made of the suspect, the 47 year-old Quincy resident was arrested and charged with "Attempt to Commit a Crime - Unarmed Robbery."

Detective Michael O'Brien arrived on scene and logged the note as evidence and then arranged to meet with Bank Security to get copies of the surveillance tapes.

These offers don't mention that you have to pay for the software, materials, lists of potential customers and training.

There are often follow-up fees too. The advertisements often depict a person who made incredible amounts of money! In small print, you may notice a warning that "results may vary" and the reason for this is because this person, if even real at all, is the exception.

The ads do not tell you what the average income is - simply because very few people would respond and even less would after learning that they had to pay upfront.

Council Hearing March 24 On Flooding And Controls

Spring is on the way and, so too, the rains that flood certain sections of the city.

Ward 5 Councillor Douglas Gutro said this is the year the city must "take some action before those April showers."

At last week's council meeting, Gutro and Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi filed separate motions requesting a public hearing on flooding, as well as detailed reports on flood control initiatives from the Department of Public Works.

As a result, the Public Works Committee will hold a public hearing Monday, March 24 at 7:30.

After the hearing, the committee will meet with DPW Commissioner Larry Prendeville and his staff for a report on the DPW's readiness, the condition of its pumps, and all flood control equipment.

"Time and time again," sections of the city have been hit by flooding, according to Gutro who listed 15 sites in his ward, as well as problems with the tidal gate at Greenberg Bridge.

The same areas have been "adversely impacted for years and years," Gutro said.

Raymondi believes that a public hearing will illuminate the "hardships that have destroyed the quality of life for so many residents who have been adversely affected by flooding in their community."

Raymondi's motion listed problems in the Greater Penns Hill community, along with four other sections in his ward.

Raymondi cited the need for drainage improvements, and the need to identify funding sources for flood control equipment and projects.

Council President Jay Davis said that he had received calls from residents in Ward 4, particularly Sheldon Street, Ballou and Alrick Road. Davis wanted an update on the condition of the DPW pumping equipment.

The city must invest in "the best pumps around," said Davis, adding that the council will work with the administration on the issue "before the city becomes the subject of a lawsuit."

Famed Women Aviators

Beechwood Luncheon To Honor Quimby, Earhart

Two women who flew out of Quincy into aviation immortality will be remembered by the Aviation History Info Center at a luncheon Wednesday, March 26, at 12 noon at Beechwood on the Bay, 440 East Squantum St.

Both Harriet Quimby and Amelia Earhart were familiar figures in Quincy in the early days of aviation and each died tragically at the controls of their airplanes before the age of 40.

The program, focusing on the personal and public lives of each pilot, will be presented by Sharon Beals, executive director of Beechwood on the Bay and founder of the Aviation History Info Center.

"As we learn and study more about these two remarkable women, we acknowledge, of course, their individual accomplishments, yet are struck by the uncanny similarity of their lives, goals and tragic deaths," said Beals.

"Harriet Quimby and Amelia Earhart are women of three centuries: born in the 19th, pioneered in the 20th and advocated ideals and dreams relevant to the 21st. Both women were ahead of their times.

HARRIET QUIMBY

"Although neither should be labeled 'feminist,' both died as they lived, courageously, taking risks, pursuing their dreams and goals with futuristic vision and awesome intensity."

Quimby, the first American woman to qualify for a pilot's license and the first woman to fly across the English Channel, died when her plane stalled and she fell out at 1,000 feet in the 1913 air meet in Squantum.

Earhart, who once had a financial interest in the Dennison Airport in Squantum, vanished over the vastness of the Pacific Ocean trying to be the first woman to fly around the world in 1937.

Reservations for the luncheon celebration may be made by calling Beechwood on the Bay at 617-471-5712.

Council Approves $56,643 For Harbor Patrol Equipment

The city's harbor patrols got a boost this week when City Council unanimously approved two appropriations for new equipment and repairs totaling $56,643.

Police Lt. Robert Gillan and Harbormaster Patrick Morrissey outlined the need for the funds for new outboard motors and the repair of one patrol boat.

"Both departments have clocked hundreds of patrol hours in the past four years," Lt. Gillan wrote in his formal request, noting, "The engines used to conduct their patrols have completely exceeded their useful service lives."

Morrissey described his efforts to purge the state list of over 200 of what he called the city's "ghost boats." These boats are listed with the state as registered, but the boat is gone, the owners dead or moved away.

Morrissey said he and his staff begin looking for unregistered boats around July 4. He described one man who hadn't paid registration from 1996 to 2007.

"That gentleman came in and paid every cent," said Morrissey.

"We're on a track here to improve the collection rate," reported Auditor Rick Fitzpatrick of the fees and payments on boats and moorings.

Councillors approved $8,143 for a Pump Out Boat. Both appropriations will be from the Waterways Improvement Fund.

In supporting funds for the pump-out boat, Ward 1 Councillor Leo Kelly said, "The bay's been cleaner now than ever before."

"He's been doing an extraordinary job as harbormaster," agreed Ward 5 Douglas Gutro.

Fixing Old Sash Cords

Q. I didn't pay much attention to the way double-hung windows worked, until one day when I lifted the sash higher than usual and heard a crashing sound. Turns out the windows were supported by a chain-and-weight pulley system on both sides. Now that window has lost one chain and weight, it is too lopsided to open or close. How can I fix this? — Clay B., Concord, N.H.

A. Double-hung windows use a dependable system with a fairly heavy weight, a rope or chain and a pulley wheel. The chain is recessed inside a groove on the sides of the window sash. The chain then travels upward above the sash and loops around a pulley wheel set into the jamb. In the hollow space inside the frame, the chain is attached to the end of a long, narrow iron weight. This pulley system allows double-hung windows to lift smoothly and easily.

Fortunately, you can access the inside of the frame in older double hung windows to recover the weight and reattach the chain. Remove the wooden window stop on that side using a utility knife to cut through the paint film and a small pry bar to ease the piece out. Then pull the lower sash out of the frame, removing the sash cord on the other side to free it, and set it aside.

Inside the jamb, you should see a set of screws in the wood, indicating an access cover. Unscrew the cover -- you may need to cut through paint again -- and remove, revealing the jamb interior and the fallen weight and chain.

Retrieve the chain through the access opening and detach from the weight. Untangle and check for damage. Then feed the chain around the pulley wheel -- if it's stubborn, tie a nail to the chain end with a piece of string as a guide -- and lower down into the cavity. Have a friend hold the end of the chain while you reattach the interior end to the weight.

Screw the access cover back into place, attach the lower sash to its sash chains and ease into place. Then nail or screw the window-stop back on.

Bank Of Canton Participating

MassHousing Home Saver Foreclosure Prevention Program

George DeMello, senior vice president of Residential Lending for Bank of Canton, announces the Bank of Canton is taking an active role in assisting homeowners in avoiding foreclosure by participating in MassHousing's Home Saver Foreclosure Prevention Program.

The MassHousing Home Saver Foreclosure Prevention Program is a loan and counseling solution that assists borrowers whose mortgages have become unsustainable.

Entrance into the program begins with the mortgage being reviewed by a mandatory counseling service offered by an approved local counseling agency. The mandatory counseling service provides a review of mortgage documents and a suitability assessment.

Once the counseling process has been completed MassHousing supplies the homeowner with a list of select lenders participating in the program.

"Foreclosures are at an all time high. Through the Home Saver Foreclosure Prevention Program, Bank of Canton will be able to assist homeowners in maintaining ownership of their homes by making it affordable to refinance to a fixed rate," said Aris Pappas, vice president and district sales manager for Bank of Canton.

"Bank of Canton values serving the region and community as MassHousing's largest bank-lending partner and will continue to partner with them on their vast array of affordable mortgage products."

Bank of Canton is currently one of 17 banks in Massachusetts participating in the Home Saver Foreclosure Prevention Program.

For more information or to find out whether you are eligible for this program, contact Bank of Canton at 888-828-1690 or contact the Homeownership Preservation Foundation at 888-995-4673.

Tax Scams

For the past few months, the Internal Revenue Service has been warning of scams, seemingly one after another. Now, with rebate bonus checks due out in a couple of months, the scammers have taken the opportunity to perpetuate even more fraud.

Here's how this new one works:

You get a call or e-mail supposedly from the IRS, and you'll be told that you're eligible for an advance rebate check -- IF you give them your Social Security number. They also ask for bank account numbers, so the check can be direct deposited into your account.

Variations include an e-mail with links you're asked to click, which takes you to a fake IRS page where you enter your personal information.

Other IRS scams have the same goal (getting you to disclose your information), but use different methods:

- E-mail that threatens an audit or criminal investigation: That's sure to get your attention, especially if the e-mail contains your real name, as some of them have.
- "Where's My Refund?" e-mail: Directs victims to a fake IRS page and asks for credit-card number and Social Security number.
- Uncashed check phone call: The victim is called, supposedly by the IRS, and told that a check the IRS sent has not been cashed. The victim is asked to give account information so it can be traced.

- Tax-law change email: These are usually directed to businesses or those who need tax-law information. The problem here is that when you click on the link, it downloads malware (a virus) onto your computer that allows the scammers to directly access your computer.

- Other scams: These include getting paid to do an IRS customer satisfaction survey or making a donation to charitable causes.

Remember: The IRS doesn't send out e-mails asking for Social Security numbers, credit-card numbers, PINs or any other information. If you get one of these e-mails, roll the mouse over the link and see what URL shows up. The IRS e-mail address is www.irs.gov. If you do want to visit the IRS Website, type in the address, rather than clicking any link.

To report an e-mail scam, go to the IRS Web site, put "suspicious e-mail" in the Search box, and follow the instructions for sending the e-mail, or call 1-800-829-1040.

Energy-Efficient Ways To Design With Light

(NAPS) — Until recently, choosing lighting for the home often involved compromises between achieving the desired ambience and saving energy. Incandescent light bulbs provide warm illumination combined with the flexibility of dimmers. Unfortunately, these lamps are very inefficient — bad for the electric bill as well as the environment. CFLs (compact fluorescent lamps) represent a more efficient alternative, but don't always give the desired lighting effect and are often incompatible with dimming systems.

Consider the lighting needs in a typical home:

Kitchen: The kitchen is a gathering place for families and friends. Therefore, lighting needs to be both comfortable and functional.

Dining Room: Requires a mix of general, task and accent lighting that can set the mood for a number of functions, including a formal dinner, a family get-together, and activities such as homework.

Bedroom: Lighting should create an overall atmosphere of relaxation, while providing some task lighting for reading.

Living Room/Family Room:

General lighting should be sufficient for entertaining and watching television, task lighting must be provided for reading and hobbies, and accent lighting is needed to spotlight artwork and other interesting features.

To help homeowners meet these needs and save money, a new kind of lamp has recently been introduced to the market. Based on Halogen technology, these lamps offer more than 30 percent energy savings compared to incandescent lamps and sport a much longer life.

Going Green

The first of these new high-efficiency Halogen lamps, known as Halogen Energy Saver, was introduced by Philips Lighting Company in 2007 and is currently the only mass-market, nonfluorescent product able to meet the new federal lighting efficiency standards that will take effect beginning in 2012. They are long lasting, mercury-free and versatile, easily fitting into most incandescent fixtures inside and outside the home. Plus, they "turn on" immediately and are fully dimmable.

"Robert's regional knowledge and experience in residential lending will be a benefit both to Bank of Canton and our customers," DeMello said. "We look forward to the opportunities he will create."

A Worcester resident, Bonofiglio has worked in the banking industry for over 8

Negotiating The Sale Of Bank-Owned Property

New home buyers are always looking for the best deal possible when searching for a home.

Bank-owned properties, also known as foreclosures, offer attractive offers to buyers who are just starting out or are looking for an opportunity to invest in a larger home. There are, however, some important facts buyers need to be aware of before entering into an agreement or seriously considering making a purchase.

Foreclosure is a legal process that mortgage companies and banks use to force the sale of a home to repay a debt. If the home owner fails to meet the requirements of the mortgage, the leading institution has the authority to seize the property. The property then becomes bank-owned. All proceeds from the sale of the property are used to repay the mortgage owed to the bank.

Although it is important when purchasing a home, to consult with a real estate broker, this caution takes on even greater meaning in the case bank-owned property because buyers are unable to deal directly with the sellers. When a bank acquires a property through foreclosure, the property must be listed through a real estate agency when it is ready to be placed on the market. A real estate broker can help the buyer navigate through the ocean of paperwork associated with bank-owned properties.

"Bank-owned properties can be appealing to new homeowners," said Steve Downing, broker at CENTURY 21 Annex Realty. "They enable buyers to buy property within their original budget that otherwise they couldn't afford. Buyers need to do their homework, though, and be aware of property costs associated with the purchase, circumstances of the foreclosure, and any associated legal paperwork that must completed."

"In addition to working with a broker, we recommend having an attorney review the final sale agreement with a buyer before finalizing the sale."

Bank-owned properties can be sold for up to 10 to 15 percent less than their market value and, unlike typical properties being sold, a bank-owned property must remain on the market until it is sold.

Banks rely on the real estate agents to counsel them on listing prices so it is important to consult with your broker about how long a property has been on the market and when the best time is to present an offer.

Closing on a bank-owned property is usually a quicker process than a normal sale, though, since the property is being sold as is and is vacant. Banks are eager to have a new buyer take over the property and off their hands.

A standard home sale process, from offer to final closing, typically takes 60 days; however, in the purchase of a bank-owned property, the closing usually takes place within 30 days of the offer being made.

A word of caution for the purchaser: If possible, complete a home inspection prior to signing the final papers to ensure you understand the home's condition before purchasing it. An inspection is extremely important as it can save you from buying a house, even at what to you is a great price, that is in poor condition and might result in considerable added expense.

Tips for Clearing The Clutter

(NAPS) - Getting organized to cut clutter in your home can be easier than you might think-and the benefits of being organized could extend beyond a tidy house.

For instance, organized people save money because they can assess their shopping needs at a glance, making them less likely to buy something out of uncertainty. Additionally, organized people eliminate stress associated with scrambling to find misplaced items or tidying their homes on short notice.

So how do you join the ranks of the orderly? Closet Tailors, a franchise company that provides custom storage solutions for homes and businesses, offers these tips to tidiness:

Perfect Piles

Gather your things into five piles, bins or baskets:

- Keep;
- Donate/Sell;
- Discard;
- Repair;
- Goes elsewhere in the house.

Start Small

Instead of saying, "Today, I'm going to organize the garage!" say, "Today, I'm going to organize the these two garage shelves" or "I'm going to sort the vanity drawer." Attacking the problem in smaller chunks allows you to feel a sense of accomplishment and will motivate you or others in your household to continue the task.

Use a Labeler

Once you decide on a space for an item, hold its spot with a label. You'll increase the likelihood that the item will be replaced, but will also prevent other items from taking its place.

Toss 50

Set a goal to throw away 50 unused, unwanted or broken items in a week. Start in one area and do your best to rid yourself of unused stuff that's taking up space in your home. Also, if an item has been in the "Repair" pile for longer than six months, chances are it will never be repaired. Toss it.

"Go Back" Baskets

Use a "Go Back" basket on each level of your home. If you see an item that belongs in a different area of the house, place it in the basket and set a time each day to return the items to their appropriate places in the house.

Bank-owned properties, also known as foreclosures, offer attractive offers to buyers who are just starting out or are looking for an opportunity to invest in a larger home. There are, however, some important facts buyers need to be aware of before entering into an agreement or seriously considering making a purchase.

Foreclosure is a legal process that mortgage companies and banks use to force the sale of a home to repay a debt. If the home owner fails to meet the requirements of the mortgage, the leading institution has the authority to seize the property. The property then becomes bank-owned. All proceeds from the sale of the property are used to repay the mortgage owed to the bank.

Although it is important when purchasing a home, to consult with a real estate broker, this caution takes on even greater meaning in the case bank-owned property because buyers are unable to deal directly with the sellers. When a bank acquires a property through foreclosure, the property must be listed through a real estate agency when it is ready to be placed on the market. A real estate broker can help the buyer navigate through the ocean of paperwork associated with bank-owned properties.

"Bank-owned properties can be appealing to new homeowners," said Steve Downing, broker at CENTURY 21 Annex Realty. "They enable buyers to buy property within their original budget that otherwise they couldn't afford. Buyers need to do their homework, though, and be aware of property costs associated with the purchase, circumstances of the foreclosure, and any associated legal paperwork that must be completed."

"In addition to working with a broker, we recommend having an attorney review the final sale agreement with a buyer before finalizing the sale."

Bank-owned properties can be sold for up to 10 to 15 percent less than their market value and, unlike typical properties being sold, a bank-owned property must remain on the market until it is sold.

Banks rely on the real estate agents to counsel them on listing prices so it is important to consult with your broker about how long a property has been on the market and when the best time is to present an offer.

Closing on a bank-owned property is usually a quicker process than a normal sale, though, since the property is being sold as is and is vacant. Banks are eager to have a new buyer take over the property and off their hands.

A standard home sale process, from offer to final closing, typically takes 60 days; however, in the purchase of a bank-owned property, the closing usually takes place within 30 days of the offer being made.

A word of caution for the purchaser: If possible, complete a home inspection prior to signing the final papers to ensure you understand the home's condition before purchasing it. An inspection is extremely important as it can save you from buying a house, even at what to you is a great price, that is in poor condition and might result in considerable added expense.

Tips for Clearing The Clutter

(NAPS) - Getting organized to cut clutter in your home can be easier than you might think-and the benefits of being organized could extend beyond a tidy house.

For instance, organized people save money because they can assess their shopping needs at a glance, making them less likely to buy something out of uncertainty. Additionally, organized people eliminate stress associated with scrambling to find misplaced items or tidying their homes on short notice.

So how do you join the ranks of the orderly? Closet Tailors, a franchise company that provides custom storage solutions for homes and businesses, offers these tips to tidiness:

Perfect Piles

Gather your things into five piles, bins or baskets:

- Keep;
- Donate/Sell;
- Discard;
- Repair;
- Goes elsewhere in the house.

Start Small

Instead of saying, "Today, I'm going to organize the garage!" say, "Today, I'm going to organize these two garage shelves" or "I'm going to sort the vanity drawer." Attacking the problem in smaller chunks allows you to feel a sense of accomplishment and will motivate you-or others in your household-to continue the task.

Use a Labeler

Once you decide on a space for an item, hold its spot with a label. You'll increase the likelihood that the item will be replaced, but will also prevent other items from taking its place.

Toss 50

Set a goal to throw away 50 unused, unwanted or broken items in a week. Start in one area and do your best to rid yourself of unused stuff that's taking up space in your home. Also, if an item has been in the "Repair" pile for longer than six months, chances are it will never be repaired. Toss it.

"Go Back" Baskets

Use a "Go Back" basket on each level of your home. If you see an item that belongs in a different area of the house, place it in the basket and set a time each day to return the items to their appropriate places in the house.

Barbs, Laughs At Partnership St. Patrick's Day Dinner

MAYOR TOM KOCH had a few zingers of his own at the St. Patrick's Day dinner-roast, good for laughs without the laugh sign held by aide Chris Cassani.

GREETING ARRIVALS AT the St. Patrick's Day dinner-roast was this table outside the Quincy Lodge of Elks. It was "reserved" for former Mayor Bill Phelan "claiming" to be the outsider in last November's mayoral election.

BOB CURRY, (under the hat) a member of the sponsors Quincy Partnership welcomes the crowd to their annual St. Patrick's Day dinner-roast.

FORMER MAYOR BILL PHELAN enjoyed the crossfire of political jabs and got some laughs himself. He also got a warm reception.

CITY CLERK Joe Shea, in a new role as Pope Benedict XVI, delivered 10 Quincy commandments.

MAYOR TOM KOCH and a crowd of some 300 enjoyed the political humor at the dinner-roast.

IT WOULDN'T BE a St. Patrick's Day celebration without City Clerk Joe Shea doing his "Amazing Shea-Zack" routine with Dan Flynn.

THE KOCHMOBILE, Quincy's answer to the Vatican's Popemobile, is unveiled by Ward 6 Councillor Brian McNamee in recognition of the Mayor's devotion to his church.

PAT MCDERMOTT, Register of Probate and former city councillor, had Irish eyes smiling with "Danny Boy."

JIM FATSEAS, Mayor Koch's Chief of Staff entertains with his own lyrics.

SHERIFF MIKE BELLOTTI got off some good shots.

Ward 6 Councillor. A New Beginning.

Or some other jobs like: "Hi, I'm Bob Crowley. Welcome to Wal-Mart."

Troubadours Tom Clasby, Quincy Council on Aging and Mark Crosby, Discover Quincy, were in their usual fine Irish voice. As was Pat McDermott, Register of Probate, with "Danny Boy."

And a new addition this year: Jim Fatseas, Koch's Chief of Staff who wrote and sang new lyrics to

"Orange And Green."

A few lines: "Well, it was the biggest dust up that you have ever seen.

"Old Tommy's signs were blue my friend, the other guy's were green.

"Old Leo, he's a Necker.

"He's been around awhile.

"He's the only one among us that saw John Adams smile.

"You know that Councillor Gutro can't shake his good guy tag.

"But I heard it from two sources. He chopped down that Commie flag.

"Kevin Coughlin, he's a speaker who shares a quote or two.

"Someday he'll finally quote himself and shock both me and you.

"So here on this St. Patrick's Day, I ask you to raise your drink.

"And say good luck to Mayor Koch.

"And say goodbye to Wink."

The dinner grossed approximately $15,000.

Net proceeds will go to a new granite decorative fountain at restored Merrymount Park.

That's the latest of the Partnership's civic and cultural projects. Prior: the commissioning of the bronze statues John Adams, Abigail Adams with John Quincy Adams as a boy, uplifting historic sites, and providing those inviting "Welcome To Quincy" signs at the entrances to the city.

All in fun and for a good cause.

KELLY GALLIGAN, born on St. Patrick's Day, was presented a bouquet of flowers by co-emcee Dan Flynn.

SPOTLIGHT ON HEALTH & FITNESS

by Andrea Wyatt
M.S.S., C.S.C.S.

Gym Phobia

Q: A new fitness center has opened in my neighborhood that offers great classes and a beautiful building. Some of my friends have already joined, and I would really like to join, too. The problem is that I have avoided joining a gym for years because I am overweight and fear others will look at me. I know the classes and equipment at the gym will help me lose weight, but I can't seem to get over my fear and begin doing something to help myself.

A: You're not alone. A fitness facility, although full of opportunity, also can be filled with people who are anxious about what they look like, who is watching and if they will fit in with other members. The key is to not let this fear keep you from working toward your fitness goals and creating a healthier you.

Take a tour of your new fitness center and learn what programs it has to offer. Go with a friend you feel comfortable around and ask questions. Try to schedule the tour at the time of day you are most likely to work out, and while touring, look around at how other members interact with each other and the staff.

Ask for a trial membership. Many facilities will allow you to work out for several days or even a week for free so you can find out if you are comfortable there. Take advantage of this trial time to check out classes and programs, while seeing how you would feel as a member. This can be a great way to begin to get over your fears.

If you decide to join, meet with a fitness professional to help you get acquainted with the features and overall layout of the club. Most fitness centers offer initial orientation sessions with an on-staff personal trainer to help you get started. These sessions are designed to review your medical and activity background, set up a basic workout program based on your fitness goals and demonstrate exercise equipment so you can exercise safely.

These sessions are a great way to work one on one with a fitness professional, who can help you gain confidence in your abilities. After your initial orientation sessions, you can always continue working with your personal trainer until you feel confident and comfortable enough to work out on your own.

Remember that you are not alone. Almost everyone at a fitness facility has a common goal, and that goal is to get healthy or remain healthy. You owe it to yourself to not let fear keep you from reaching your goals.

Always consult a physician before beginning an exercise program. Andrea Renee Wyatt, M.S.S., C.S.C.S., is a personal trainer with an extensive in strength and conditioning as well as therapeutic recreation. DENTISTRY for the 21st Century

by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

DOES BRUSHING STRENGTHEN GUMS?

Dentists usually caution overzealous patients against using a toothbrush with firm bristles and brushing their teeth with too much force. While the mechanical motion of brushing teeth unquestionably removes bacteria-laden material that may cause tooth decay, brushing too hard may damage enamel and gums. Although this caution is well worth noting, new research reveals that a certain degree of brush stimulation may actually strengthen gums. Specifically, researchers found that toothbrush bristles momentarily rupture the epithelial cells that line the gums. However, instead of causing lasting damage, this mechanical stress may induce the gums to respond by getting stronger. In a sense, the gums may respond to stress much in the same way that muscles do when they are exercised.

We'll be happy to answer all your dental health related questions.

Unfortunately, periodontal-related problems are often discovered after they have persisted for an extended period of time. Proper oral hygiene, daily dental care and regular dental checkups will minimize the risk of gum disease. Treatments are available for every case of gum disease. Brushing and flossing are vital in keeping teeth free from plaque-generating bacteria. Join us at 44 Greenleaf Street, and enjoy the experience professional and expert dental care can accomplish. We invite you to call 617-479-6220 to schedule an appointment. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street. Let us help you smile. QMC Lab Receives Accreditation From College Of American Pathologists

Quincy Medical Center's main laboratory has been awarded accreditation by the Commission on Laboratory Accreditation of the College of American Pathologists (CAP), based on the results of a recent on-site inspection.

The laboratory's director was advised of this national recognition and congratulated for the "excellence of the services being provided." During the CAP accreditation process, inspectors examine the laboratory's records and quality control of procedures for the preceding two years.

CAP inspectors also examine the entire staff's qualifications, the laboratory's equipment, facilities, safety program and record, as well as the overall management of the laboratory. This stringent inspection program is designed to specifically ensure the highest standard of care for the laboratory's patients.

The College of American Pathologists is a medical society serving nearly 16,000 physician members and the laboratory community throughout the world. It is the world's largest association composed exclusively of pathologists and is widely considered the leader in laboratory quality assurance.

Quincy Medical Center is a 196-bed acute care community-teaching hospital providing South Shore residents with comprehensive medical and surgical services.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) With your practical side dominant this week, it's a good time to reassess your finances to see what expenses you can cut. Aspects also favor mending fraying relationships.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Your Bovine-inspired determination to follow matters through from beginning to end pays off in a big way. Enjoy a well-earned weekend of fun with a special someone.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Aspects favor re-establishing business relationships you might have neglected. A family member's request needs to be given more thought before you make a decision.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) While you might appreciate the avalanche of advice coming from others, keep in mind that the intuitive Moon Child is best served by listening to her or his own inner voice.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) The Lion's social life whirls at centrifugal speed this week as you go from function to function. Things slow by week's end, giving you a chance to catch up on your chores.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Don't let your stand on an issue cause a rift with a colleague. Insist on both of you taking time to reassess your positions while there's still room for compromise.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) An opportunity you'd been hoping for finally opens up. But read the fine print before you make a commitment, especially where a time factor might be involved.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Your need to know what's going on behind the scenes leads you to make some bold moves. Be prepared with a full explanation of your actions if necessary.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) A lot of details need tending to during the early part of the week. The pressure eases by the 20th, allowing you to get back to your major undertaking.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) A friend asks you to act on his or her behalf in a dispute. Be careful. You might not have all the facts you need in order to make a fair assessment of the situation.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) A new development might require you to cancel some of your plans. But you adapt easily, and by week's end, you could receive welcome "cheering-up" news.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Your recent workplace accomplishments boost your self-confidence just as you're about to consider a potentially rewarding, although possibly risky, career move.

BORN THIS WEEK: Your love of the arts is equaled only by your strong sense of justice. People can depend on you to always try to do what's right.

Quincy's Billy Allen Captures National Title

A Quincy resident has recently ascended to the rank of champion, joining the fraternity of recent winners on the Massachusetts sports landscape.

Billy Allen captured the 2007 National Points Championship, in the highly competitive 350cc Modified Hydroplane class of outboard powerboat racing in the American Powerboat Association (APBA), the leading authority of powerboat racing in the United States.

Allen's boat is a 10-1/2 foot plywood hull, weighing just over 100 pounds. The boat is powered by a highly modified, two-cylinder, 350cc (20ci) Yamato racing engine. The top speed is approximately 75 mile per hour (mph) and it goes around a one-mile oval track at an average of over 60-mph.

Allen, a two-time APBA Hall of Champions inductee, currently holds the World Competition Record in his class, covering three laps (three miles) in an average of 63.2 mph. He set the record in March 2005 in Ocoee, Florida.

Allen's 2007 powerboat racing season got off to a shaky start, but he rebounded to win five out of his last six races to fight back to win the national title (which is based on a driver's average finish in fifteen races).

His season opened with a first-place win at Ocoee last March, but then things went downhill in the Northeast circuit season-opener last May in Millville, New Jersey.

"We were running a boat that was a bit too small for the class and although it was fast we were having handling problems in the corners," said Allen. "I was leading the race but the boat hooked in the turn and I ended up on the inside of the course marker."

Allen's final position was a disappointing seventh place and G.W. Resch of Maryland, a young hard-charging driver, took first place.

Allen then hit his stride with a second place finish at Thompson, Conn. in June and then he went on to win his national qualifying heats in Zanesville, Ohio and took third in the national final, a triple point race.

Two more third place finishes and a first place finish at the Lock Haven Pennsylvania Labor Day Regatta put Allen in a dead heat for the National Points Race with Resch after eight of fifteen races.

"G.W. and I were within a few points of each other, so I knew I had to finish the season strong," Allen said. "But in motor sports, there are so many things that have to go right for you to end up with the title."

But Allen's push for a national title hit a snag in his next event in Alexandra Bay, New York in late September. Leading the field by a comfortable margin, he burned a piston in his engine heading into the last lap of the race, giving him a 'Did Not Finish' (DNF) and zero points.

"Getting a zero is the worst thing that can happen when you're in a points race," Allen said. "I thought I was all done. I figured G.W. would be winning on the Southern circuit, so I had dug myself into a hole and knew it was time to get down to business."

The day after his DNF at Alexandra Bay, Allen paid a visit to Bob Goller ("the best high performance outboard mechanic in the country," as Allen put it) and together they replaced the piston and made a few adjustments to the engine and Allen was back in business.

He won the next four races in a row, three at Kingston, New Hampshire and one of two at the Millville, NJ Fall Regatta, and with his four wins in five races, Allen was leading the points race by a wide margin.

All he needed was a top-three finish at the season-ending race in Jesup, Georgia to win the national title.

Allen dominated that final race. He led from start to end and his first-place finish secured him his fifth national points title in the class in the last eight years.

"This is a great championship for us because we really had our ups and downs in this class all year. Racing at this level takes tremendous amount of teamwork and all the people on the crew really hung in there over a long season. My chance at the title didn't look good after Alexandra Bay. But it ended up being a great year."

Allen will next spend the rest of his winter concentrating his efforts on preparing boats for the PRO Division World Championships this summer. He plans on competing in three different classes: the stock class, which will be held in Berlin, Germany in July; the 125cc and the 175cc classes, which will both be held in Florida in October.

The event in October marks the first time in years that an Outboard Hydroplane World Championship will be held on U.S. soil.

"It should be a huge event. But we have a lot to do over the winter. I've been talking to people from all parts of the country and the World Championship coming to Florida is on the forefront of everyone's mind. If you are in to power boat racing, it doesn't get any bigger than this."

Allen, who typically races against competition that is heavily sponsored, is interested in newsponsorship opportunities. If you or your business would like to sponsor Allen in 2008, contact him at 781-775-9290.

A Remarkable Career For North's Rebecca Goreham

By SEAN BRENNAN

Be it five, ten or twenty years from now, when people look up into the gym rafters at North Quincy High School, one name that will be front and center is Rebecca Goreham.

Goreham, a senior, has just finished a remarkable and productive four-year varsity basketball career. A career that saw her stake her claim as the best North Quincy female basketball player, maybe ever.

Goreham joined the Red Raiders as a freshman and over the next four seasons, she racked up some impressive individual records, while during the same time, she helped put North Quincy basketball back onto the front pages of the South Shore basketball scene.

The individual records include scoring 1,107 career points (2nd all-time); 954 career rebounds (record holder); 3.5 assists per game (career assist record); single game rebound record (23 rebounds); second all-time leader in steals; 12.7 points per game average (2nd highest in school history); four-time Atlantic Coast League all-star and a four-time Patriot Ledger all-star. Goreham was also team captain her junior and senior seasons.

With her stellar individual play, Goreham helped lead the Red Raiders to back-to-back ACL championships in 2007 and 2008, and this season, her play and leadership helped guide the Red Raiders into the Division I South Sectional semifinals where they lost to New Bedford High School.

This trip to the semifinals marked the longest post-season run for any NQHS girls' team since 1972. The Raiders finished the season with a 15-7 overall record.

"I started playing as a freshman," said Goreham last week at City Hall where she was being recognized by the School Committee for her career achievements, "and I did what I had to do to get playing time. I lived basketball and it just carried over for the next four years.

"It has been an awesome four years. And all the individual records like the rebounding record, scoring my 1,000 point against Quincy and the assist record are all nice but it was really, for me, about playing as a team and everything I accomplished is a result of team effort."

The Raiders and Goreham began this past season looking to repeat as ACL champions, but after three games, North Quincy found themselves with a 0-3 record. Here is where the leadership of Goreham and fellow seniors Paige Bonanni, Kasey O'Connell, Rachel Goreham (Rebecca's sister), Simone Leary, Kerry Coughlin and Mary Kate Stille (captain) came into play.

"That 0-3 start was pretty rough," Goreham added. "But myself and the other seniors just kept reminding the team that we were better than that. We eventually just meshed as a team and picked up the attitude that we could become ACL champions again."

"Last year we had to share that title with Whitman-Hanson HS and this year we felt that we deserved it all for ourselves. And that is what we went out and did."

After the 0-3 start, North

REBECCA GOREHAM (NQHS) and Doug Scott (QHS) were recognized at the start of the School Committee meeting last Wednesday in the City Council chambers with commendations of excellence. Both Goreham and Scott became members of the 1,000-point club this past season while leading their teams to the South Sectional semifinals and quarterfinals, respectively. They are pictured here with Mayor Thomas Koch and School Committee Vice-Chairman David McCarthy.

Quincy reeled off twelve straight league wins to finish with a 12-1 ACL record, and finished one game ahead of Whitman-Hanson in the standings. They entered the tournament as the number eight seed and hosted Bridgewater-Raynham HS in the first round.

"That first home playoff game against B-R was special," she said. "We came out firing and playing in front of the home crowd was something. It felt good to win that game after losing at home in 2007 to Duxbury HS."

"And our confidence grew with that win and the next game we went down to Franklin HS and beat the number one team on their home court. Losing to New Bedford in the semis was hard, but we had a great season as a team."

With her high school career now over, you would think that all of her individual records would be what she would want people to remember her by, but not so according to this humble student/athlete.

"I want to be remembered, not for scoring 1,000 points, or breaking the rebound record," she said, "but instead for always giving it my all at practice and in games. I tried to lead by example all four years and I hope that is what people will remember me by years from now."

Goreham will wrap up her high school sports career this spring as a member of the varsity softball team. She has played on the diamond for the Raiders for four years and was an ACL all-star in 2007.

She was also a member of four straight ACL championships as a member of the Red Raider girls' volleyball team. She was team captain and an ACL all-star last fall in volleyball.

Goreham will graduate in the spring and next fall will be attending Fitchburg State College (Division III) where she will play basketball as a member of the Class of 2012.

NQHS Hockey Finishes 10-7-4

The North Quincy Red Raider varsity hockey team lost a Division II South Sectional first round playoff game against Franklin High School, 3-2 (Feb. 27), to finish their 2007-08 season with a 10-7-4 overall record.

The Raiders, facing Franklin HS for the second year in a row in the post season (NQ lost in 2007 to Franklin, 4-2, in the quarterfinals), fell behind early by a 2-0 count, but in the second period at the 7:06 mark, Brandon Gilmore cut that deficit in half with an empty-net tap-in on a deflected shot.

At the 11:01 mark of the second period, Gilmore and the Raiders struck again. With a Franklin player in the penalty box, Gilmore scored on a shot inside the right post and North Quincy tied it up at 2-2.

The tie was short-lived as Franklin scored the eventual game-winner at the 14:13 mark of the second period.

The final period was back-and-forth, but North had a golden opportunity to send the game into overtime in the final minute of regulation when Franklin was whistled for two penalties with twenty seconds remaining.

The Raiders got two quality shots on Franklin's Jeff Kaplan, but were denied on both power play attempts.

Notes: NQ entered the post-season as the No. 9 seed... Franklin was the No. 8 seed... NQ goalie Matt Brundige finished with 19 saves... Gilmore finished the year with 27-13-40 totals... Franklin lost to No. 2 Sandwich, 1-0 in shootout, in the DII South finals last weekend.

Henry McDaniel, 101

Master Watercolor Artist
Specializing In Rivers And Fly-Fishing

By MARY MCDANIEL

"Life without fishing, I don't think so!" By the time Henry McDaniel got the tee shirt, it was too late for him to agree—but he would have.

His life had been framed and inspired by wild fishing in the wild woods of Vermont and Canada. Fly-fishing of course. His passions were Atlantic Salmon and Vermont Brookies and his art, which was a sort of telling his fish stories in absolutely elegant and accurate watercolors of rivers and lovers of rivers.

They were real, but not photographic. Waters lit by having meandered through Henry's heart and soul.

Life without painting, life without the agility to play the Steiff baby grand which kept Chop and Debussy alive in him, life without Louise, without his son Edison, without his sisters Kay and Jean, his niece Jane. These were irredeemable grievous losses.

He had "survived damn near everything," just as the pin on his crushable hat informs us (another gift—from his granddaughter Diana.) His car falling into Musquodoboit Harbor, stolen paintings, forgeries, terrible changes in the planet, the deaths of so many.

Sunday morning, March 2, Henry died and bequeathed his survivors his love, his many stories, his paintings and his soul's longing for the healing of this languishing planet.

Born in Annapolis Royal, Nova Scotia, in 1960, Mr. McDaniel emigrated to Boston in 1925. He graduated from the Vesper George School of Art in 1927 and married Edith Louise Whiton, Quincy Mayor J.L. Whiton's daughter, in 1931.

Henry was a master watercolor artist specializing in rivers and fly-fishing and was the advertising art director for several Boston firms.

HENRY MCDANIEL

He was a member of the Guild of Boston Artists, New England Watercolor Society, Hudson Valley Art Association, Miramichi Salmon Association, Atlantic Salmon Federation and Wollaston Congregational Church.

He was predeceased by his wife and his son H.E. McDaniel Jr. of Mamaroneck, N.Y.

He is survived by his son Joseph Whiton McDaniel and his wife, Mary; his daughter-in-law Maria; three grandchildren, Paul and his wife Melanie, Anniebrook, W. Australia; Bruce and his wife Laurie Gage, Mamaroneck, N.Y.; Diana and her husband Jeffrey Lefebvre, Kaneohe, HI; 10 great-grandchildren Christopher and Adam Lefebvre, Hawaii; Anna Louis, Northfield, Vermont; Michael, Tara, Jillian and Isabel of Mamaroneck, N.Y.; Steven Dore, La Quinta, CA; Keoni and Kalani, Anniebrook, W. Australia.

He was beloved by all. Because of his concerns for the earth, memorials for him may be made to Americanrivers.org, a favorite conservation group. Also, Wollaston Congregational Church, 48 Winthrop Ave., Quincy, MA 02170.

A graveside service will be held on Earth Day, Tuesday, April 22 at 1 p.m. at Mount Wollaston Cemetery, Quincy.

SCOTT DEWARE

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Easter is a time for rejoicing; one of the most joyous days of the year. It symbolizes the reawakening of life that is universally associated with springtime... the season of robins' signing... meadows turning green... of life renewed. It is the happy time of people's faith.

Easter commemorates the resurrection of Jesus Christ but, surprisingly, the them of Easter is older than Christianity itself. Among the most ancient civilizations, rituals of rebirth were very common... Sunrise services date back to the medieval custom of praying while the sun rises. The present-day parades that mark the day had their beginning in the original Easter walk of Europe, when devout men and women congregated and walked in an orderly manner reciting prayers and singing. And one of the most charming of all customs is the Easter egg hunt for children—renewing the custom far older than Christianity. In pre-Christian time, the egg was the symbol of spring. In the Christian era the egg became a symbol of the rock tomb out of which Christ emerged in His resurrection. Thus, Easter is a symbol of Christianity, just as it is a symbol of the faith and hope of mankind.

Easter combines a rich mixture of laughter and solemnity. Both are good; both are needed by the soul of man...

Community United Methodist

Quincy Community United Methodist Church, 40 Beale St., Wollaston, will celebrate the Easter Vigil Saturday, March 22 at 7:30 p.m.

"One phrase can sum up this powerful service," said Rev. Dr. Susan F. Jarek-Glidden, pastor of Quincy Community United Methodist Church, "and that is, 'expect the unexpected.' In a very personal and heartfelt way, the Vigil celebrates the hope and promise of Easter."

Dating from the earliest years of the Christian Church, the Easter Vigil is a service unlike any other, literally leading the congregation from Lent to Easter. It does so through word, song, and, most importantly, symbols that refer to Scripture.

Because many people today are unfamiliar with symbolic interpretation, explanatory notes are provided in the text of the Vigil service. Dr. Jarek-Glidden has also updated the ancient service somewhat, so that it "speaks" to today's Christians.

Everyone attending the Vigil is requested to bring a flashlight - an updated and safer version of the traditional candles. Some extra flashlights will be available, in case anyone forgets.

People are also asked to wear comfortable walking shoes, because some walking is necessary.

"One of the modern adjustments Quincy Community United Methodist Church has made is to also include a minimal walking option," said Dr. Jarek-Glidden. "We want to make sure that everyone who wants to participate in this very moving service is able to."

Quincy Community United Methodist Church is located diagonally from the Wollaston T stop, and is fully handicapped accessible; the handicapped entrance is located in the front, the door closest to the flag pole.

Adams Park To Add 12 Seasonal Staffers

City Readies For Record Tourist Season

Some 500 Quincy enthusiasts kicked off the 2008 tourist season last week at a benefit celebrating the current HBO series on the life of President John Adams produced by Tom Hanks.

The City of Quincy was the star of the show as speakers praised its beauty, and its glorious history, particularly the Adams legacy.

The event's speakers predicted that a spectacular tourist season is just weeks away with hundreds of thousands of new tourists heading here this spring, summer and fall.

"This is going to be a huge economic opportunity for our community," predicted Congressman William Delahunt, noting that the number of tourists visiting Quincy "trebled" from 80,000 to over 280,000 after David McCullough's biography of John Adams was published.

Now, the television

JOHN QUINCY ADAMS, aka James Cook, couldn't miss his father's party and neither could Congressman William Delahunt, the first congressman from Quincy since Adams. series is expected to bring even more visitors and the city and the National Park Service (NPS) is getting ready.

In fact, Marianne Peak, Superintendent of the Adams National Historical Park, announced that the NPS recently approved 12 additional seasonal hires for the Adams park in Quincy because of the potential surge in tourists.

Peak said the added staff will include eight guides and four grounds workers. In addition, she will meet today (Thursday) with members of the Quincy Historical Society and others to map out a "Walking Tour" for city visitors.

"Through the adventures of this mini-series, we will celebrate

DPW, Councillors Pledge City-Wide Flood Control Plan

By LAURA GRIFFIN

Public works officials will prepare a comprehensive citywide plan to address flooding problems by mid-summer, according to Michael Coffey, Business Manager for the Department of Public Works (DPW).

Coffey spoke Monday after a dozen residents described the chronic flooding that devastates their homes and businesses, destroys their cars and ruins their property at a public hearing of the Public Works Committee.

Some of the problems in the city's 24 flood zones may require long-term solutions or indefinite delays due to multi-million dollar costs while other areas may only require a quick fix by an in-house DPW team, according to Coffey.

The new city administration plans to address all these issues, according to Coffey who said of Mayor Thomas Koch. "He's committed. He's asked for a long-term plan."

Coffey, also, announced that the city has been awarded a $400,000 MEMA (Massachusetts Emergency Management Agency) grant for the Berlin and Weston Avenue area flood zone.

The construction project, scheduled to go out for bid in June, will enlarge the drainage system, relocate some drainage and cover pipe cleaning in that zone. The city will cover 25 percent of the cost.

Committee Chairman Joseph Finn called the special hearing on flooding at the request of Ward 5 Councillor Douglas Gutro and Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymond.

Finn said efforts should be made to "address (flooding) as a city problem instead of trying to do it in each ward."

"We're going to overcome that quiet defeatism that we can't fix everything so

Pact Includes Pay Raises, But Larger Health Cost Share

New City Hall Union Contract Finalized

Mayor Thomas Koch and City Hall workers finalized a new contract Monday in which employees will pay a larger share of health insurance costs and receive pay raises.

Koch and the Quincy Public Employees Association signed a four-year contract that includes annual pay raises of about three percent over the course of the contract and will require employees to pay a 10 percent higher share of health insurance benefits.

"It is a contract that is fair to our employees, fair to our taxpayers and recognizes the economic challenges our city faces in coming years," said Koch. "I appreciate the work of our employees, and I appreciate their willingness to sit at the table and broker an agreement."

The union, which represents 136 clerical, information technology, and office workers, has been without a contract since 2006. The successful negotiations, which began shortly after Koch took office in January, leaves one major city union still at the bargaining table—the city's firefighters. A number of small unions in the school department are also actively negotiating.

The pay raises included in the contract reflect those granted to other unions over the last year, Koch said.

"It is a very fair contract, the entire union feels that way," said Dominic Venturelli, president of the Quincy Public Employees Association. "It was nice to actually sit down and have a bargaining session."

The city currently pays for 90 percent of the health care costs of employees, a number that will drop to 85 percent in July and to 80 percent on July 1, 2009. Co-pay-

Squantum School Collects New Socks, Underwear For Homeless Kids

For the second year in a row, Squantum School students have collected hundreds of new socks and underwear for Boston Health Care for the Homeless Program.

The organization will distribute the items to area homeless children.

Teacher Kim Tonetti's second grade class headed up the drive, which brought in 227 pairs of socks and 142 pairs of underwear for this worthy cause.

"It's an important thing for our children to realize that there are kids their own age who need basic necessities like socks and underwear," said school nurse Maureen Spillane, who helped organize the Squantum drive. "I think it's great for our students to learn about giving back. This is a fabulous gift of generosity and I'm very proud of our kids."

The Squantum Schools collection is part of a larger annual drive organized by Boston Health Care for the Homeless Program (BHCHP), an organization that delivers medical care to homeless patients in the Boston area. The organizations staff members will distribute the socks and underwear collected by the Squantum School at the family shelters where they deliver care.

Community groups and schools are welcome to do their own drives this month for Boston Health Care for the Homeless Program.

Rabies Clinic April 19 At The Animal Shelter

The Health Department will hold a rabies immunization clinic Saturday, April 19, from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. at the Quincy Animal Shelter, 56 Broad St., behind the Bryan VFW Post and Father Bill's Place.

The clinic will be held, rain or shine, and is offered at a minimal cost of $10 for each dog and cat in an effort to strongly encourage pet owners to have their dogs and cats immunized against this serious disease.

Residents must bring proof of immunization from a previous year to obtain a three-year shot.

Rabies is an infectious and contagious viral disease that is transmitted from exposed wildlife to dogs and cats who in turn can transmit the disease to humans through bite wounds.

It is considered to be 100 per cent fatal if untreated. Exposed dogs and cats that are not vaccinated must be either isolated for three months or destroyed.

Last year, 280 animals tested at the State Laboratory in Boston were found to be positive for rabies. About 15 per cent of the dogs and cats exposed to rabies had to be put to sleep as none were vaccinated.

Dogs and cats must be vaccinated once over three months of age and re-vaccinated within nine to 12 months after the first vaccination. Thereafter, the animals may be vaccinated once every three years.

For those pets who received the yearly vaccine at the April 21, 2007, clinic, the second yearly vaccine must be received this year at the April 19, 2008, clinic.

For those dogs or cats who received two vaccines less than one year apart and show proof of these vaccinations, a three-year vaccine will be administered at the appropriate clinics.

In addition to vaccinating dogs and cats, there are a number of other precautions that can be taken to avoid possible rabies contamination.

- Do not touch, pick up or feed wild or stray animals of any kind.

- Teach children to avoid wildlife and strays.

- Avoid sick or strangely acting animals.

- Fasten trash can lids securely. Garbage attracts raccoons and skunks.

- Cap chimneys and seal openings into the house to prevent raccoons from entering or building dens.

- If you are bitten or scratched by any animal, you should promptly wash the wound with soapy water and contact a doctor immediately.

- If your pet has been bitten or scratched by any animal, wear gloves, wash the wound with warm soapy water for at least 10 minutes and contact your veterinarian immediately.

- On March 28, 1979, the worst accident in the history of the U.S. nuclear power industry begins when a pressure valve in the Unit-2 reactor at the Three Mile Island plant near Harrisburg, Pa., fails to close. As engineers struggled to understand what had happened, the reactor came within less than an hour of a complete meltdown.
- On March 24, 1989, the worst oil spill in U.S. territory begins when the supertanker Exxon Valdez runs aground on a reef in Prince William Sound in southern Alaska. An estimated 11 million gallons of oil eventually spilled into the water, polluting more than 700 miles of coastline.

Obama, Wright And Questions

The war on words between Hillary Clinton and Barack Obama continues to heat up and getting more personal.

But, is everyone listening?

Or, are their thoughts stuck on the incendiary remarks of Rev. Jeremiah Wright, Obama's pastor of 20 years at Trinity United Church of Christ in Chicago.

Or did Obama's speech on race, called eloquent by many, take the heat off him.

Both Wright's hate-filled words and Obama's speech leave a few questions.

Wright comes through as an anti-American rabble-rouser spewing poisonous statements about America from his pulpit with the congregation's approval.

Some of those words rubbed off on Obama who now faces a let's-take-a-closer-look-at-him by the voters.

Obama can't be blamed for Wright's outrageous loose cannon.

But many believe he should have distanced himself from Wright and that church which honored the notorious Louis Farrakhan with a lifetime achievement award.

Achievement of what? Hate?

Obama has referred to Wright as his mentor, family friend, and adviser the last 20 years.

If he wasn't in a pew when Wright was tossing his anti-American hand grenades from the pulpit he must have heard about them.

How could he remain in that church and so close to Wright?

Was it because he needed the support of both to further his political career?

Obama in his speech in response to public reaction to Wright's comments, said, he condemned Wright's words.

"The profound mistake of Reverend Wright's sermons is not that he spoke about racism in our society. It's that he spoke as if our society was static, as if no progress had been made."

Obama pointed to his viable candidacy for president as evidence of the progress that has been made, and his support by both blacks and whites.

But not really distancing himself from Wright, he said:

"I can no more disown him than I can disown the black community. I can no more disown him than I can disown my white grandmother."

Obama spoke at the National Constitution Center in Philadelphia in a patriotic setting with a bank of American flags behind him.

But the flags had some of us thinking of Wright's atrocious unpatriotic remarks:

"No, not God Bless America. God Damn America."

Referring to America as the U.S.KKK.A."

After the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks: "America's chickens are coming home to roost."

America was built on "white supremacy and black inferiority."

"The country is being run by rich white people."

Those are Wright's words, not Obama's. But they may haunt him for the rest of the campaign with Wright as his albatross.

If Obama is the Democratic nominee, you'll see and hear those words over and over, compliments of the Republican Party.

Don't know how you feel, but the fact that Obama can't seem to disown Wright bothers me.

If Obama is elected, could an anti-America basher like Wright, get the ear of the President of the United States during time of crisis or need for delicate diplomacy?

Fundraiser For Hamel Family Sunday

Friends, family and neighbors of the Hamel family have planned a fundraiser, Sunday, March 30 p.m., from 5 p.m. to 9 p.m. at Venezia Restaurant, 20 Ericsson St., Dorchester.

The Hamel's daughter, seven-year-old Samantha, was recently diagnosed with Rasmussen's encephalitis which affects one side of the brain and causes uncontrollable seizures. This is an extremely rare disease, which may eventually spread to other portions of the brain.

The family has consulted medical experts at New England Medical Center and Johns Hopkins University Hospital in an effort to help their second grader. Surgery is often recommended to prevent the spread of the damage to the brain.

Now, friends and family are pitching in to help the Hamel's cope with the emotional toll and the devastating financial impact of their child's illness.

The Hamels are parishioners of St. John's Church, School Street, Quincy.

Persons interested in helping the family may purchase tickets to the event, and/or donate products, services or gift certificates.

Tickets are available for $25 each or a table of ten may be reserved for $250 by calling Capt. Dale Freeman at 617-359-8915 or Margaret Laforest at 617-471-1806.

Correspondence or checks may, also, be sent to The Hamel Family Fund, c/o Citizens Bank, 495 Southern Artery, Quincy 02169 or the Hamel Family Fund, c/o Capt. Dale Freeman, 262 Palmer St., Quincy, 02169.

Reducing the $3.9 Million Sewer, Water Accounts Deficit

I would like to submit the following letter to the editor concerning the estimated $3.9 million deficit in the sewer and water enterprise accounts.

The City has recently (within the last three Fiscal Years) set up an enterprise fund to pay for all direct and indirect costs of the sewer and water program. The major problem in these accounts appears to be under funding the rate increase for the sewer account and water collections.

Whether or not, the City has chosen to co-mingle these funds, I'm not sure that the City would have the legal authority to use the sewer rehab account to pay these shortages in the account. The sewer rehab account is set up for construction and repair of sewer lines. Also, I think the City could have the funds available without tapping into this fund.

Several years back, I had a discussion with the former Mayor regarding the almost $5 million dollars that was turned back by city departments from unspent money in their Fiscal Year budget. These unspent funds typically become part of the certified free cash, which has in the past been used to reduce the tax rate and fund stabilization. According to the Department of Revenue's municipal data bank, the City of Quincy's free cash certification from Fiscal Year 2004 to Fiscal Year 2006 was the following:

FY 2004: $ -365,139
FY 2005: $ 6,402,569
FY 2006: $ 11,423,977
FY 2007: $ 5,694,337
FY 2008: $ 3,959,337

According to the Department of Revenue's municipal data bank, the City of Quincy's stabilization fund from Fiscal Year 2004 to Fiscal Year 2007 was:

FY 2004: $ 2,067,718
FY 2005: $ 5,359,795

FY 2006: $ 10,109,795
FY 2007: $ 12,834,395

A one-percent turn back of unused budgetary funds for this Fiscal Year from City departments would be approximately $2.6 million dollars. A two-percent turn back of unused budgetary funds for this Fiscal Year would be approximately $5.2 million dollars. My suggestion is that the City uses any money this year that is turned back by city departments and certified to free cash to reduce the $3.9 million water deficit.

Julia Seeks Help For Worthy Cause In India

My name is Julia Berberan and I am writing on behalf of a volunteer program I am involved in at St. Michael's College called MOVE-Mobilization Of Volunteer Efforts.

In May, I will be going to Kolkata (formerly known as Calcutta), India to work in Mother Theresa's homes for three weeks. I'm really excited about this opportunity, to be able to simultaneously help the poor and be immersed in Indian culture. I think it will be quite an experience.

I'll be working with the Missionaries of Charity in Daya dan-a home for physically and mentally challenged children who have been abandoned by their families, and Prem dan-a home for poor men and women who are very sick. I'll also spend time at Brother Xavier's New Life, New Hope Orphanage, which rescues children from the red-light district and is maintained primarily by donations made through the MOVE program.

I'll do whatever I can do to help, which among others things will probably include: bathing, changing, and feeding people; giving massages; playing with children; cleaning; and sometimes just sitting with people to listen and offer comfort.

Our program has been doing this trip for five years, and every year the students do a number of different fundraisers to help pay for the trip and also to donate to the organizations in Kolkata which are working towards helping the poor. If you are able to make any contribution I would be extremely grateful, but just some kind words of encouragement would also be greatly appreciated. Thank you so much.

Donations are tax-deductible; please make any checks out to MOVE-extended service and mail to:

Thank you,

Bearing The Brunt

I think, instead of our councillors arguing over changes in the building codes, they should consider building mental institutions for the ones they are driving cuckoo over the latest "beauty" – the $3.9 million deficit in the water and sewer accounts.

Once again, we, the citizens, are going to bear the brunt of someone's mismanagement. Isn't that just lovely?

Shipyard Awarded Second Nuclear Sub Contract

By FRANK MCCAULEY

The Fore River Shipyard has been awarded a contract for a second nuclear-powered submarine at a cost of $33 million dollars.

The contract is the second to be awarded the Quincy-yard for a nuclear-powered submarine.

COUNCIL TO STUDY METER REMOVAL PLAN

The City Council will include a study of the parking meter removal question when the special committee headed by Councillor George G. Burke meets in his office.

Councillor James S. McCormack who proposed the study committee and Councillor Carl W. Anderson, who is a leader in the movement for the abolition of parking meters, are the other committee members.

The Quincy-South Shore Chamber of Commerce through its traffic and parking committee opposed removal of the meters from the big parking areas.

LEE BACKS MAYOR ON RETIRING METERED PARKING

Planning Director James Lee, in a letter to Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa, supported the mayor's position in opposing the removal of parking meters. Both Della Chiesa and Lee noted that parking meters control parking and bring annual revenue of $110,000 a year to the city.

(Editor's note: The parking meters were not removed from the parking areas until the mid-1980s when they were replaced with a validated parking system.)

600 Participate Aboard USS Salem Annual Easter Egg Hunt

Nearly 600 people participate in the USS Salem's recent annual Easter Egg Hunt.

The event, which is a fundraiser for the U.S. Naval Shipbuilding Museum, is organized by staff and volunteers who stuff and hide more than 4,000 Easter Eggs and host activities from egg decorating to face painting.

This year, 12 students and a teacher from the Point Webster Middle School in Quincy helped with hiding eggs and organizing activities. The students - Casey Smith, Rachel Smith, Amanda Wong, Noemi Monterroso, Abigail Monterroso, Jay Newman, Michelle Lee, Vivian Lee, Felisa Chau, Meghan Lieu, Hilary Chen and Kelly Kung - were accompanied by their teacher Janet Loftus and are part of a program that gets students involved in the community by participating in community service projects and opportunities.

"We really enjoy having the students from Point Webster Middle School participate," said Salem Executive Director Michael Condon.

"They got to see first hand how each person can contribute to a great cause and have fun at the same time. Our thanks go out to the students, teachers and principal of Point Webster," Condon added.

The USS Salem and U.S. Naval Shipbuilding Museum are located at the foot of the Fore River Bridge, 379 Washington St., Quincy.

QHS Computer Students Share Skills With Elders

Students from the Information Technology major at Quincy High School are skipping their Info Tech 2/3 class each Wednesday to intern at the Quincy Rehabilitation & Nursing Center, 11 McGrath Highway.

The students, whose knowledge of the computer is second nature, have discovered the satisfaction of sharing that knowledge with senior citizens and neighbors who lack computer skills.

The kids have been working with the elderly residents since the spring of 2007 through the Center's Executive Director Cathy Raftery and the Activities Director Joanne Waldron.

Some residents merely want to learn Word; others are interested in Internet, particularly to e-mail relatives and friends; still others want to learn Excel or computer games or other programs.

Working closely with his Information Technology teacher, Ed Holmes, the site coordinator for the program is Yong Jie Tan, a Quincy High School senior, who works with residents and manages the schedule.

Other students involved include Ruhul Shah, Gustavo Graca, Ade Carson, Thanh Chau, Adams Jean-Baptiste, Sebastien Joseph, Ryan Lally, Jin Lem, Peter Weng and Matt Zaborowski.

Coughlin, Gutro Attend National Cities Conference

City Councillors Kevin Coughlin and Doug Gutro attended the recent Congressional City Conference of the National League of Cities in Washington to discuss national legislation affecting cities like Quincy.

They listened to top Congressional leadership and prominent political analysts offer their views on what to expect from Congress during the current legislative session.

"As city councillors, we know how important the relationship between federal and local government is to the health and well-being of our city," said Coughlin.

"In this critical election year, this conference is a valuable opportunity for us to let Congress and the presidential candidates know that changes made at the federal level can have profound impacts on our ability to provide services at the local level.

"Our message is clear: America is built on the backs of cities like Quincy and irrespective of the outcome of the 2008 elections, the road to the White House runs through America's cities."

Speakers at the conference included House Speaker Nancy Pelosi, Sen. Bernie Sanders of Vermont, House Majority Whip James Clyburn of South Carolina, House Financial Services Committee Chairman Barney Frank of Massachusetts and news analysts Mark Shields and Donna Brazile.

DOUG GUTRO

Coughlin and Gutro also met with Sens. John Kerry and Ted Kennedy and Congressman Bill Delahunt to discuss funding for environmental grants, Community Development Block Grants and the economic crisis.

"When 4,000 city officials descend on Capital Hill, you can bet that sends a message to Congress," said Gutro.

"As part of a small cadre of Massachusetts officials meeting face to face with both of our senators as well as Congressman Delahunt, we had an opportunity to speak candidly about how the economic, environmental, public safety and transportation related issues pending before Congress will affect Quincy and its residents."

ments, currently between $5 and $15, will double in 2009.

Koch said he expects the contract to provide substantial savings for taxpayers, adding the new administration is actively pursuing a number of additional options to reign in health care costs. The city will ask health care providers to submit new proposals for providing insurance benefits to city workers, and the city's Insurance Advisory Committee is reviewing the potential of enrolling in the state Group Insurance Commission.

"There has to be a process, and that is exactly what we are doing," Koch said.

"Our plan is to settle outstanding contracts and then start exploring long-term options. Change is difficult, and it will only happen if everybody involved is sitting at the table and negotiating."

Are you the picture of health?

"Colorectal cancer is the 2nd leading cause of cancer death. But it doesn't have to be."

Katie Couric, Co-Founder
EIF's National Colorectal Cancer Research Alliance

Colorectal cancer and precancerous polyps don't always cause symptoms. So you can look healthy and feel fine and not know there may be a problem. Screening helps find polyps so they can be removed before they turn into colorectal cancer. This is one cancer you can prevent! Screening can also find colorectal cancer early, when treatment often leads to a cure. If you're 50 or older, make sure you really are the picture of health. Get screened for colorectal cancer.

Cooperation

I picked up some catered items from a local restaurant and the owner and I got into a discussion. The discussion began when I asked how he was doing keeping up with system maintenance requirements. You see, even on a day off, it's nearly impossible not to look at your surroundings with an inspectional eye and put the inspector side of us to rest.

He conveyed that he was on schedule. The conversation continued and he mentioned how cooperative a couple of inspectors were when he had recently renovated and added on to the premise. I in turn conveyed that we are well aware of the commitment merchants make to open and maintain a venue such as restaurant, and the respect we typically have for their efforts. Considering that appreciation, cooperation and comes easily.

As you might be aware by now, this office inspects an establishment where alcohol is consumed, that includes bars, restaurants and nightclubs. To satisfactorily pass our inspection, an owner must prove to us that various in place safety systems are being maintained as required. It's a daunting task to prod and reeducate owners as to the requirements, while I'd like to take this opportunity to do so here as well.

Fire alarm systems shall be tested no less than two times a year.

Sprinkler systems shall be tested according to the NFPA-25 standard.

Kitchen fire suppression systems shall be inspected and serviced every six months.

Hood and ductwork shall be inspected every six months and grease removal performed as needed.

Fire extinguishers shall be maintained yearly.

Confirming conformity to these system maintenance schedules is just part of the inspection process. Once confirmed, a walkthrough ensues while emphasis is placed on maintaining a level of safety within the premise 365 days a year.

Everyone benefits in a well-maintained, safe environment. Our inspectional efforts center so much on selling this theme. While our appreciation for owners and their efforts are quite apparent to us, we trust that they realize and embrace the importance of our efforts as well.

Meanwhile we ask that they be mindful that we are always available to assist them with these efforts or remind them of their importance trusting that their appreciation of us will lead to their cooperation as well.

We thank them for it!

Murphy Enthusiastic Over Tough New Job

It was only his second day on what may be one of the South Shore's most difficult jobs and Dave Murphy was enthusiastic.

"It's a fantastic opportunity," said the new executive secretary of Randolph, a troubled town facing an unpopular 2 1/2 override vote and a state takeover of its school system.

"Randolph is in a situation that is similar to a lot of towns in Massachusetts," he said. "Times are tough everywhere."

Murphy, who served as director of operations in the administration of former Quincy Mayor William Phelan, took over as chief executive under the Randolph Board of Selectmen Monday.

Details of his three-year

contract have not yet been fully settled but the five-member Board put a unanimous stamp of approval on his hiring at last week's meeting.

"We're still in negotiations now," he said, "but it should be finished within the week. It just remains to dot the i's and cross the t's."

Selectmen Chairman Paul Connors said the board is working to change Murphy's job title from executive secretary to town manager, which would give him more authority.

And the job does not require that he live in Randolph as do so many similar posts. He plans to retain his home in Quincy.

A Job Well Done

On Monday, March 17, at approximately 1:30 P.M., Officer Joseph McGunigle and several other units were dispatched to Citizens Bank at 1200 Hancock St. on "Bank Robbery in progress" call.

As the officers headed towards the bank, the dispatcher (Officer Lauren Lambert) stated over the air that the suspect fled the bank and was running down Coddington Street, last seen in front of the Quincy College area. The description of clothing, a black hat and brown jacket, as well as physical characteristics were given out to all Officers in the area.

As Officer McGunigle drove up Coddington Street, the dispatcher told the officers that a bank teller followed the suspect and was advising the Dispatcher.

Officer McGunigle spotted a male fitting the description given, walking at a fast pace eastbound on Coddington Street, towards the police station. The officer pulled up next to the suspect, exited his cruiser and asked the suspect, who was breathing heavily, where he was coming from. The suspect started to reach into his right rear pocket, but Officer McGunigle ordered him to keep his hands out of his pockets for the Officer's safety.

The suspect then pushed the Officer away and ran off, with Officer McGunigle giving chase. Officer McGunigle pulled his service weapon out and told the suspect to stop, but he kept running while yelling back, "Shoot me!" The suspect then threw a small plastic object on the ground, which was undistinguishable.

The chase led Officers across Coddington Street onto Spear Street and into back yards, where Officers' John Leuchte and Tom Peppjonovic arrived and joined in the pursuit from a different direction. When the suspect emerged from the backyards and back to Spear Street, Officers Leuchte and Peppjonovic wrestled the suspect to the ground. The suspect fought the officers as they tried to handcuff him, but he was soon in custody.

The suspect was transported back to the bank where two bank tellers viewed the suspect individually from inside the bank doorway, as the suspect stood outside of the cruiser. The first teller stated, "That's him" and when asked on a scale of 1-100, he stated, "I'm 100% sure." The second teller then viewed the suspect and he also confirmed that the suspect was the person who robbed him. On a scale of 1-100, the teller stated, "I'm 90% sure it was him."

The bank teller who dealt with the suspect at the teller window stated that the suspect came up to him and passed a note which stated, "Held by force - Render cash amount '3 grand' or die. No dye or quick moves." The teller, surprised by this request, said, "Are you serious?" The teller thought that the suspect looked like he was on drugs, but when he didn't respond to his question, the Teller gave him some money and then activated the silent alarm.

The suspect then left the bank out the bank's rear door and the teller yelled out, "I've just been robbed." The Teller watched the suspect from the windows as he ran across Huntley Road, onto Seville Road, taking a left toward the parking garage. The Teller called the Police and relayed this information to Dispatch as it happened. The suspect then ran through the parking garage and came out behind the College and onto Coddington Street.

Later during the investigation, Quincy Public School Security notified the Police Officers that the suspect threw items in or near their dumpster. The hat and jacket were recovered at that location and this was on the school's security camera. The suspect was booked at the station and placed in a cell, where he tried to hang himself with his own T-shirt. Officers quickly went into his cell and removed any items, which could be used to hurt himself.

An audit by the bank showed $660 dollars in twenties missing. The suspect had $680 dollars on him and $660 was in twenties. As part of the investigation, Detective William Monteith collected the clothing items from the dumpster, noting that they were situated on top of other trash. President's Place (1250 Hancock Street) also has video surveillance of the parking garage, as well as the surrounding streets.

Detective Monteith reviewed the video footage that showed the suspect walking into the garage from Saville Avenue. The suspect, wearing the brown jacket and black hat, cut through the garage and headed out to Faxon Avenue. The video showed the suspect walking towards the dumpster where the clothing was found. Copies of both videos were obtained for court purposes.

The suspect, a 35 year old homeless man, was charged with "Bank Robbery." Nice Work!

Pledge City-Wide Flood Control Plan

"we don't fix anything..." said Finn who urged residents to stay on top of the issue, suggesting that persistence is important.

"Each and every year that we don't take corrective action, it costs more," said Raymondi who added, "The past (mayoral) administration has been woefully deficient."

Gutro said the purpose of the meeting was to provide "a citywide forum and, hopefully, an action plan."

As for his constituents, Gutro said, "You wouldn't know what they face." He described the parking lots at Tobin Towers and 85 Clay St. which residents refer to "affectionately as their pool."

"People lose their cars there," said Gutro. "Some of the photos are frightening."

"There's got to be a better way to handle these issues," said Ward 4 Councillor Jay Davis, Council President who described remedial efforts formulated more than a decade ago.

Davis said that he did not encourage his constituents to attend the meeting, fearing that, once again, there would be false hope for solutions.

"I have absolutely no confidence," said Davis, adding that he believes that officials will wait until residents "sue us and we're forced into spending the money."

Ward 4 residents came anyhow with one resident who has lived there 23 years stating, "We're drowning down there."

"It seems to have gotten worse over the last 17 years," said Bob Gallagher of Alrick Rd, adding that he's paying for flood insurance which has a $5000 deductible. "I can't even refinance."

"My backyard fills up like a swimming pool," said Gallagher, who suggested that the area drainage pipe needs to be enlarged so that the water can get down to Black's Creek and get out.

Other residents described years of inaction during which, they said, the city officials failed to respond to their calls, while neglecting basic maintenance, such as cleaning drains and repairing culverts.

"Our requests have gone unanswered in the last administration," said Chris Potter of Weston Avenue who described five to six foot puddles that are three feet deep.

George Kober of Linden Street blamed a "lack of maintenance" as well as an increase in impervious surfaces due to development.

In the Wollaston Station area, Carla Moran described snow piles melting into pools so deep that "my three-year old niece could go swimming" and puddles that prevent walking in the area, particularly for those with wheelchairs, walkers and crutches.

"It's 2008 and nothing has happened," said Molly Mullen of Hammond Court, who said that flooding has gotten worse. "I'd like to stay there and have it better."

George Haivannis, owner of Wollaston Wines and Spirits, Inc., described flooding that "creates a lake in the middle of the parking lot."

Marcia Bailey, Executive Director, and Wayne Morse, Superintendent of the Wollaston Child Care Center, said they had to close for the very first time on Feb. 14 because of flooding.

Bailey described writing to City Hall in the past, "We didn't even get a return letter."

"We have never been closed due to a storm," said Bailey who described three classrooms under water. Bailey and her staff worked through the night to reopen on Feb. 15 and she praised Health Agent Drew Scheele for his response to the Center's emergency.

"It looked like a trout stream running down the halls," said Morse who called the issue "a man-made problem."

So far this spring, there have been two major flooding episodes, according to Coffey who outlined the DPW's response on both Feb. 13 and March 7.

On both dates, the city closed the tidal gates at Black's Creek, and manned over 30 pumps across the city with 26 to 28 employees working 24 hours straight.

"We were shocked ourselves it could get that bad," Coffey said of the Feb. 13 flooding, noting the problem of 2.5 inch heavy rains was compounded by melting snow, the frozen ground, and the timing of high tide.

"We do have fish in the basements of a few homes," said Coffey who later stated, "The ray of hope is we can respond."

As an immediate improvement, Coffey directed that an additional phone line be installed for emergency calls and that a response team be available for calls. In addition, the DPW will seek funds for more pumps.

"We can do a better job of clean-out," said Coffey who provided councillors with a description of the city's 24 flood zones, along with potential solutions and costs.

According to the list, seven areas can be improved or corrected in-house by city employees or through negotiation with private entities, such as Granite Links and Highpoint management.

Another eight flood zones have remedial cost estimates for under $500,000. Several of those plans are several years old and may cost considerably more today.

For example, the report for Flood Zone 4 at Independence and Goddard Street states, "Flooding in this area appears to be a maintenance issue associated with leaves, debris, sand, etc. flowing into the catch basins." The report also cites the need for an additional catch basin.

In another instance, there is run-off from the Highpoint development on Quarry Street, West Quincy, and Coffey said, "We have to talk to the Highpoint people."

Construction of a new drainage system between Sixth Avenue and Chubbuck Street, Quincy Point, is also ready to go out to bid.

However, improving the city's major flood areas will likely total well over $40 million, according to old estimates available at this time. That figure may be much too low as the estimates may rely on outdated studies.

According to Coffey's preliminary report, several projects may fall under state jurisdiction.

According to that report, a $20 million pricetag was quoted for improvements at Revere Road and Bigelow Street but the state Department of Conservation and Recreation apparently is responsible and has taken no action.

The second most expensive project is the Sheldon, Ballou, Connell, Robertson and Alrick Rd areas where a cost of $18 million was assigned in 2000 for a rejected plan. No action has been taken and the cost estimates and plans have not been updated.

City Readies For Record Tourist Season

Quincy's historic roots and the influences of a most remarkable patriot," Peak told the Granite Links audience.

"We are reminded that we, that Quincy, have the real thing—the land John Adams (set foot on), the community and people he represented, his home with furnishings he touched....the place he called 'home,' his Peacefield."

Mayor Thomas Koch urged the audience to offer a warm welcome for the visitors, "We need a lot of friendly faces."

"Thank God for David McCullough," said Koch, adding, "Most communities would love to have the Park Service in their community."

"It's spectacular. It's superb," said Delahunt of the Adams series. "It brings this city alive. You observe courage...."

Delahunt said that the Adams' series should be incorporated into the education of every student in the city.

The city's tourism director Mark Carey organized the event which concluded with a raffle and the showing of two videos produced for Discover Quincy.

The audience applauded the videos which feature Quincy highlights and tourist attractions, such as its oceanfront, its historic sites and its varied restaurants.

Carey said the films will be used to promote tourism and film production in the city.

Dry vs. Wet Basements

Q. I've been searching for an apartment in an area where a lot of old homes are split into apartments, and I hear agents and landlords refer to their basements as either "dry" basements or "wet" basements. What exactly do those terms mean? — Trudy C., Worcester, Mass.

A. "Dry" vs. "wet" are, in general, quick references to whether a home's basement has been sealed against water seepage, leaks and condensation — or not. Many of the Northeast's turn-of-the-century houses have what might lightly be called "wet" basements because they were not designed to keep dampness out completely. Some have plain dirt floors or, at best, wooden planks overlaying the earth beneath it.

Even recently built homes can have "wet" or unsealed basements. The kind of soil in which a basement is set and the level of an area's water table can determine whether a basement will tend toward "wet" or "dry" — or if a basement can even be built at all. (For example, most homes in Florida do not have basements because of the soil — hard limestone — and a high water table.)

Today's homes are supposed to be built with drains that move water away from the foundation and basement walls. But many drains are not properly installed or inadequate, leaving homeowners with a damp basement and, in some cases, one that even floods in heavy rains, forcing them to keep appliances set above the floor. These are basements that one goes into only out of necessity.

A "dry" basement is well-sealed and has drains that move water well away from the walls and floor. Leaks and flooding are rarely a problem. Because most basements have a significant amount of square footage, the dry basement is the most desirable. A well-sealed, well-drained basement can be fitted out into a living space with Sheetrock walls, carpeting or tile.

John Heaney Receives Second-Place In 'Dancing With The Realtors' Competition

Realtor John Heaney of Century 21 Annex Realty of Quincy recently competed and won second-place honors in the Eastern United States Dancesports Championships, one of the nation's premiere dance competitions.

Heaney signed up to take part in the "Dancing with the Realtors" competition sponsored by the Plymouth and South Shore Association of Realtors (PASS) last October.

Inspired by the popular "Dancing with the Stars" television show, "Dancing with the Realtors" began last spring with the Eastern Middlesex Association of Realtors. The idea has since caught on and spread both to the North Central associations and PASS.

All proceeds from the events are donated to local chapters of Habitat for Humanity which, to date, has raised more than $80,000 for this life-changing charity.

Last October, Heaney was named the best all-around male dancer of the evening, earning him the right to compete in the finals against 18 Realtors from around the state. At a competition Feb. 8, Heaney and his partner, Ann Marie Paul of Weymouth-based DanceSport Boston, claimed second prize with an energetic foxtrot.

"When I first heard about the event, I jumped at the chance to participate," Heaney said. "Habitat for Humanity is such a great cause, and I've been involved with the organization in the past. I'm glad my participation in such a fun event is helping someone else in need."

Tried-and-True Household Tricks Often Work Best

(NAPS)—Cars are parallel parking themselves, digital picture frames practically hold short films and living rooms are vacuumed by robots. Still, the whole world hasn't gone high tech.

In fact, when it comes to dealing with many of life's more mundane housekeeping tasks—removing discoloration from glassware, say—lifestyle expert Sissy Biggers says the old-fashioned methods are best.

"High-tech solutions are great, but it's the tried-and-true household tricks that have stood the test of time," says Biggers, the creator and host of "A Big Life With Sissy Biggers" on msn.com.

Her answer to the discoloration problem, by the way? Soaking them in white vinegar and salt. Here's a look at some of Biggers' other favorites:

Chilling Wine

Use a cold compress from the freezer to preserve the chill on a bottle of wine. Just wrap it around the bottle, secure it with a rubber band, and drape the bottle with an attractive towel if you're entertaining.

Protecting Boots

It may sound odd, but after you drink the wine, put the empty bottles in your boots. They'll keep them their shape—without stretching them out—and keep your closet looking organized.

Dryer Sheets

Biggers says there's a good reason that nearly 39 percent of us use dryer sheets for other purposes. "The sheets are completely versatile," she explains. "You can put a Bounce sheet in your shoes or in your closet to keep them smelling nice."

Or if you're hitting the gym, you can throw a sheet in your bag to keep it from smelling like the locker room."

There's even a Website—www.bounceeverywhere.com—that lists dozens of different uses for the sheets. Those who visit the site and share their unique uses for dryer sheets could have their story made into an advertisement. And in tribute to looking clean and smelling fresh, every week one lucky Bounce user will be selected to receive a month of free cleaning service for their home.

Storing Earrings

As a final tip, Biggers says there's an easy way to keep from misplacing earrings: Loop them through buttonholes. That way you'll know exactly where to find them, whether at home or while traveling.

Visit www.bounceeverywhere.com for more tips and ideas.

Adult Finances 101

Many of us took a high-school class called something like "General Business," designed to teach us how to write a check, fill out job applications and create a simple budget, but that didn't begin to prepare us for the realities of handling money in adulthood.

Where, as adults, do we go to learn about money? The government's Financial Literacy and Education Commission has created a "My Money" Web site full of information we need, almost a do-it-yourself money course. This is a very comprehensive site, covering topics such as home ownership, how to pay for a college education, budgeting and taxes, frauds and scams, and starting a small business. Each links to the appropriate government agency where even more information is presented. The site is well worth the time it takes to investigate and read.

Additionally the site offers a free My Money tool kit, containing nine publications packed with good information, that you can get for free or access online.

The best of the tool kits is a 32-page booklet called Savings Fitness: A Guide to Your Money and Your Financial Future. This alone is worth sending for as an overview of financial topics and guidance. It covers your financial dreams, getting started with a savings plan, setbacks, planning for retirement and more.

- The Consumer Action Handbook is a 176-page consumer book with topics such as writing complaint letters, auto manufacturer resolution programs, and state and federal agency contact information.

- Also worth having is the Consumer Information Catalog, a list of education resources from the Federal Citizen Information Center. The information pamphlets are either free or very low cost, and the list of topics is nearly endless. The catalog comes out four times a year. The publications themselves can be seen at www.pueblo.gsa.gov, the government's printing arm. There's a $2 savings if you order your pamphlets online.

- Get the Facts on Saving and Investing walks you through calculating your net worth, setting your goals, picking an investment product and determining your risk tolerance.

You can access the My Money tool kit online at mymoney.gov, order it online or call to have your own free tool kit sent to you. Call Monday through Friday at 1-888-696-6639 (888-mymoney) between 8 a.m. and 8 p.m.

Commercial Real Estate:

A Land Of Opportunity?

(NAPS) - Investing in commercial real estate involves a lot more than finding an available property and a willing lender.

Whether a novice or a seasoned veteran, those investing in a commercial property—which could be residential property, retail location or a building created for industrial use—must address a range of issues such as:

- Which cash flow scenarios make the most sense;
- What's the optimal way to manage the property;
- How are leased or rental properties categorized, how to prospect for tenants and how to create a niche in the marketplace;
- How best to accurately establish property values; and
- What is the best strategy for managing capital gains and other tax-related obligations.

Fortunately, there's good news for investors who are considering an investment in commercial real estate but don't know where to begin.

A well-known real estate firm has the knowledge to assist the commercial real estate investor. The Century 21 Commercial program is supported by professionals who are specially trained in the commercial and investing markets and can help investors make informed decisions. Whether vacant land, a strip mall, retail space or a residential property for multiple tenants, all are options. These specialists are prepared to assist with the acquisition, development and management of commercial property.

For clients wanting to invest, buy or lease, the network of specialists stands ready to assist through the use of targeted advertising, industry-leading technology, creative marketing materials and one of the largest referral networks in the real estate industry.

Century 21 Commercial sales professionals are prepared to find properties, help with the decision process and identify credit systems, local banks, mortgage brokers and other lenders to help secure the necessary funds.

Golden Manet Press Quincy Babe Ruth Champions

The guess here is that most everyone who is a baseball fan in Quincy has been up early the past two days watching our beloved Red Sox play against the Oakland Athletics in Japan.

As we get ready for another baseball season here in Quincy, let's look back to the 2007 season.

In the Quincy Babe Ruth League, Golden Manet Press finished 2007 as city champions. Manet Press finished last year's regular season with a record of 16 wins and two losses, which was good for the best record in the league.

During the playoffs, Manet Press's success continued with three decisive victories, the last one giving the team the league title.

The whole season was possible because of a complete team effort. For every game, every player that came to play saw time either at the plate or in the field. Manet Press had a strong cast of 15-year olds who led by example on and off the field. Tommy Dow, Ned Gould, Matt Pepdjonovich, Joe Edgerly, Tim Martin and Ryan Lewis passed on teamwork and good sportsmanship to the 14- and 13-year olds.

Martin was awarded with the Coach's Award and Lewis was unanimously voted the American League MVP.

15-year olds Colin Ryan, Scott Knight, Brian Malger and Chris To will lead the 2008 team. The second year players who will look to make an impact this year are Conor and Ryan Doherty, Kevin White, Zach Stearns and Joe Alibrandi.

Tony Alibrandi, Matt Edgerly, Doug Edgerly and Tom Dow make up the 2008 coaching staff.

Quincy Track Club Represented in NYC

Two weekends ago, the Quincy Track Club sent four Quincy/North Quincy student-athletes down to New York City to compete in the National Scholastic Classic of Indoor Track and Field competition.

The team of Erica Brady, Mary Schwartz, Jessica Davis and Alyssa Mullen placed 24th out of 36 entries in the 4000-meter distance relay.

Brady, running the 1200-meter leg, finished in 3:55; Schwartz, running the 400-meter leg, finished in 1:06.7; Davis, running the 800-meter leg, ran a 2:26.5 and Mullen, running the 1600-meter leg, ran a 5:24 time. The 12:55.2 finish was a nine-second improvement over the team's previous best time in the 4000-meter distance relay.

The Quincy Track Club's time of 12:55.2 was also superior to the time run by Notre Dame Academy (Hingham), a South Shore track powerhouse, the same weekend at Nike National in Maryland. The Cougars ran a time of 12:58.2.

Brady, Schwartz, Davis and Mullen ran the best time for any Massachusetts team competing in either event and their time was sixth best for all of New England in both events.

Podcasts

Q. Recently, I joined the rest of the world and bought an iPod. I wanted to be able to listen to my music as I worked out at the gym and while exercising outside. Then a co-worker mentioned to me that I could subscribe to a podcast on my iPod of exercise classes, fitness tips and health and wellness lectures. How useful are these fitness podcasts?

A. Podcast have become popular for providing information through MP3 players in pretty much any area you have an interest, including fitness. As with any other form of media, you can find benefits, and using the iPod to download podcasts is no exception.

Podcasts are digital recordings of a radio broadcast or similar programs, made available on the Internet for downloading to a personal audio player. Most subscriptions are free and require minimal effort. Depending on the type of iPod you purchased, you can subscribe to podcast with strictly audio, or audio and video.

While using iTunes for your iPod, you can search for fitness and exercise podcasts that you can download. The creator or broadcasters of the podcast are often referred to as podcasters, as they develop and post the content. Anyone with the skills and knowledge to create a podcast can post one for anyone to subscribe. This is why it is important to check the validity of the podcast, and as with magazines, Web sites and books, use good judgment when following what is said or done. Just because someone is knowledgeable enough to create a podcast does not mean he or she is an expert in that area. Follow the adage that if something looks too good to be true, it probably is.

Here are a couple of interesting and informative fitness podcasts available through iTunes:

- PilatesonFifth.com is a video podcast that teaches pilates movements and skills one movement at a time. The explanations are clear, and the demonstrations are useful and easy to follow.

- MyFreeTrainer.com shows exercises with a narrative that can be useful if you have exercise equipment at home such as a stability ball. You definitely will run out of time, and possibly memory on your iPod, before you run out of available podcasts. Exercise, nutrition, wellness and medical information are all available.

To find what you are looking for, be very specific as you search and look for names that sound familiar, there will be a description of the person(s) who created the podcast and a list of his or her credentials. Take the time to read thoroughly and visit the Web site of the podcaster if available.

Remember that although podcasts can be a great way to receive fitness, nutrition and wellness information, do your homework and research the source behind the podcast.

If you have a fitness or training question, e-mail Andrea at letters.kfw@hearstsc.com or write her in care of King Features Weekly Service, P.O. Box 536475, Orlando, FL 32853-6475

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century

by Steven A. Brustlin, D.M.D.

MAINTAINING YOUR DENTURE'S FIT

Patients who wear full dentures should continue to visit the dentist once or twice annually. These regular exams enable the dentist to screen for infections and check for signs of oral cancer. In addition, the patient's occlusion (the way that teeth bite together) must be evaluated to make sure that the dentures fit properly. Dentures rest on tissue that overlies the "alveolus," which is the underlying bone that holds that natural teeth in place. In their absence, this bony ridge gradually shrinks. In addition, edentulous (tooth-free) gums change shape over time. As a result of both bone and gum shrinkage, denture fit must be regularly modified to ensure against slippage and declining ability to chew and speak properly.

If you've lost all of your nature teeth, whether from periodontal disease, tooth decay or injury, complete dentures can replace your missing teeth and your smile. Replacing missing teeth will benefit your appearance and your health. The best news is we can fix a problem before it starts when you schedule your checkup with your dentist at least once a year. We're currently accepting new patients and welcome you to call 617-479-6220 to schedule an appointment. Call us today! We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street. We offer the services of anesthesiology with a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Visit us on the web at www.quincydentist.com.

P.S. Dentures that are fitted onto implants give patients the most comfortable and secure dentures that have ever been available.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Congratulations, Lamb. This is the week to finish your project and then bask in your well-earned approval. (And if you like, you can also say "bah" to all those detractors.)

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) The bold Bovine could find a new opportunity too intriguing to be ignored. But don't charge into it. Go slowly so you see how things develop as you get more involved.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) You might try to soften your stand on that important issue. A little more flexibility could actually get you what you're looking for. A new friend enters the picture mid-week.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Your inner voice is on the mark when it advises you to tackle that family problem now! The sooner you're able to come to terms with it, the better it will be for everyone.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Someone reveals important news about a longtime associate. But before you decide how to deal with this information, make sure it's reliable, and not simply self-serving.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Some intensive soul-searching early in the week can help you reach a decision by week's end that should please both you and the other person involved. Good luck.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) The possibility of a career change is intriguing. Learn more about what it can offer and what it cannot. Weigh everything carefully. And ask questions.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Work is your priority this week as you try to make up for lost time. Expect help from someone who cares about you. Things take a welcome turn by the weekend.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) A health problem causes some anxiety early in the week. But prompt medical attention soon eases everyone's concerns. Enjoy an arts-filled weekend.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) As much as you might resent it, a changing situation could require you to adjust your plans accordingly. The good news: An associate agrees to cooperate.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) That old problem is finally resolved, just in time for you to take on a new work-related project. This one could be the super door-opener you've been looking for.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) The early part of the week presents some difficult hurdles. But once you get over them, you can start to focus on matters that are more important to you.

BORN THIS WEEK: You are respected for your honesty and your dedication to doing the right thing, no matter how difficult that might be.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

One of the most disconcerting things which pioneers in any field must face is ridicule. And the person with a new idea which is contrary to established patterns of thought must have the courage to face the laughter of the wise ones and to proceed in spite of it. . . It has been said that ridicule is that form of rebuttal in which men generally resort when they run out of ideas. . . Is not ridicule often a sort of defense mechanism against arguments too hot to handle?

Granted, some things are well turned off with a laugh. Many a quarrel could have been stopped in the beginning if someone had had grace enough to crack a joke. Ridicule and laughter have their place in the solution of problems, but it is tragic when ridicule is substitute for reason in such solutions.

People through the ages have ridiculed many a person and many an idea. Socrates, Columbus, early automobile entrepreneurs, Scientists, Wright brothers are but a few. And how about the earth is round theory?

The courage to be laughed at by those who are supposed to know better is the courage that spells success in any pioneering venture.

FOOT NOTES

Diplomatic, American Board of Podiatric Surgery
Diplomatic, American Board of Podiatric Orthopedics

CUSTOMIZED ORTHOTICS HELP MANY CONDITIONS

The foot is a complicated mechanism that works wondrously if everything is aligned well. However, extra pressure here or a pull there can spell problems (and pain) in many cases. The right orthotics can provide dramatic improvements in decreasing pain in the foot and other areas of the body. An orthotic is an insert that goes inside the bottom of a shoe. Because it is made specifically for an individual's foot, it will control the foot's alignment and prevent injuries from conditions such as pronation (rolling in). An orthotic can also offer relief in certain parts of the foot by alleviating the pain that is the result of too much pressure, such as a callus or bunion.

Just like individualized foot care, our custom inserts and orthotics are designed to meet the specific needs of each patient who comes to us for treatment. They are the most non-invasive professional way to begin treating problems with foot mechanics. If you're tired of painful steps taking the smile out of your day, it's time for specialized podiatric care. For comprehensive foot care for everyone in your family, please call 781-988-3668. Our office is located at QUINCY MEDICAL CENTER, with office hours also available at 999 North Main St., in the Randolph Medical Office Building, and Milton Medical Building in Suite 221 I am affiliated with the Brockton and Good Samaritan Hospitals.

P.S. A podiatrist first makes a cast of a person's foot when creating a custom orthotic.

New Environmental Initiatives

City Plans To Expand 'Cleaner, Greener Quincy'

Mayor Thomas Koch announced plans Tuesday to expand the "Cleaner, Greener Quincy" program through a series of new clean-up efforts and environmental initiatives.

The annual volunteer clean-up day is scheduled for Saturday, May 3, at parks, playgrounds and beaches around the city. More than 1,500 volunteers traditionally take part, but Koch launched a major outreach effort to expand participation and support for new environmental initiatives.

"Cleaner, Greener Quincy is a wonderful day that brings out the best of our city, and we want to show that it is not just about one day," Koch said. "Working together, we can keep our neighborhoods clean, make our business districts welcoming, and work to improve the environment."

The administration announced a spring street-sweeping schedule that will double the speed of cleaning city streets of winter debris, with the ultimate goal of sweeping more streets more often, Koch said. The Park Department and the Department of Public Works are also now actively coordinating a new beautification plan for the city. All of the plans, Koch said, dovetail with the city's ongoing efforts to prepare for a tourism boost amid the new HBO series "John Adams."

Koch signed up for a series of new environmental programs this week, including taking part in the "Quincy Solar Challenge," in which he committed to paying a slightly higher electric bill at his own home every month to support renewable energy resources. If 150 Quincy households sign up for the National Grid GreenStart program by the end of the month, the city will receive a $25,000 solar panel from the Massachusetts Technology Collaborative.

In a ceremony with local environmental activists, Koch also signed the U.S. Conference of Mayors Climate Protection Agreement and with Councilor Kevin Coughlin, enlisted the city in the International Council for Local Environmental Initiatives.

"These are small, simple steps we can take as a city, and I am proud to support the work of volunteers who have pushed these issues for some time," Koch said.

Koch urged residents to get involved by picking a clean-up site for Cleaner, Greener Quincy Day and recruiting a team. The Park Department will support the cleanup effort by

Mayor's Drug Task Force Steps Off To Fast Start

Mayor Tom Koch, following up on a campaign pledge, has named an 18-member task force to fight the drug problem in Quincy — and they are wasting little time getting down to business.

Members were scheduled to organize under Chairman Brian Buckley last night (Wednesday) at 4 p.m. in the Richard Koch Family Park and Recreation Complex, One Merrymount Parkway.

"A lot of people have been working hard on this issue for a long time but we need to bring everyone together at one table to start addressing this problem as a community," said Koch.

"I am proud of the group we have assembled and look forward to working closely with every member."

The task force is a diverse group, reaching out a long way for members like Congressman Bill Delahunt, Norfolk County Sheriff Michael Bellotti and Norfolk District Attorney William Keating.

Other members include: Brian Weber, chief probation officer at Quincy District Court; Lt. Patrick Glynn of the Quincy Police Drug Unit; John Franceschini, health and physical education teacher, Quincy Public Schools; Janet Powell, director of student support services, Quincy Public Schools;

Also Ken Tarabelli of Bay State Community Services; Robyn LaFrance of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce; Cynthia Rochecotter; Nurse Sharon Giordani, Dr. James Wines, Daniel Coughlin, Nancy Holler, Kevin Glennon, Linda Mazak and Kevin Mazza.

"The Police Department is doing a great job but it is not all about enforcement," said Koch, who made a stepped-up drug fight a key platform in his campaign for mayor last year.

Faxon Field Back In Running As New Track Site

By LAURA GRIFFIN

Faxon Field resurfaced Monday as a potential site for the city's 400-meter track facility after Kristen Powers, Executive Director of the Park Department, presented a new report to the City Council's Park and Recreation Committee.

"The information we've received is quite hopeful," Powers said of a recent study of Faxon Field.

Powers' positive report on Faxon Field reignites controversy over the siting of the proposed track which has been debated by officials and residents for the past five years. On the one side are officials and residents who favor Pageant Field which is located behind Merrymount Park while others prefer Faxon Field which is located behind the new Quincy High School.

Both locations have benefits and drawbacks, such as cost estimates, negative environmental and historic impact.

In votes taken last May and June, the park commissioners and the city council approved the design and funding for a $1 million track at Pageant Field as recommended by then Mayor William Phelan.

However, Mayor Thomas

DPW Cracks Down On Sewer/Water Bill Delinquents

By LAURA GRIFFIN

City officials have begun intensive efforts to address water and sewer fund deficits beginning with a crackdown on delinquent water and sewer customers, according to Michael Coffey, Business Director of the Department of Public Works (DPW).

Coffey described other aggressive steps that the DPW has recently taken to reduce the sewer and water fund deficits when he presented an update to the City Council Finance Committee Monday.

As a result of these efforts, Coffey expects that the total deficit projected for the two funds has been reduced by $600,000 to $3.3 million.

While that's progress, the deficits will have to be shaved even more or the shortage will be carried over into 2009, according to Auditor Rick Fitzpatrick.

In one effort, the DPW sent out 2900 delinquent notices this month and got 900 responses, according to Coffey who said that such notices have not been sent in the past.

"We clearly have to do it," said Coffey. "We have a problem with collections."

Coffey then described the two-person staff that handles all the reporting and billing of water and sewer use for the city's 23,000 residential customers and 635 commercial customers.

Despite those numbers, Coffey said that the billing department basically operates on a manual system. When one of the two staff members is sick or on vacation, bills are delayed. Coffey will recommend a new clerk for the office and additional technology efforts.

For even more significant savings, Coffey said the DPW is focusing on identifying the water which is entering the city's water supply but is not being billed to retail customers.

The MWRA (Massachusetts Water Resource Authority) charges

the city for all the water sent to the city. Until recently, 32 percent of that water has not been identified or billed. That is changing, according to Coffey who said that ten percent of that water has been identified.

Coffey also described water that is entering the city's drainage system either through groundwater or leaks and costs the city money in MWRA sewer charges. The DPW has hired engineers for surveys to locate and shut down inflow and infiltration sites.

In reviewing the budget, Coffey cited an increase of $7.7 million in the funds' "Indirect Costs" between fiscal year 2007 and fiscal year 2008.

"We really have to examine these indirect costs," said Coffey.

Finance Committee Chairman John Keenan said the committee will continue their review of the sewer and water account at future meetings.

'Two Party System Vital'Quincy GOP Organizes With Logue Chairman

Quincy Republicans have organized citywide for the first time in eight years and elected Jennifer McCauley Logue as the new chairman of the GOP City Committee, hopefully injecting new life into what has become an all but moribund party.

"Experience has shown that a two-party system of government is vital to ensuring that issues like education, taxes and crime are debated thoughtfully and vigorously," said Logue, who is the daughter of Republican elder statesman Frank McCauley, a former mayor.

She noted that many elective offices go to Democrats unopposed year after year due to lack of Republican candidates.

It's due to a lack of Republican voters, too. As of the presidential primary in February, the GOP fielded only 5,794 registered voters to 24,713 for the Democrats. A total of 23,875 registered as independent.

"I am looking forward to working with local Republicans to ensure that all our citizens have a voice in the political process and that, come election time, Quincy voters have a true choice among qualified candidates," said Logue.

Logue, who ran unsuccessfully for an at-large seat on the City Council in 2007, has served as founding executive director of Discover Quincy, as well as a registrar of voters, a member of the Quincy High School Siting Committee and the Mayor's Leadership Council on Homelessness.

"I believe Jennifer will do an outstanding job as city committee chairman. Her background and experience are exceptional," said Christine Cedrone Logan, the Republican State Committee-woman, who noted that the GOP in Quincy had not had a structured organization since April, 2000.

Other Republican City Committee officers elected at the organizational meeting included: Vice Chairman Kumu Gupta, a member of the advisory board of the Governor's Asian American Commission and vice chair of Quincy's Human Rights Commission; Treasurer Matthew Keswick and Secretary Cedrone Logan.

Also elected were committee chairmen in Ward 1 - Kumu Gupta; Ward 2 - David Cedrone; Ward 3 - Eric Rebello; Ward 4 - Geraldine Harold Sharkey; Ward 5 - Jennifer McCauley Logue; Ward 6 - Matthew Keswick.

Loew's Proposes Home Improvement Center
Public Hearing April 7
On Grasso Park Relocation

The Quincy Park and Recreation Board will conduct a public hearing Monday, April 7, at 7:30 p.m. on the proposed abandonment and relocation of the Paul V. Grasso Playground on Columbia St., South Quincy.

Board members will conduct the hearing following their regular monthly meeting in the Community Room of the Koch Park and Recreation Complex, One Merrymount Pkwy.

Lowe's Corporation has petitioned the board to abandon and relocate the park in order to build a Lowe's Home Improvement Center along Burgin Parkway and Penn Street.

The proposal involves relocating and reconfiguring Grasso Park on Columbia Street and the use of a portion of Penn Street.

Park commissioners are seeking input and comments from residents who favor or oppose the plan and from those who may be impacted by the relocation of the park. No other business will be discussed during the hearing.

Atty. Edward Fleming and TetraTech Rizzo Associates will present plans for the property as well as information on the relocation proposal.

For more information, contact the Park Department at 617-376-1251.

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

• On April 1, 1700, English pranksters begin popularizing the annual tradition of playing April Fool's jokes. In keeping with the fun in 1957, the BBC reported that Swiss farmers were experiencing a record spaghetti crop and showed footage of people harvesting noodles from trees.

• On April 4, 1812, President James Madison fires an economic salvo at the British government and enacts a 90-day embargo on trade with England. The embargo did little to forestall war: The British refused to cease harassing American ships, prompting Madison to lead America into the War of 1812.

• On March 31, 1889, the Eiffel Tower is dedicated in Paris. At 984 feet tall, the Eiffel Tower remained the world's tallest man-made structure until the completion of the Chrysler Building in New York in 1930.

• On April 2, 1917, Jeanette Pickering Rankin, the first woman ever elected to Congress, takes her seat in the U.S. Capitol as a representative from Montana. The same day, President Wilson urged a declaration of war against Germany. Rankin was one of only 50 representatives who voted against the declaration.

• On April 5, 1931, Fox Film Corp. drops John Wayne from its roster of actors. Wayne had played bit parts, but failed to impress the studio. In 1939, Wayne finally had his breakthrough in "Stagecoach." Wayne went on to play in dozens of movies, including "True Grit," for which he won an Oscar in 1969.

• On April 3, 1956, Elvis sings his first RCA recording, "Heartbreak Hotel," on NBC's "Milton Berle Show." By April 21, the song had become Elvis' first No. 1 single.

• On April 6, 1970, Sam Sheppard, a doctor convicted of murdering his pregnant wife in a trial that caused a media frenzy in the 1950s, dies of liver failure. After a decade in prison, Sheppard was found "not guilty" in a second trial in 1966. The "Fugitive" television series and movie were rumored to have been loosely inspired by the story.

That Second Class Citizen Feeling

Every election year I start feeling a little depressed. Not because of the candidates-although I wonder about some of them.

It's just that the closer we get to the election-especially a Presidential election-the more I feel like a second-class citizen.

I probably shouldn't. But I do.

And, I'm pretty sure there are many of you out there who get that same feeling.

I mean, those of you, who like me, are designated as unenrolled. Sounds like we aren't even registered as voters.

I liked it a lot better when we were known as independents even with a small "i." That had a nice respectable ring to it.

As independents we considered ourselves truly independent-voting for individual candidates-male or female-not necessarily whether they had a D or R after their name.

We voted for Democrats and Republicans not because they were Democrats or Republicans. But because of their personal appeal and where they stood on the issues.

No straight Republican ticket. No straight Democratic ticket. Vote individual, Democrat or Republican.

Then along came Ross Perot running for president in 1992 who put a capital "I" on independent, forming the Independent Party.

And we independents wound up on voter registration lists as "unenrolled." That was quite a letdown.

Perot didn't go very far in that election other than helping Bill Clinton oust the first George Bush from the White House by taking votes away from Bush. (Clinton: 44,908,254. Bush: 39,108,342. Perot: 19,741,065.)

The Independent Party didn't go very far either.

You might say it's out of business.

City Clerk Joseph Shea says it is now just a designation, no longer an official political party.

Shea says there actually are now only three official parties in Massachusetts: Democrat, Republican and Green Rainbow. The others are designations.

The unenrolled in Quincy stood at 23,875 in the Feb. 5 Presidential elections, outnumbering Republicans (5,794) 4 to 1 and creeping up on Democrats (24,713) just 838 behind.

Perot didn't do independents any favors with his Independent Party.

And neither did the state when it designated independents as unenrolled.

Unenrolled would make a more appropriate designation. Has more respect and a better ring to it. That's what independents are: enrolled as independents with no declared party affiliation.

Unenrolled. How about it?

MASS AUDUBON rates Rep. Bruce Ayers pretty high on Beacon Hill.

AYERS

Ayers recently received a 100 percent voting record on Mass Audubon's Legislative Report Card.

Since 1985, Mass Audubon has reported the environmental voting records of the Massachusetts Legislature to let constituents know how they vote on environmental bills.

And Ayers was there every time as an advocate on environmental issues earning him the A-plus on the Report Card.

THE RECENT ITEM on Rev. John Banks keeping four hives of bees at Bethany Congregational Church when he was pastor brought back memories for Mae D'Angelo of Wollaston.

Mae was a crossing guard at the old Coddington School across the street from the church and the bees.

"When I was on duty," she muses, "I had to refrain from using perfumed soap, hair spray, etc., so the bees wouldn't think I was a flower."

PERSONAL: A belated "thank you" to former Quincy resident Theresa (Steinkrauss) Mikkola now living in Idaho Falls, ID.

Thank you for the kind words and nomination for The Quincy Sun Citizen of the Year Award. As publisher, I had to decline. Nice to be nominated, though.

We do have two worthy recipients this year in Bob and Gloria Noble.

Theresa may be out there in the west but her heart is still here.

"Once a Quincy-ite always a Quincy-ite," she says. "And proud of it."

Theresa is among some 500 former Quincy residents living out of state who get The Sun by mail to "keep up on what's going on back home."

3 Middle Schools Get Anti-Tobacco Funding

Three of Quincy's middle schools each have been awarded a $2,000 "Adding the Zero" grant by the Medical Foundation to promote zero use of tobacco by their teen aged students.

The Atlantic, Broad Meadows and Point Webster Middle Schools are among 10 across the Commonwealth to receive money as part of the Mass Youth Against Tobacco program.

For the past three years, those schools have been encouraging students to make healthy choices in nutrition and physical fitness through the "5-2-1" program of the Mass Department of Public Health.

That message is five servings of fruits and vegetables, no more than two hours of television and at least one hour of exercise a day. Adding a zero to fight the use of tobacco will make it a 5-2-1-0 message.

Wendy Hanlon, a science teacher at Atlantic, and Barbara Fenby, a health teacher at Broad Meadows and Point Webster, agreed that "the tobacco industry has influence in every corner of our society."

"Young people need to be aware of the dangers of smoking in order to counter the industry message that smoking is cool or glamorous. Smoking is the number one cause of disease and death in Massachusetts and the world today.

"We want our young people to realize that they have the power and the creativity to help prevent a new generation of young people from becoming addicted to tobacco.

"More than 90 percent of adults who smoke started smoking as teenagers.

"If we can provide young people with the education and skills to make healthy choices through a zero tobacco message, we hope we'll be able to help prevent another generation of young people from becoming addicted to nicotine and suffering the health and economic consequences throughout their lives."

The grant recipients will partner with community organizations receiving Massachusetts Tobacco Control Program funding, organizations which have engaged community members in a planning process to lower local smoking rates.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS 1940 POSTCARD is a view of Hancock Street in Quincy Center looking north from Revere Road. Woolworth's was later located on the left where Gambles Market and Matrix Shoes are shown. The large building, known as the Cliveden Building, was home to the Chamber of Commerce, the Community Fund and the Rotary Club. McGilvays had a drug store on the street level with the awnings. Further down on the left can be seen signs for the State Theater and Salingers clothing store. On the right, in addition to Kane's, you can make out signs of the Quincy Loan Co., B&D Wallpaper and Robinson's Appliances. Signs protruding out over the sidewalk are not allowed in Quincy today. $112-$115 Tax Rate Seen For 1969

By FRANK McCAULEY

Quincy taxpayers face a threatened $112-$115 tax rate following City Council approval of a record high $34,600,000 municipal budget for 1969.

Councillor John J. Quinn, chairman of the council's finance committee, said the budget anticipated the loss of state revenue and other factors will mean a tax rate impact of between $14 and $17. The 1968 tax rate was $98.90.

Quinn's predicted figure is about $3 under that forecast earlier by Mayor James R. McIntyre.

ECUMENICAL MEMORIAL SERVICE FOR FORMER PRESIDENT EISENHOWER

An ecumenical memorial service for former President Dwight D. Eisenhower was held at Quincy's historic United First Parish Church. Participating clergymen included Rev. Bradford E. Gale, Rev. Dean E. Benedict, Rabbi David J. Jacobs, Rev. Richard J. Hawko, Rev. Demetrios Michaelides and Rev. Stephen W. Brown.

The bell tolled sadly and solemn words were spoken in a farewell tribute to the late president.

The Rev. Stephen Brown, pastor of First United Presbyterian Church, Quincy, noted that "Dwight David Eisenhower is a symbol of that which is good and right and strong in our nation."

The nation's 34th president died at his home in Gettysburg at age 78.

Tech Fund, SMART Board Remembers Larry Coombs

Central Middle School has set up a technology fund and dedicated a wall-mounted SMART board in the school library in memory of Larry Coombs, a 35-year Quincy Public Schools teacher who died in July, 2006.

"Larry was a phenomenal social studies teacher and his classroom lived and breathed history," said the announcement of the Larry Coombs Technology Fund. "He was creative and funny and always the first one to bring technological advances into the classroom.

"Larry used new computer technology, CD ROMs and DVDs to bring historical battles to life. He would have loved the projection machines and SMART boards that many teachers are using today."

Last year, the Central community raised $1,500 and the PTO matched it to purchase the school's first SMART board which was mounted on the wall of the library so that all staff and students could use it.

The board was dedicated to Larry Coombs last Nov. 30 with his wife, Christine, and sons, Matthew and David, in attendance.

If you would like to donate to the Larry Coombs

Technology Fund, send a check made out to Central Middle School, 1012 Hancock St., Quincy MA 02169, Attn Larry Coombs Tech Fund.

Donors are urged to include a note of remembrance regarding Larry Coombs, mentioning whether or not he was your teacher, your colleague or your friend. The notes will be collected and passed along to his family.

READERS FORUM

A Tribute To 'Ziggy'

I was shocked to read in The Quincy Sun that a friend of mine from OB's Diner in Norfolk Downs had passed away unexpectedly. 'Ziggy' was a regular down-to-earth kind of guy who was very concerned with a daughter ailing in Minnesota.

He was doing fundraisers for her and always was talking about her at the diner. It wasn't until I read the obituary that I knew his name was John Zerigan.

At diners, people are either faces or first names. With 'Ziggy,' it was his nickname, which set him apart from the rest at the counter. When I stopped by the diner everyone was shocked with the news. Everyone felt bad because he was a good guy.

Folks are usually known by what they eat. I'm either "the bagel and cream cheese" or "strawberries and oatmeal." 'Ziggy' was "the omelet."

I'm sure that he's up at the big diner in the sky with endless omelets at his fingertips.

Folks on both sides of the counter down at OB's Diner send out their condolences to his grieving family. The diner will not be the same without his opinions concerning the Patriots, Red Sox or the mid-west.

Commonwealth Building Inc. Building for Business Since 1979

When driving down Willard Street, have you ever wondered, "What is that building with the brick tower and American Flags?" For over 25 years it has been the corporate headquarters for Commonwealth Building Inc. The following is a brief introduction to our company.

In 1979 Frank Trainor, President, created a start-up company named Commonwealth Building and Remodeling Company. As the company expanded, it incorporated and the name was later changed to the now noted, CBI. Our historical headquarters located at 265 Willard Street is a familiar site to many residents of this area both young and old. The location has allowed us the flexibility to serve the Boston area as well as the surrounding New England states.

Early on, CBI concentrated on developing our niche in the retail construction sector. Since then we have expanded into the commercial and industrial areas. Our broad range of services now include: office renovations; medical and educational facilities; new construction; building renovations; additions; occupied remodels and a complete construction management service. We also offer a small projects and maintenance division.

But above all, the main ingredient of our success and longevity is our group of dedicated and knowledgeable employees. By consistently investing in our people, CBI was able to establish an environment very few construction companies would offer. This created a highly experienced and motivated team that is responsible for maintaining our long term relationships which are built on trust.

Councillors Support Coughlin Ordinance To Protect City's Imperiled Trees

City councillors supported efforts to protect the city's endangered trees after reviewing an ordinance prepared by Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin at a recent Ordinance Committee meeting.

There is "a significant price to be paid for inaction," Coughlin said, outlining the health, environmental and aesthetic value of the urban tree forest which helps conserve energy, reduce noise pollution and storm runoff, and provides habitats for birds, small mammals and other wildlife.

In introducing the measure, Coughlin said the city's trees are imperiled and their numbers diminishing almost daily.

The loss is evident when viewing satellite images of the city taken over the past ten years, said Coughlin who noted there is "a substantial diminishment of the city's tree canopy."

Coughlin described recent incidents, such as an example of "clear-cutting" on Arlington Street where, he said, 5,000 square feet of forest was decimated.

During his presentation, Coughlin cited support from Mayor Thomas Koch and Kirsten Powers, executive director of the Park/Forestry and Cemetery Department.

"A major frustration for our department is the lack of protection afforded to city trees," wrote Powers in a memo backing Coughlin's proposal.

Powers also thanked Coughlin for his efforts on behalf of the city's trees, stating, "This ordinance presents the opportunity for this department to prescribe methods to contractors that are more conducive to promoting the overall health of our trees...."

Committee members did not vote on the measure because several councillors recommended additional amendments aimed at widening the scope of the law and clarifying penalties.

However, councillors said they expect to revisit and approve the measure at one of their next council meetings. The amendments will be reworded before the final vote.

During the review, Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi asked that the utility company pruning be covered under the ordinance and Ward 5 Councillor Douglas Gutro sought specific penalties after voicing concern that the description of penalties could be interpreted differently.

Councillor John Keenan requested that a cross-reference be inserted in the zoning statutes notifying developers and builders of the tree conservation requirements.

Once approved, the ordinance will require that a tree study be submitted to the city's arborist for most development projects and utility projects. The ordinance will, also, require that trees be planted on surface parking lots, that tree bark be protected and fencing maintained during construction projects.

Under the ordinance, trees that must be destroyed will be replaced or funds will be paid to a Tree Replacement Fund.

Walking Tour, Outdoor Classroom Discussion At Beechwood Knoll

Ward 5 Councillor Doug Gutro and Diane O'Keefe, principal of Beechwood Knoll School, will lead a walking tour and discussion of the school's proposed Outdoor Environmental Classroom at the school site Saturday, April 5.

Participants will meet at 10 a.m. in front of the school, 225 Fenno St., where the 45-minute tour will begin.

Beechwood teachers and representatives of the Parent Teachers Organization (PTO) will update neighbors on the details and location of the proposed outdoor classroom which is expected to be completed by September.

"It's basically a 30 foot by 40 foot outdoor platform," O'Keefe said of the planned classroom which will not be enclosed and will be located more than 100 feet beyond the conservation area's buffer zone.

The deck classroom will be constructed of Trex planks manufactured with recycled materials and considered environmentally safe.

O'Keefe said the platform will allow students to be close to the marsh without actually walking through the waters.

Once the platform is finished, students will study such subjects as the marsh flora and fauna, said O'Keefe, adding the youngsters will, also, learn measurement skills through the tidal changes, and biology through the study of plankton and small fish and carbon dioxide.

Students will also use the platform for art classes and study Native American JUDY BRAZIL, vice president of marketing at Quincy Credit Union, welcomes parents to a recent Financial Aid Seminar.

Quincy Credit Union Teaches Parents Lesson In College Financing

Quincy Credit Union and AAA of Southern New England recently partnered to host a complimentary seminar Financial Aid 101 to families seeking college financial aid assistance.

The comprehensive seminar offered financial solutions to help attendees with the daunting process of financing a college education. AAA Student Lending Manager Shelly Honeycutt spoke about the many creative options available including grants, scholarships, student employment and loans. Her presentation offered step by step instructions and tips to complete the rather complicated FAFSA (Free Application for Federal Student Aid) Form for federal aid; and as a means to be considered for grants and scholarships available through many colleges/universities. Attendees left with increased knowledge of the financial aid process, as well as realistic expectations of their available options.

Further information can be obtained through contacting Quincy Credit Union 617-479-5558 or visiting 100 Quincy Ave., Quincy.

FIRE SAFETY

by Captain Tom Lyons
Fire Prevention Bureau
Quincy Fire Department

Tampering With Fire Alarms

My wife was telling me a story over dinner the other night, while she suggested it might make for a good article as well. Thinking about it, I agreed, where it gives me an opportunity to convey a story of a hard lesson learned.

My sister-in-law lives in another community. She owns a condo within a building with 11 other units. The building has what we in the fire service call a local fire alarm system or a Class II system. That system includes a fire alarm panel with all the bells and whistles. But it lacks a direct connection to the fire department, which a Class I system has, and which, we prefer.

A Class I system is directly connected to a fire department and should the alarm system activate, we are immediately notified. We then investigate the cause of the alarm and reset the system if appropriate leaving it in service for the tenant's protection. We therefore have some control over the system's status.

In a local system, a tenant must contact the fire department once the system is activated, which isn't always the case. Some tenants take it upon themselves without an adequate investigation of the cause of the alarm, and silence the alarm while leaving it out of service as well. Consequently the system can be left out of service for weeks or months without the knowledge while the tenants are left with no protection or notification should a fire occur.

Class II systems are perfectly legal within a building with six to 12 units, while we have less control over their status on a day-to-day basis and thus our dislike of their use.

In my sister-in-law's building, a trustee took it upon himself to silence the Class II system weeks ago while I've been informed the system still remains out of service and the occupants are left with no alarm system protection. Why anyone would take that responsibility upon himself is unfathomable.

In this instance, the trustee unlawfully tampered with the system when he took it upon himself to silence it without proper notification to the local fire department. That act alone is unlawful. Having done so, it is unfathomable that he did so leaving the system out of service for so long, while families are left unprotected within this multistory building.

But here's the other potential issue with this action, and I'll convey it with an actual incident, a hard lesson learned which occurred here within this City a few years ago.

Like this trustee, a tenant of a multistory, multifamily building took it upon himself to silence a Class II local alarm system. This occurred in the early morning hours, while he left his bed, and pushed the silence button. He successfully silenced the alarm rendering the system functionless.

He then returned, walked back up the stairwell, into his apartment and back into bed. As so often happens with these tampering violations, the tenant silenced the alarm with no consideration for the cause, except to assume it activated for some nuisance reason. So, he returned to bed, while the other tenants slept.

What this tenant failed to realize, while he accepted the responsibility for the welfare of the many family members, including seniors and young children who occupied the building, was that there was a fire in the basement. At that point it would have been at its incipient stage, but producing enough smoke to activate the alarm.

That's when we want the building evacuated, when it can be safely performed, prior to the presence of untenable smoke and heat conditions.

Tenants did eventually awake, while the fire was significantly more intense, and did in fact evacuate without incident. They were all quite fortunate, especially the individual who took it upon himself accepting the responsibility for silencing the alarm. I spoke with him at length afterwards, while he quaked at the thought of the potential consequences of his action.

Don't hesitate to contact the fire department should a fire alarm sound. We are trained to thoroughly investigate the cause of the alarm and we'd much rather do so than respond later during potentially fatal consequences.

Thank you.

Faxon Field Back In Running As New Track Site

Koch opposed the Pageant Field location at that time and, again, during his campaign for mayor. In addition, the "Friends of Pageant Field," objected to the site and filed a petition signed by 470 residents.

Powers said that park commissioners will be asked Monday to rescind their May 7 approval by a 5-3 vote of Pageant Field as the new track site.

In the past, the plans for Faxon Field foundered when architects for the new high school, Symmes, Maini & McKee Associates (SMMA), estimated that a track at Faxon Field would cost $2.5 million due to the poor quality of the soil.

Powers told councillors Monday that SMMA architects re-evaluated Faxon Field in January and offered a positive determination regarding such structural issues.

In their review, Powers said that SMMA described a treatment called "pre-loading," which would allow the track to be built at Faxon Field using normal construction practices.

According to Powers' report, "Faxon Field has a variable-depth layer which can be preloaded for a period of three to six months to 'squish' it to a point where future consolidation will be within an engineered tolerance."

Powers, also, offered an optimistic report on four other issues regarding Faxon

Field ranging from environmental issues to programming and scheduling issues.

The major environmental issues can be remedied, according to Powers who, also, said that shifting the track location and a redesign will allow a wider track and a more preferable shape.

Powers also said that Faxon Field is preferable because of its proximity to the high school, its locker rooms, its parking and accessibility for physical education classes and safety of students at night.

Powers acknowledged that there are space restrictions at Faxon Field and the javelin contests would be held across the street at the South Shore YMCA.

Several city councillors expressed frustration at new delays on the track project after Powers estimated the project could be finished in 2010.

In addition, councillors questioned the potential for new flood problems in the area, traffic and safety as well as the lack of financial data on the Faxon Field proposal.

"If it weren't so sad, it would be comical," said Ward 5 Councillor Douglas Gutro who noted that this will be the council's fourth review of a possible track site.

"We keep bumping the schedule," said Gutro, adding, "When was the last home meet for the track team at the high school?"

Councillor Joseph

Finn described "...a lot of folks out there who are very disillusioned."

"The mayor pledges to expedite this proposal from this point forward," James Fatseas, Koch's Chief of Staff, told councillors.

If the change does move forward, the City Council will have to rescind its June vote authorizing $1 million for the construction and equipping of Pageant Field. The funding was limited to Pageant Field.

A Job Well Done

On Wednesday, March 26, at approximately 11:30 p.m., Officer Leuchte was dispatched to the Sea Street Getty Station for the burglar alarm. The officer, knowing the station was closed, arrived very quickly and found a male suspect inside behind the register.

At first glance, it appeared as if the male was restocking the cigarette racks. Officer Leuchte notified control of the situation and requested back-up. As the officer stepped from his cruiser, while keeping an eye on the suspect, he noticed that the glass of the front door was smashed in. The suspect then began to walk towards the door with multiple packs of cigarettes in hand. Officer Leuchte drew his service weapon and ordered the suspect to the ground over and over, but the suspect ignored him as he walked out the same door.

Officer Leuchte holstered his service weapon and continued to order the suspect to the ground. The suspect then tried to walk around the Officer, forcing the Officer to grab the sweatshirt of the suspect, and after a brief struggle, he brought the suspect to the ground.

Once on the ground, the struggle continued as Officer Leuchte tried to handcuff the suspect. The suspect locked his arms to prevent being handcuffed and tried to roll away, but Officer Leuchte held onto him until Officer M. J. O'Brien arrived on scene.

The officers handcuffed the suspect and questioned the suspect, who said that he lives in the neighborhood, repeating over and over that "I was just out walking my dog" and that it was "O.K." to be in the store because he knew the owner. The suspect in fact did have a dog with him. After the suspect was transported to the station, the owner was notified and responded to the crime scene. Officer Leuchte went inside the building and observed a large concrete rock on the floor approximately 4 feet from the door. It appeared that the only items missing were cigarettes.

Photos of the crime scene were taken and the suspect's dog was dropped off with a family member of the suspect. The suspect, a 46-year-old Quincy resident, was charged with "Breaking and Entering in the Nighttime, Malicious Destruction of Property over $250, and Larceny under $250 and Resisting Arrest." Nice Work!

ANOTHER VICTIM OF A SCAM: A Quincy resident fell for combination of "Get Rich Quick" and "Work at Home and Get Rich" schemes. The 19-year-old victim fell for an online offer to cash money orders mailed to her, keep 10% and then send money orders to an address in the United Kingdom. The victim received a total of 15 money orders, which she cashed into her account, then sent out $14,957.00 overseas. The victim's bank sent her a letter stating that the money orders she received were fraudulent and she needed to contact the Police. Tellers usually inform customers that there is a five day waiting period for a check or money order to clear and the purpose of this is to protect the customer from being scammed - sadly, too many people disregard this warning and are victimized. Since most of the money is sent out of the country, it is highly unlikely that the victim will ever recoup their losses.

Investigating The 'Police Officers Safety Association'

Throughout the year, many residents are contacted via the telephone to donate to various organizations. Recently, a group called the "Police Officers Safety Association Inc." made telephone calls to residents of Quincy and surrounding towns. This writer, a Quincy Police Officer, was also contacted at my residence, so I decided to look into this organization.

Their representative informed me that the association's mission is to increase the safety and effectiveness of law enforcement Officers and secondly, to enhance the security of our communities by offering free or low-cost advanced education and training to law enforcement officers.

As a Police Officer, I had never heard of this organization, and furthermore, this reminded me of a phone call I received months earlier from what I believe was the same association. During that call, the representative immediately hung up on me when I told them that I was a Police Officer and had never received training from them. Both times, the phone calls registered on my caller ID as "Private Caller."

In order to gain information from this organization, I decided to pledge $30.00. I then asked the representative, "So this $30.00 will go to train my local Police Department." The representative confirmed, "Yes."

Right away I knew there was a problem. The Quincy Police Department as well as most Massachusetts Police departments receives their safety training and advanced education for free through the Massachusetts Municipal Police Training Committee. This is a state agency funded by the Commonwealth's fiscal budget. This training is mandated and thorough.

When I received my pledge letter it had a toll free number for more information. I called this number and an employee for a paid fundraiser (telemarketers) group out of Milwaukee, Wisconsin answered the phone. The employee told me that they were raising money for the Police Officers Safety Association. I then asked how much of my pledge would go to the Police association. The employee told me that only 15 percent would go to the association and that 85 percent went to their fundraiser company for administrative costs such as stamps and envelopes.

In summary, for my $30.00 pledge, only $4.50 would go

Quincy Medical Unveils New Cardiovascular Suite

Among those present were Quincy Mayor Thomas Koch, Ward 5 City Councillor Douglas Gutro, Paul Drew, executive vice president of Boston Medical Center, QMC President and CEO Gary W. Gibbons, MD, and long-time Quincy cardiologist Neil Berman, MD.

Unveiled during the ceremony were two granite plaques recognizing the generous contributions of the late Mario, Bruno and Umberto Sansatini and QMC's clinical affiliate Boston Medical Center, which funded the project.

"This beautiful new suite represents an important expansion in our cardiovascular service that benefits our patients and the whole community," Dr. Gibbons said.

"It also represents this hospital's longstanding commitment to providing the best care for Quincy residents like the Sansatini brothers and to the bright future we share with our clinical partner BMC. It allows us, in partnership with our community cardiologists, to provide the highest quality cardiovascular care right here in Quincy."

The new state-of-the-art catheterization suite has upgraded the hospital's special procedures capabilities with improved image quality, enhanced layout for ease of movement, top quality hemodynamic monitoring and more efficient recording and reporting abilities. Services offered through the Sansatini Cardiovascular Suite include diagnostic cardiac catheterization, interventional radiology procedures, electrophysiology studies, and peripheral endovascular procedures.

The Sansatini brothers were residents of Quincy and owners of the West Quincy Granite and Polishing Co. Upon their deaths, Umberto's in 2000 and Mario and Bruno's in 2005, they bequeathed more than $1 million to Quincy Medical Center, which was originally founded to treat the illnesses of the granite cutters who worked in the city's quarries. In addition to the Sansatini donation, Boston Medical Center contributed significant financial support for the project.

Both Mayor Koch and Councillor Gutro acknowledged the superlative care that QMC offers to area residents and the important role the medical plays in the community.

"I am pleased to be here to celebrate the opening of this cutting edge suite, which will provide a critical service for the residents of Quincy," said Koch. "I know firsthand about the excellent patient care that is provided at Quincy Medical Center and I am committed to working together with Dr. Gibbons to do whatever we can to promote the health of our citizens."

Added Anthony Agnitti, Chairman of the QMC Foundation Board, "The Sansatinis made their bequest in gratitude for the cardiac care they received at Quincy Medical Center, so it's fitting that their gift is transforming the cardiovascular services we offer our patients."

"Although we've been serving the community for 118 years, QMC ceased being a city hospital nine years ago, so we depend upon generous charitable support from the public to help us provide outstanding medical care."

"I hope that other residents will follow the Sansatinis' example by including the Medical Center in their estate plans. No matter what the size of the gift, everyone can help make a difference."

Sansatini House Triumph Of Public, Private Unity

It added only 10 single rooms to Quincy's crying need for affordable housing but the dedication of Sansatini House at 356 Washington St., Quincy Point, represented more than just extra space.

It showed what is possible through a cooperative effort of private and public sources of funding and effort.

"Affordable housing is a critical need in the city of Quincy," said Mayor Tom Koch, the featured speaker along with Rep. William Delahunt. City Council President Jay Davis and Taylor Caswell, regional director of HUD.

"The HOME and Community Development Block Grant programs, administered through the Planning Department, are the essential funding tools to provide working families in Quincy with quality affordable housing."

Sansatini House is an old rooming house that was converted into 10 single room occupancy units of housing with a live-in manager in the 11th unit.

The problem has become particularly acute in recent years thanks to the availability of heroin and powerful prescription drugs like OxyContin and vicodin.

Banks Aren't Always Upfront With Fees

The law says that banks and other financial institutions must provide consumers with information about account fees and terms before an account is opened. This doesn't always happen.

The Government Accountability Office recently released a report on a study done to determine whether it was easy for consumers to get that information before opening an account at a banking institution. The results:

At 20 percent of the institutions, they weren't able to get any information. The same situation applied at more than 30 percent of banking institution Web sites. The information wasn't available.

This leaves a lot of consumers facing surprise fees — and increases. The cost of items returned for insufficient funds and for overdrafts has gone up 11 percent since 2000. Stop payment order fees rose 17 percent. Fees on returned deposited items went up 29 percent. In 2006, we paid over $36 billion in bank fees.

Here are some ways to keep track of the fees your bank charges:

• Open your statement every month and read any leaflets enclosed. Buried in other information might be your notice that there is to be an increase in your bank fees, including an increased minimum to keep a no-fee checking account or a newly instituted fee to speak to a teller on the phone.

• Ask if you can combine checking and savings totals to qualify as your "minimum balance" to keep your free checking.

• When you use the ATM at a bank that's not your own, check the screen for the required disclosure of the fee.

• Don't sign up for overdraft protection unless you share an ATM card with someone and you're not scrupulous about writing down every transaction. Have overdraft you if makes you feel safer, but don't use it.

Use your individual needs to assess whether a bank is right for you. If you live on your ATM card, look for a bank that doesn't charge a fee if you use its machine. If you write a lot of checks, look for a bank with free checking.

Bankrate.com lists 23 different types of fees charged by banking institutions. Check the site to become familiar with the variety of fees your bank can impose.

Improving The Safety Of Your Home

(NAPS) — Every year, electrical fires result in thousands of injuries, hundreds of millions of dollars in property damage and, in some cases, even death.

While some fires are caused by faulty products, many more are caused by the misuse and poor maintenance of electrical equipment, incorrectly installed wiring, overloaded circuits and misapplied extension cords.

Smoke alarms, fire extinguishers and escape ladders are all examples of emergency equipment used in homes to take action when a fire occurs. A device called an Arc Fault Circuit Interrupter, or AFCI, is a residential circuit breaker designed to detect arcing faults and thus prevent fires from occurring in the first place.

Arcing can occur when you're hanging a picture and inadvertently pierce a wire in the wall, when old wires fray or when you string extension cords together to run fans or space heaters.

Approximately 2,300 injuries, 67,800 fires and 485 deaths occur each year that can be associated with home wiring, totaling $868 million in property losses. The Consumer Product Safety Commission (CPSC) estimates that "AFCI devices may address 50 percent or more of these fires."

The latest development in this kind of technology is from Siemens. Called the Combination AFCI, it's designed to provide the maximum available fire protection in a residential circuit breaker device.

The new Combination Type AFCI device is equipped with a patented LED trip indicators, which will help electricians and homeowners pinpoint the type of problems that may cause the device to trip. The LEDs are located near the handle of the circuit breaker. "Arc faults are extremely dangerous because they generally occur in wiring that is behind drywall or in attics, going undetected until a fire breaks out, which is why Siemens has been investing in research and development and partnering with industry innovators to develop arc fault technology," said Dennis Sadowksi, president and CEO of Siemens Energy & Automation.

In addition, the company has a family of residential products to keep your home safe, such as Ground Fault Circuit Interrupters (GFCI), surge protection home automation, and loan centers.

When it comes to the safety of your family and your property, Siemens products are there to protect you.

Protecting Your Investment From Termites

(NAPS) — Posing a risk greater than fire, flood and wind, termites are considered to be a top threat to wood-based structures. According to pest control leader Orkin, Inc., learning the basics about these troublesome pests is the best way to protect one of the most valuable investments of your life — your home.

The visual appearance of termites may not be as dramatic as the flames of a fire, but their slow, methodical destruction of your house can be equally costly. According to the National Pest Management Association (NPMA), termites cost Americans more than $5 billion in damages annually.

These silent invaders can infest your home for years, secretly hiding and thriving in your basement or attic, without any immediate signs of damage. Understanding basic termite behavior is the first step in preventing these pests from entering your home. Termites:

- Live inside wood or underneath the ground.
- Can slip through a crack in a house's foundation as thin as an average business card (1/32").
- Eat wood from the inside out, keeping the outside of a wood surface completely intact.
- Are social insects that live in colonies of up to several thousand.

All termites require four things to survive — food, moisture, shelter and optimal temperature. Whether your home is brick, stucco or wood, it offers the perfect combination for termites. Orkin experts recommend protecting your investment by watching for signs of infestation:

- Wood that sounds hollow when tapped.

- Pencil-sized mud tubes on exterior walls.
- Distorted, cracked or bubbling areas of paint on wood surfaces.
- Groups of winged insects or discarded wings of "swarmers" — reproductive termites that take flight during the spring in search of new colonies.

While effective pest control requires continued monitoring by a trained professional, there are some practical steps you can take to help prevent termite damage, including:

- Sealing gaps and cracks in places such as attic vents, window joints and eaves.
- Preventing ground contact with foam insulation or wood, as it can act as a highway for termites.
- Checking decks and wooded fences for damage.
- Eliminating moisture and removing wood sources, including mulches that are close to the home.
- Keeping gutters and downspouts clean and free of debris.

Moving Ideas

Move-It-Yourself Made Easier

(NAPS) – Millions of household moves take place each year in the U.S. If you are among the do-it-yourselfers, here are a few tips to get you started:

- Truck selection. Most movers find the 12- or 16-foot truck perfect for moving a few large items or the contents of a small condo or apartment. For guidance with larger moves or truck selection, visit www.GoPenske.com.

- Reserve your truck at least two weeks in advance.
- Pack smart, loading the heaviest items on the truck first.
- Mark your boxes as you pack, so it's easier to put them in the right room when you unload.
- To ensure a smooth moving day, pick up your truck a day early and practice driving it.

- Take extra precautions, especially when the truck is loaded. Use caution near low hanging tree branches and building overhangs and when cornering. Park in well-lit areas and padlock the rear door.

- Make safety and security a priority. Trucks are taller, wider, heavier and require more stopping distance than the vehicle you are used to driving. Drive slower and take extra precautions, especially when the truck is loaded. When travelling, park in well-lit areas and padlock the rear door. Penske offers 24/7 emergency roadside assistance and optimal protection plans.

Create a travel bag for moving day to keep important paperwork, credit cards, identification, change of clothes, drinks and snacks close at hand.

Comparing Circuit Testers

Q. I would like to purchase a circuit tester for my tool kit, but I'm a little confused. I see three types at the hardware store — a small cheap-looking tester; one that looks like a pen; and a fairly expensive type called a multimeter. Which is the best type for a home toolkit? — Joseph B., Houston

A. What's the best type for your home? Well, you should really have the first two on your list. The cheap-looking circuit tester — an item with two wires capped by metal probes on one end, and a light on the other end — is an essential safety item. With it, you can check to make sure no electrical current is traveling through a circuit before doing a repair.

A continuity tester — the one that looks like a pen, with a needle-like probe at one end and a wire protruding from the other end capped by a metal alligator clip — creates a miniature electrical circuit for testing current-carrying items. A battery is installed inside the "pen" cartridge to supply power. To test a fuse, for example, the alligator clip is attached or held to one end of the fuse and the needle probe touched to the other end. A light inside the cartridge illuminates if the circuit is completed, meaning the fuse works. The continuity tester is useful for a variety of repairs to make sure parts will carry current.

The multimeter (or multimeter) not only checks the continuity of a circuit, but also provides a more precise reading for different types of circuits to find out what level of voltage or amperes they carry. For most minor installations and repairs, such as fixtures and switches, the multimeter would only be used to check continuity. Measuring continuity (or resistance) of volts or amps in a circuit is a task for those much more experienced with electrical repairs. If you decide to invest in a multimeter, get the best available and become very familiar with its operation.

In all three cases, be sure that power to the circuit being tested is turned off at the main panel. (The multimeter can measure a live circuit, but I don't recommend that task for those inexperienced with electrical repairs.)

Owning A Piece Of The American Dream

(NAPS) – For many, the American Dream begins with owning a home. Having a place of your own to call home can be one of your most prized possessions and the cornerstone of your wealth. With the inventory of available homes increasing, and in many areas, prices stabilizing, now might be the right time to consider buying a home.

GMAC Mortgage offers the following seven steps to owning a home.

- Prepare for Success: Before you buy your first home, make sure you are prepared for success. First, start by saving for a down payment. For many first-time homebuyers, a loan insured by the FHA is the ticket to homeownership. Under FHA rules, you will need at least 3 percent of the purchase price as a down payment. Also, don't forget to have financial reserves in place for unforeseen repairs and be prepared to put the time and effort into maintaining your home.

- Get Preapproved: Before you begin the home-buying process, work with a loan officer who can help you understand exactly how much you can reasonably and responsibly afford. "By getting preapproved, you will receive a conditional loan commitment for up to a certain amount from your lender before you have found a home, based on a review of your credit and finances," says Jim Ferriter, executive vice president for GMAC Mortgage. "Preapproval makes your home search more effective by allowing you to focus only on the homes you know are in your price range.

- Hunt for a Home: Once you know your price range, find a real estate agent you trust, who can work with you to find a perfect home. Try to look at a wide variety of homes and be sure to consider the neighborhood, the schools, how much room you need now and in the future, and how different types of homes will suit your lifestyle.

- Make an Offer: Once you've found a home that you want to buy, your real estate agent will work with you to develop an offer based on recent sales in the neighborhood, the overall market conditions in your area, and the current condition of the house. Once you make an offer, your real estate agent will present it to the seller or seller's agent. At that point, the seller will either accept, reject or counter your offer with changes in some of the terms. You may either sign or counter the offer. When both parties agree to the terms, you will then sign a purchase agreement, which becomes a valid contract.

- Finalize Your Financing: Once you've selected your new home, update your preapproval application with complete property information and secure your home loan. "You will need to confirm your choice of loan programs and should consider how long you plan to stay in your home to help determine the right loan for you," continues Ferriter. "Your mortgage lender and loan officer can work with you to show you the options that are available."

- Get a Home Inspection: Since buying a home is going to be one of the largest investments you will ever make, have the home inspected before making the purchase. Choose a qualified inspector who can thoroughly evaluate the condition of the potential new home. The inspector should evaluate all exterior and interior structural components of the home and all major systems, including heating, cooling, plumbing and electrical.

- Closing: Once you've found your home, agreed on a price with the seller and had the home inspected, the closing marks the end of the process and you will officially take ownership of the property. Remember to take into consideration that you will have closing costs to pay, which range from lender and appraisal fees to third-party fees to prepaid items that must be paid to your lender in advance.

SPOTLIGHT ON HEALTH & FITNESS

When Friends Sabotage Your Workouts

Q. I have found that although I like to exercise, most of my really close friends do not. We do almost everything together, but when I mention that I'm going to the gym or walking around the block after work, they are totally uninterested. This leaves me alone to work out, and I find myself either shortening my workouts or not exercising at all. I know this only hurts me, but I wish they would join me so we could get in shape together. Do I need new friends, or is there a way to work through this?

A. Lack of support is one of the main reasons people have difficulty reaching their fitness and nutrition goals. Often overlooked, support from family and friends plays a huge part in how successful you'll be in totally committing to and maintaining a healthy lifestyle. Since developing a healthy lifestyle is the ultimate goal, you might need to get new friends. However, this does not mean you have to lose the old ones.

Without meaning to, family and friends can sabotage your fitness journey by not recognizing the importance you've placed on it. You might assume that they know or understand your goals, but it's more likely they just never thought about the toll their involvement — or lack of involvement — has taken on your desire to exercise.

Telling your closest family and friends of your goals and what you have committed to in order to reach them can begin to help them acknowledge how you need their support. This may or may not encourage friends to join you at the gym, but it will let them know that exercise is important to you, and that you will continue to take time out of your schedule to work out.

After talking to your friends, you may find that although they support you 100 percent, they still have no desire to work out. This is perfectly all right, but now it's time to find exercise partners who share your desire to help fill that void. There's nothing wrong with having friends whom you identify with at the gym.

Introduce yourself to someone at your gym who uses the same type of cardio or strength equipment or who attends the same group exercise class as you and develop a gym buddy. This friendship does not have to extend outside of the gym, but while at the gym, you can make arrangements to meet up for a class, or save each other a treadmill, or even hire a personal trainer together. You also might find someone at work who likes to walk, and set up a time to walk at lunch or after work.

Accountability, motivation and encouragement are major ingredients for having success while trying to meet fitness and nutrition goals. Your new friend in the gym and your friends at home are all part of the support system you need to develop and maintain a healthy lifestyle. Continue to be a positive example for your friends who don't want to work out. You never know, one day they might finally ask to join you.

Always consult a physician before beginning an exercise program.

Clinicians Extend Rehabilitation Services To Needy

Quincy Medical Center Staff

Participate In Medical Mission To Haiti

A multidisciplinary team of clinicians from Quincy Medical Center recently participated in two medical missions with Healing Hands for Haiti, Inc., a non-profit organization dedicated to fostering the expansion and quality of rehabilitation services to benefit physically disabled adults and children in Haiti.

The QMC teams of volunteers included Jillian Baker, NT, Pedro Belizaire, PT, Yolande Colvert, RT, Dolly Darcy, NP, Sharon Giordani, NP, Judy Keith, PT, Janet Larkin, RN, John Loughnane, MD, and Paula Ryan, RN.

During their time in Haiti, the first group from Feb. 19-27 and the second from Feb. 23 to March 3, they worked with other members of the Boston HH chapter to evaluate and treat patients in the HHH clinic in Port-au-Prince.

In addition, the team members visited four orphanages and three hospitals, and participated in four outreach clinics in impoverished outlying areas. They also conducted a two-day continuing medical education seminar for Haitian therapists and a four-day course for caregivers of children with impending surgery for hydrocephalus.

"It was just a wonderful experience," said QMC physical therapist Judy Keith, PT, who went on her first mission to Haiti six years ago. Since then, she has recruited many of her co-workers to join her. "Haiti is the poorest country in the Western hemisphere. About 85 percent of the country's healthcare is provided by outside agencies and rehabilitation is a layer of healthcare that is not readily available. Healing Hands operates on the principle that the best way to serve the people of Haiti is to enable them to help themselves, so that is why education is so important."

HHH's goals are to heighten public awareness of physical disability issues; educate the people of Haiti to care for the disabled with skill, dignity, and respect; and provide continued support with training, materials, supplies, medical treatment, and therapy. Each medical team pays for its own transportation, room and board. The QMC team held bake sales at the hospital to help pay for medicine and supplies they took with them, such as blood pressure cuffs, glucose testing strips and ink cartridges.

Anyone who would like to participate in a HHH mission or would like more information, may attend the HHH annual meeting at 7 p.m. on Thursday, May 1 at Quincy Medical Center, 114 Whitwell St., Quincy, in Conference Room B/C.

What Women Should Know About Colorectal Cancer

(NAPS) — Adding up a few statistics could help improve women's health.

While many people believe that women are less likely to get colorectal cancer than men are, the odds are actually even. Men and women are equally likely to be affected by colorectal cancer.

In fact, colorectal cancer is the third-leading cause of cancer death in women behind breast and lung cancer.

More than 71,000 women are diagnosed with colorectal cancer each year and nearly 26,000 die from the disease. Fortunately, these statistics can be changed.

For a start, screening can detect not only the cancer but also the growth known as polyps that may eventually become cancerous. These growths are easy to remove during screenings.

"With regular colorectal cancer screening, more than one-third of colorectal cancer deaths could be avoided," said Maria Cruz-Correa, M.D., spokesperson for the American Gastroenterological Association and from the University of Puerto Rico Comprehensive Cancer Center. There are several methods for colorectal cancer screenings. Colonoscopy, one of the best screening methods, allows for detection and removal of polyps.

Along with regular screenings, healthy lifestyle choices are the smart prescriptive steps against colorectal cancer. Here's how you can help reduce your risk:

- Eat more foods that are high in fiber—whole grains, fruits and vegetable.

- Eat more cruciferous vegetables—cabbage, broccoli, cauliflower, brussels sprouts.

- Increase calcium intake—low-fat milk, shellfish, salmon, calcium supplements with vitamin D.

- Decrease fats—oils, butters, red meats.

- Limit your intake of charcoal-broiled foods and avoid salt-cured foods.

- Exercise regularly.

- Talk to your doctor about taking low daily doses of aspirin or other nonsteroidal anti-inflammatory drugs.

Colorectal cancer—cancer of the colon and rectum—can be cured if it is caught early. Talk to your gastroenterologist about your risk factors and need for screening.

PERIODONTAL DISEASE IS A CONCERN FOR DIABETICS

Among the many worries that diabetics must concern themselves with is their increased risk for gum disease. Periodontal (gum) disease tends to be far more common and severe in diabetics than in other people. The fact is that diabetics are much more prone to all types of infections. This also applies to gum disease, which is caused by bacteria lodge between the teeth and gums. As a result, diabetics are more likely to lose their teeth in the same way that they have more problems with their eyes, skin, feet, heart, and kidneys. It is recommended, therefore, that diabetics make a point of having regular dental checkups. Studies indicated that treating gum infection tends to improve glucose control.

It's important for your dentist to know if you have diabetes, and how you're controlling it. We are at the leading edge of dental technology. Your positive attitude towards your dental health is the key to successful dental care. Let us help you appreciate fine dentistry and make your dental visits enjoyable. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street, where we offer complete dental care for the entire family. New Era Begins For Red Raiders

By SEAN BRENNAN

A brand new era in North Quincy High School baseball history began earlier this week when the Red Raiders opened their 2008 season with a non-league game against Brockton High School (April 1, weather permitting).

This year the team is under the direction of first-year head coach John Fidalgo, who is taking over for Rick Beach. Fidalgo, a 2002 NQHS graduate, inherits a team with just five seniors, and three returning starters, but he also has a bevy of talented underclassmen on the roster and his team will be looking to get back into postseason play after a long absence the last few years.

"We are a pretty young team this season," said Fidalgo. "We return five seniors and only three starters from last year's squad. But we have looked very good during pre-season and tryouts and the kids have been working hard to get ready for the regular season."

"We, as a team, are starting fresh this spring. The team is eager to get started and become a better unit."

With the return of seniors Alex Tragellis, Dan Richards and Mike Horagan to the starting lineup and the addition of seniors Chris Doyle and Dave Thompson, the Red Raiders have the experience and leadership to exceed expectations. And this year, those expectations are set high.

NQ Baseball Boosters Spring Training Clinic April 12

The North Quincy High School Baseball Boosters will sponsor a Spring Training Clinic Saturday, April 12 from 8:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. at O'Rourke Field, Quarry St.

Registration will begin at 8 a.m. Anyone ages 6 to 13 is invited.

You do not have to be a Quincy resident to participate.

The camp will include

BASEBALL

"Our goals are to win the league (Atlantic Coast League); advance far into the post-season and play for a state championship," added Fidalgo. "With the players who are returning to the team this season, I feel like we have the talent to achieve these goals."

Other returning players who will be looking to make an immediate impact this year include Joe Vialpondo, Matt Rodriguez, Matt Jay, Ryan Louis and Keith Morreale.

"Players like Horagan, who will be our #1 pitcher this year; Vialpondo (starting center fielder), Rodriguez (starting catcher); and Morreale (#2 pitcher) should give us some experience on the mound and at the plate," said Fidalgo. "I am looking at all of the returning players to help the team get better as the season moves along."

Fidalgo, as a first-year head coach, has assembled an impressive coaching staff to help him this season. Josh Powell, a student aide at NQHS, will handle the NQ pitching staff, Bob Denise, a teacher at NQHS, has been brought on board to handle the pitching staff and Jason Alonzi, a college teammate of Fidalgo at Johnson and Wales University, will assist Fidalgo on the bench.

"I feel confident in my abilities to step in and do a good job coaching this team," said Fidalgo. "I have played a high level (college, semi-pro) the last few years and have been lucky to be around good coaching and participate in good practices. This experience should help me and my staff move forward."

"The best thing about the staff I have put together is that all of them can handle what is in front of them. If I need certain players to work on individual skills, I can have one of my coaches work with that player. It allows me to focus on the team and not just one aspect of the game. This staff will take some pressure off me."

Blue Hill Adventure, Quarry Museum Celebrate Nordic Ski Patrol Anniversary

Blue Hill Adventure and Quarry Museum recently celebrated the 40th anniversary of the forming of the Nordic Ski Patrol, at Presidents Place in Quincy, where the museum's two window display is housed.

David P. Hodgdon, who is the president and founder of the museum, started the Nordic Ski Patrol (Eastern Division), in 1968, some 40 years ago to cover Cross-Country Skiing as opposed to only Alpine Ski Patrols, which are done by the National Ski Patrol.

The concept of Ski Patrol's goes back to the days when rescuer's used St. Bernard dog's to find and rescue skier's from accidents, in the snow capped mountains of the Swiss Alps.

David Hodgdon participated in three Winter Olympics with Nordic Ski Patrol - 1980 Lake Placid-NY, 1988 Calgary (Ski Patrol which he helped start) and 2002 Salt Lake City, Utah. He plans to take part in the 2010 Vancouver Olympics.

The main guest of the evening, was Michael Purcell, who participated with David Hodgdon in the 1980 Lake Placid Olympics. They shared stories of their olympic experiences with the audience. This was followed by a talking history of the Museum by Hodgdon, and a slide show of the history of Nordic Ski Patrol and pictures from the three Winter Olympics.

After answering questions from the audience, a cake with a 40th candle was cut to mark the anniversary.

"Having been in the Olympics and founder and an experienced Nordic Ski Patrolter, the 40th anniversary is a monumental occasion to be part of the Blue Hill Adventure and Quarry Museum," said Kumu Gupta, director of Special Events, who joined the Board of Directors of BHA to help find a permanent home for the Museum.

Quincy Eyes Exciting Seasons

By SEAN BRENNAN

The Quincy High School varsity softball team will be looking to rebound this season from a disappointing 2007 campaign, and with a roster stacked full of talent, improvement should be evident not just this season, but for years to come.

"We had a rough season last year," said head coach Mike Sedar. "The team had no real pitching threat. But this season it is a whole new ballgame. We have a very talented freshman pitcher this year and with the senior leadership that we have, it should make for a great year."

Sedar returns senior captain and star shortstop Marybeth Torpey to the diamond and her experience and leadership should help steady a roster that is littered with underclassmen.

"Marybeth is real good and her leadership at shortstop will be a big bonus," Sedar said. "We played a scrimmage the other day and she went 3 for 4 with a triple. She is already in mid-season form."

With Torpey holding

down the offense, Sedar begins this season with high hopes for one of his freshman players. And lucky for him and fans of the program, Korey Sorenson is a special player at the most important position on the softball field, starting pitcher.

"Korey, who is only a freshman, is a special talent," Sedar said. "She has a bright future on the mound and her talents should help keep us in every game we play this season. Korey has four pitches she can use to get batters out including a fastball, a change-up and a rise ball. The rise ball is the toughest pitch to throw and she does it very well."

Torpey and Sorenson are not the only players to watch out for this year. Others who will look to make an impact include Julie Yee (3B), Kylie Kozlowski (1B), Olivia Berry (C), Elisa Lam (CF), Erin Curran, Amy Anderson, Katie Conso, Janelle Driscoll and Kayla Graham.

"We are going to field a strong infield with solid team defense looking like it is going to be a big positive," Sedar added. "With Sorenson pitching and keeping us in the game, the fielders are going to be able to focus on their jobs and do them well."

"We are a young team (with only three seniors) but I am confident that this team will grow up quick. We can only get better this year and in years to come."

Sedar's coaching staff consists of Ron Barden (assistant coach) and Rick Beach (javey coach), and both men bring positives to this up-and-coming team.

"Coach Barden and Coach Beach both have been big parts of our pre-season preparation. And both will be important moving forward."

Quincy was scheduled to play on the road against Plymouth South last night (4/2) and will play an away game against Randolph on Friday. The team's next home game is on April 8 versus Cohasset at Mitchell/McCoy Field (3:30 p.m.).

Find at least six differences in details between panels.

Differences: 1. Boy's pants are black. 2. Box has been moved. 3. Carriage is gone. 4. Shift zipper is missing. 5. Tree stump is taller. 6. Boy's left arm can't be seen.

Mulch with shells

Two or three inches of crushed shells in plant beds leaches calcium and minerals to the soil. Their light colors contrast well against plants, and help retain moisture by reflecting heat away from the roots. Crushed shell mulch is best used in perennial beds, as the soil will not need to be disturbed each spring for new plantings.

SCOTT DEWARE

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

"Anyone who stops learning is old, whether this happens at twenty or eighty. Anyone who keeps on learning not only remains young, but becomes constantly more valuable regardless of physical capacity." - Harvey Ullman

At an age well past three score and ten years, the late Maestro Leopold Stokowski led a very active life. He is quoted as saying, "I would rather talk about the future, the past is something we can longer do anything about." He put his words in action. In approaching age 80, he grouped both young and old in the American Symphony. One third of the musicians were talented youths; the other two thirds were more experienced, more mature musicians. Dedicated to his conviction that America is a land of opportunity and that it must remain so, he exemplified a lesson many of us should heed... The young learn from the old and the old gain from the vitality and enthusiasm of the young...

We like the old Chinese Proverb which states that learning is like rowing upstream; not to advance is to drop back.

to training my local Police Department. I then asked if I could talk with someone from the Police Officers Safety Association, Inc. The employee would only direct me to their website.

At the website, I found that the closest police department in proximity to Quincy who had personnel training with this association was over 45 miles away.

I then talked with association co-founder and training director, who stated that he was a Police Officer in Western Massachusetts. This was technically true - he was a part time Officer in a nine-man department. The other co-founder and executive director of the association stated that he was a sworn peace Officer in New Mexico. This was misleading since this individual resided in Rhode Island and was an honorary sworn Police Officer in New Mexico, similar to President Nixon making Elvis an honorary federal agent. The training director came across as someone who cared about training Officers.

Unfortunately, it appears that his website and an unethical telemarketing campaign misinform the public. Furthermore, he had not proactively offered the training support to the local departments from where he was soliciting donations and where his fundraiser promised it would be utilized.

Some simple guidelines: Everyday, people receive calls at home from someone asking for a donation. Do not be pressured into a donation. Ask the caller if he/she is actually employed by the organization seeking your donation or do they work for a telemarketer. Only give to whom you know. If you are tempted to give to an unknown group, do your homework. Check with the Attorney General's Office to determine if the group is legitimate and how much of the donations go to services. DAMAGED MEMORIAL. Ward 2 City Councillor Daniel Raymondi points of cracks in the Abigail Adams Cairn on Penn's Hill after he filed a resolution to have it restored in time for the expected boom in the tourist season in Quincy. Quincy Sun photo/Robert Noble

Serious Cracks Discovered

Raymondi Seeks To Restore Abigail's Cairn For Tourists

Preparations for the expected tourist boom to follow the HBO blockbuster miniseries "John Adams" apparently is reaching all the way to the top of Penn's Hill just a few feet from the Braintree line.

Ward 2 City Councillor Daniel Raymondi filed a resolution Monday night to refurbish the Abigail Adams Cairn marking the spot from which the wife and son of John Adams witnessed the Battle of Bunker Hill.

"It's a wonderful sight," Raymondi told the Council. "Already 15 to 20 vehicles are visiting the site on a weekend. There are some serious cracks in the structure."

Author and historian David McCullough, on whose Pulitzer Prize-winning biography the miniseries is based, described the Penn's Hill visit by Abigail and 7-year-old John Quincy Adams like this:

"The day of the battle of Bunker Hill, June 17,

Forecast: Economic Hardship, New Taxes

State Aid For Schools Seen Up, But Future Gloomy

By LAURA GRIFFIN

Quincy's state legislators expect the city's schools to get a $1.9 million increase in state aid in 2009.

Beyond that, they say the well is dry. There'll be few new funds coming from the state.

The legislative delegation headed by Sen. Michael Morrissey forecast economic hardship and predicted new taxes ahead on all levels when they addressed the City Council Monday.

Morrissey, Rep. Stephen Tobin, Rep. Ron Mariano and Rep. Bruce Ayers focussed on tight state and city finances during their meeting.

According to preliminary estimates, Quincy will receive a total of $43,044,092 in fiscal year 2009 if the current budget passes the legislature. That's up from the estimated $41,137,148 for fiscal year 2008.

The total figure includes an increase of $1,738,114 in Chapter 70 or school aid and some minor increases and decreases in other areas.

The next largest increase for the city in the proposed budget is $113,340 in Veterans' Benefits and then, a $14,633 increase in the Police Career Incentives up from last year's $1,374,633.

The legislators suggested they will struggle this year just to level-fund most areas of state aid.

"It's not the time to be creating any new spending initiatives," said Tobin, citing the diminishing state income and shortfalls in lottery revenues.

Several legislators expect to enact such measures as a one dollar increase in the cigarette tax this week, and to vote on closing some corporate loopholes.

Morrissey predicted a $1.2 to $1.6 billion shortfall in state revenues as the state's income slumps along with the economy and this year should be better than the years ahead.

"It's going to be a difficult time," said Morrissey, predicting "a couple of tough years ahead of us."

"If the economy keeps slipping," Morrissey said that legislators will have to "re-

Bellotti To Head Screening Of Police Chief Candidates

Mayor Tom Koch is going to extraordinary lengths to make sure that the selection of Quincy's next police chief is free of any possible ethical violation.

The Mayor has named Norfolk County Sheriff Michael Bellotti to head a group of law enforcement professionals to recommend a replacement for Chief Robert Crowley from a list of three.

The ethical problem in the Mayor's appointment is that one of the three eligible captains, Paul Keenan, is the Mayor's brother-in-law and the brother of City Councillor or At Large John Keenan.

MIKE BELLOTTI

Capt. Alan Gillan recorded the highest score on the Civil Service test while Keenan and Capt. Michael Miller were tied for second.

Crowley retires June 30

after four often stormy years in the chief's job punctuated by constant bickering with Bruce Tait, the president of the Police Patrolmen's Union.

Koch said he selected Bellotti to recommend Crowley's successor in the advice of City Solicitor James Timmins and in consultation with the State Ethics Commission.

The Ethics Commission, he said, advised him to avoid involvement in the screening process due to the presence of his brother-in-law on the year-old list.

Would Take Back Myles Standish School Koch Wants Beechwood For New Senior Center

Mayor Thomas Koch wants to locate the city's Senior Center in the former Myles Standish School which currently houses Beechwood Community Life Center at 440 East Squantum St., North Quincy.

The 15,000 square foot building located on 11.2 acres near the intersection of East Squantum Street and Quincy Shore Drive would house senior programs and administrative offices of the city's Elder Services.

Koch will meet Friday with Judith Paul, Chairman of the Board of Directors of Beechwood on the Bay, his own aides, and other Beechwood board members to discuss proposed plans for the senior center.

"We're still in the talking stages. We're a non-profit so we don't have money for another place," said Paul, adding, "Everything's negotiable."

"Everything's on the table," agreed Chris Walker, Koch's Director of Policy, describing the upcoming meeting as a start in the process and emphasizing that nothing has been finalized.

The City Council's Senior Citizens Committee also scheduled a meeting May 19 on the Senior Center proposal as requested by Councillor Joseph Finn.

Finn raised this issue at Monday's council meeting when he cited a March 14 letter signed by Koch. In that letter, the mayor notified Paul of his plans to use the former school for a senior center.

"I am now in a position to respond to the need of a Senior Center for our city," wrote Koch, adding "It seems quite logical from the viewpoint of the taxpayer to use an existing city building."

Koch then asked that the "city-owned former Myles Standish School be returned to the city effective September 1, 2008."

Finn wants the mayor's representative to meet with the council's committee and provide a report on the estimated costs of the proposed center, sources of financing, expected programs, as well as a timetable on the project and a plan to help relocate Beechwood On the Bay.

Paul and her late husband, Dr. Cecil Paul, were instrumental in founding the community center which originally opened in the then empty Beechwood Elementary School in the 1980's.

When the Beechwood School reopened, the community group moved to the Standish School in 1994 and began expanding as an intergenerational center.

According to Executive Director Sharon Beals, the center currently offers hundreds of programs for daycare, and enrichment programs for youngsters and older children as well as serving over 6000 seniors annually. All funds are raised through private sources.

"I'm getting a groundswell of support," said Beals, describing reaction to news of a change at Beechwood on the Bay.

Under Beechwood's lease which does not expire until September of 2009, the non-profit group pays no rent, but covers all utilities and minor upkeep for the building.

Tom Clasby, Executive Director of Quincy council On Aging, thinks the Myles Standish School is a convenient location because of public transit access. Clasby said it was much better than a previous suggested location at Merrymount Park.

"I think it's an excellent idea," said Clasby, noting that the MBTA's 211 bus line which services North Quincy and Quincy Square stops right at the Standish School. In addition, there are already over 500 seniors living at The Moorings in Squantum Gardens and at the former naval base.

Clasby also pointed out that the current COA headquarters are located on Saratoga Street behind The Moorings and near Beechwood on the Bay. Programs such as podiatry checks, legal assistance and blood pressure annually draw "1200 or more seniors."

Can Immediately Move To Locate And Design New Building

State Gives 'Go Ahead' To New Central School

Quincy has received a big "go ahead" from directors of the State School Building Authority for the long-awaited construction of a new Central Middle School.

They voted unanimously that planning for a new building need not include a study of whether renovations to the present 113-year-old building are possible.

Instead, the city can immediately move into the process of locating and designing a new building.

"This decision once again shows the School Building Authority's deep commitment to the city of Quincy and its devotion to working together to build a new Central Middle School," said Mayor Tom Koch.

"I wish to thank the board, executive director Katherine Craven and State Treasurer Tim Cahill for their ongoing assistance."

No cost estimates have been developed for the new building but the state is committed to reimburse the city for 66 per cent of the final tab.

School Supt. Richard DeCristofaro said initial planning for the new school is well underway with the School Department working on an enrollment report and other issues needed to jump-start the project.

Koch has named a Central Middle School Building Committee to spearhead the project from start to finish. Members of the committee include:

City Solicitor James Timmins, School Committee members Anne Mahoney and JoAnn Bragg, Building & Maintenance Director Gary Cuniff, Jennifer Fay-Beers, representing Central Middle School, and Christopher Walker, representing the Mayor's office/

Koch said he plans to name two citizens to the Building Committee as well.

Anne Hutchinson Square Rededication Ceremony April 19

The City of Quincy will join the Wollaston Garden Club at 10 a.m. April 19 for a brief ceremony when the hillside at Grandview Ave. and Beale Street will be named after Anne Hutchinson. She was exiled as a 17th Century heretic by the Puritans of Boston.

Guest speakers will include Mayor Tom Koch and Eve LaPlante, a descendant of Hutchinson, and author of American Jezebel.

Hutchinson came to Boston from England with her husband and their 13 children in 1633. Three years later, she was lecturing weekly to large groups of men and women in her home in downtown Boston.

Quincy Stop On Greenbush Dropped To Aid Traffic Flow

A Quincy Center stop on the Greenbush commuter rail line has been eliminated and two stops added at the Braintree and JFK/UMass stations to relieve evening rush congestion and improve overall traffic flow.

The MBTA and its provider of commuter rail services, Massachusetts Bay Commuter Rail Company, announced the changes, effective last Monday.

Numerous adjustments in departure and arrival times have been made to reflect the schedule changes so local schedules should be consulted at the MBTA website.

Fire Chief Out With Work-Related Injury

Fire Chief Timothy Pettinelli has been out of work for the past few weeks with an injury incurred on the job.

Deputy Gary Smith has been acting chief.

The Mayor's spokesman, Christopher Walker, said only that the injury was "work-related."

A Special Honor For Fr. Bill

Father Bill will be coming home to St. John's Church Sunday with a very special honor awaiting him.

He, of course, is Fr. William McCarthy, former pastor of the church and the inspiration for Father Bill's Place, the interfaith shelter for the homeless named by colleagues in his honor in 1988.

At the 11 a.m. Mass at St. John's Sunday, he will help rededicate and bless the sanctuary which has been redone in his honor.

"It is very touching to note," says

Fr. RICHARD CANNON

Fr. Richard Cannon, present pastor, "that the impetus behind this effort really stemmed from a spontaneous response by parishioners to this fine and devoted priest who has meant so much to so many at St. John's and throughout Quincy."

Parishioners donated more than $25,000 to re-do the sanctuary in Fr. McCarthy's honor. With the full support and blessing of Fr. Cannon.

Fr. McCarthy, a native of Haverhill, has spent more than a half-century dedicated to helping the homeless, the poor and hungry.

He was ordained by Cardinal Richard Cushing in 1952, served assignments at St. Rose in Chelsea and St. Gregory's in Dorchester, before being named St. John's 11th pastor in February 1977.

He served 18 years there as pastor until his retirement in 1995. And in those 18 years became a legend as the "People's Priest."

His generosity to those in need is widely known. He literally and figuratively would give you the shirt off his back.

Many came knocking at St. John's rectory door in need of a financial handout. The door was always open to them.

And, there's a favorite story about the time a shocked housekeeper came running to him to report a bed and blankets missing. Fr. McCarthy already knew they were gone. He had sent them to a needy Quincy family.

The first interfaith shelter was an emergency one opened in 1984 in the basement of the Salvation Army's Quincy Temple Corps, housing five men.

That same year, Fr. McCarthy opened a larger one in the basement of St. John's School.

In 1988 the Quincy Interfaith Sheltering Coalition obtained the old Registry of Motor Vehicles building on Broad Street behind the Quincy Police station. And in 1997 built an addition.

The facility averages 100 homeless a night-70 beds for men and 30 for women. And in the winter it's a "full house."

It takes a lot of fundraising to keep Father Bill's Place open and running.

Bar Association Offers Free Referral Service

For those who are facing sudden and unexpected legal problems and have little experience with the law, the Bar Association of Norfolk County stands ready, willing and able to assist them.

The non-profit agency maintains a referral panel of lawyers, members of the association in good standing, for consultation. Referrals are free but a fee may be charged if the attorney accepts your case.

If you have a legal problem and would like to be referred to an attorney, call Adrienne Clarke at 617-471-9693 for assistance. All calls are strictly confidential.

And Father Bill is usually at the forefront, never missing an opportunity to raise a few dollars.

One admirer mused: "He has his hand in your pocket but you really don't mind."

"When I see him coming, I automatically take out my checkbook," said another.

And Father Bill likes to tell a joke on himself. The one about his friend retired Quincy police officer Tim Tobin who asked him if he had a gun permit.

"What do I need a gun permit for?" Father Bill wanted to know.

"For all the people you hold up," Tobin replied kiddingly.

Father Bill's Place has done some growing. There's now a house on Winter Street in Quincy Point for homeless veterans. And two transitional houses in Weymouth for women.

Father Bill's also is now in partnership with MainSpring House in a regional program to shelter the homeless.

At 81, Father Bill has slowed down a wee bit but let him know where he can raise some needed money and he'll be there.

He keeps a doting watch over his beloved Father Bill's Place.

He came up from his Cape Cod home last week for the dedication of the affordable housing Sansatini House on Washington Street of which Father Bill's Place is a partner.

No surprise. He was on the receiving end of a $10,000 check from Keyspan, the energy provider for the home.

He and John Yazwinski, executive director of Father Bill's Place are busy planning the next fundraiser.

Father Bill, of course, has his critics. There are those who wish he would move Father Bill's Place somewhere. Like somewhere outside of Quincy. And take the homeless with him.

To which Father Bill says:

"Homeless people are not only those you see on the street, alleyways, and village greens, but also people who once had professional and high paying jobs in the community such as doctors, engineers, lawyers, bankers, etc.

"We don't criticize those people until we have walked in their shoes. There but for the grace of God go all of us."

Perhaps a former homeless drug addict once so desperate he even planned suicide, knows better than anyone else what Father Bill is all about.

Brian Taylor was one of the lesser known of some 500 people honoring Father Bill at his Golden Jubilee reception at the Quincy Marriott in 2002.

Noting the notables on the podium with him-including a congressman, two mayors, a former mayor, a city councillor and a bank CEO, he said quietly:

"Because of Father Bill I feel as important as they are."

A friend had told him about Father Bill's Place. "The night I went there I was going to commit suicide," he said.

But the warm welcome he received and the help he received at the shelter and from the man for whom it is named changed his mind, he said. And he got his life turned around.

"If I could be half the man Father Bill is, I would be a great man. Father Bill is a true hero."

And with that, he walked over to Father Bill and gave him a hug.

No doubt there will be some hugs for him Sunday.

Scenes From Yesterday

Howard Street Entrance to Fore River Shipyard, Quincy, Mass.

they widened this street along here and replaced the buildings on the right with much larger buildings. They also replaced the wooden office building with a much larger brick and concrete building that still stands. New trees have been planted along here in recent years, but they will never look like the American Elms shown here. William Campbell, who lived just up the street on Howard Avenue, produced this postcard. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

Two Quincy Organizations Receive Funding To Help Prevent Foreclosures

Two Quincy-based organizations are sharing in state grants totaling $2 million designed to strengthen state-wide foreclosure prevention efforts and first time homebuyer programs.

"The threat of foreclosure is a reality confronting many homeowners in Massachusetts and across our country.

Families are struggling and entire neighborhoods are being tested," said Gov. Deval Patrick.

"These grants will serve two fundamental purposes: first, to ensure assistance reaches the people who need our help now and, second, prevent the number of foreclosures from growing."

Neighborhood Housing Services of the South Shore, based in Quincy, will receive $50,000 for a regional foreclosure education center as a local resource for borrowers who are facing the life-altering loss of their homes.

Quincy Community Action Programs, Inc., will receive $10,000 for foreclosure prevention and first time homebuyer counseling; and $7,000 for subprime borrower counseling.

Funding for the grants will come from licensing fees collect from loan originators, a new requirement stemming from legislation initiated by the governor and signed by him in November.

77 Tons Of Paper Recycled In One Week

By FRANK McCAULEY

Ward 3 City Councillor Lawrence P. Chretien, chairman of the Recycling Committee, reported that recent developments in the city's curbside paper recycling program indicate that further progress is being made.

First, 77 tons of paper was recycled the week of March 26 through March 30. Chretien said the total is the most paper recycled during a "B" week, since the program began last May.

Secondly, a paper drop-off center has been established for residents behind the David S. McIntosh Public Works building at 55 Sea St.

Thirdly, recycling with city owned buildings has begun. Office and computer paper is being collected at the Quincy Vocational Technical School.

Fantastic Fish Cakes

My husband was complaining about the fact that he cannot use the salt shaker these days and is also calling some of his food "bland." Imagine that!

And so instead of buying crab or fish cakes which we both enjoy, but are loaded with sodium, I have found a great recipe to make my own fish cakes. Any favorite fish can be used. I used haddock. You only need about a half pound.

Instead of adding bread crumbs called for in most recipes I have added mashed potatoes. Just one of two in the microwave is easy, or boil them if you prefer. Instant mashed potatoes can also be used.

FISH CAKES

- 1/2 pound fresh haddock (or a favorite)
- 3 eggs
- 1 1/2 cups mashed potatoes
- 2 tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese

2 tablespoons chopped parsley salt and pepper to taste (optional)
4 tablespoons olive oil (vegetable oil if preferred) corn flake or plain bread crumbs for coating.

The fish can be sautéed or steamed. When cool break it up with a fork so it is ready to mix. Add two eggs, the potatoes, parsley, and salt and pepper, grated cheese if you prefer.

With this mixture form balls of medium size, and flatten each to the desired thickness. Now beat the remaining egg, and dip each fish cake in it then in the crumbs. Fry in the hot olive oil until golden brown on both sides. Drain on paper towel and serve hot with lemon. They can be made ahead and kept in a warming oven.

HORIZON HONOR Choir members, a diverse group of tee-agers from Quincy High School, perform their magic at two concerts and a number of school and community events each year. They'll be at the BC High Festival this spring for the second year in a row.

Horizon Honor Choir Teens Perform At Concerts, Events

Two groups of people from opposite ends of the age spectrum shared the spotlight, one entertaining the other being entertained, at the recent Young at Heart Luncheon at the Fort Square Presbyterian Church.

The entertainers were members of the Horizon Honor Choir, a diverse group of teen-aged students of many cultural backgrounds from Quincy High School under the direction of Dr. Marina Rozenberg.

The entertained were Senior Citizen members of Young at Heart, whose applause acknowledged their enjoyment of the choir's repertoire which spanned rhythm, spiritual, even a touch of humor.

The Horizon Honor Choir consists of some 20 students from grades 9-12 who have learned and performed songs from many different cultures like those of Africa and Russia, sometimes performing in their language.

Caley Stanton, Wai Man Fan, Keri Dolan, Talisa Faustin, Rachel McMillan, Emily Hajjar, Youseline Theramene, Yan Yan Xiong, Peter Palmatter, Nick Milone, Christine Cahill.

The Choir performs at two seasonal concerts a year as well as school and community events around the city. The kids will be at the BC High Festival this spring for the second year in a row.

Their next concert will be Tuesday, May 13 at 7 p.m. in Quincy High School.

The Horizon Honor Choir is part of the Artistry Program, which has established through the efforts of Principal Frank Santoro a four-part curriculum of Music, Fashion, Performing Arts and Art.

"In Art, I learned to see the world differently."

"In Music, I learned that discipline is required for excellence."

"In Theatre, I learned that I can achieve anything if I try."

"In Fashion, I learned that my dreams can become my reality."

Aggressive Street-Sweeping Plan Begins Next Week

The Department of Public Works will begin an aggressive spring street-sweeping schedule next week designed to cut in half the time it usually takes to clean neighborhood streets of sand, salt and other winter debris.

The stepped-up sweeping efforts will begin in Ward 3 and Ward 6 next week, and all residents will be receiving notification by mail when street-sweepers are to be in their neighborhoods. Mayor Thomas Koch said he expects the new schedule to ultimately lead to more streets being swept more often.

"Traditionally, the salt, sand and whatever is left over from the winter has remained on our streets into the summer. We are going to put an end to that, and get all of the streets swept within the month," Koch said.

The city will publish the full street-sweeping schedule in next week's Quincy Sun and it will be posted on Quincy Access Television and on the city's website, www.ci.quincy.ma.us.

The street-sweeping plan is part of a broader beautification effort being undertaken by the Koch administration.

"We will be informing neighborhoods prior to sweeping, and we ask that residents move their cars off the street on the scheduled sweeping days so our crews can do the best possible job," said Public Works Commissioner Larry Prendeville.

Tullio's Restaurant & Grotto

150 Hancock St
Quincy, MA 02171
617-471-3400

Tullio's Restaurant & Grotto-our famed private dining room is located in the heart of North Quincy, on Hancock Street just before the Neponset Bridge. Tullio's is a cozy Italian Bistro that has been serving delicious food for over 15 years. Tullio's is owned and operated by Jack and Andrea Campbell who also live in Quincy. They moved here 12 years ago from Chicago and Tullio's was their favorite "Date-Night" restaurant. Four years ago when Tullio's was available for sale they jumped on the opportunity to continue on with the wonderful, warm restaurant they felt so close to.

We feature a real wood-oven that we cook our traditional Stone Pies in. Because of the high-heat the pizza has an amazingly crispy crust. That with the wood-grill makes for a very flavorful pie! We also cook all our steaks, chicken and seafood on a real wood grill; you can't beat the flavor of a wood-grill.

We serve traditional

Italian appetizers like the chef's Antipasto, Steamed Mussels and Fried Calamari with Red Pepper Aioli. Our pasta specialties include Spinach Ravioli, Penne with Grilled Chicken, and Fettuccine Carbonara. Our signature dishes are Wood-grilled scallops with pancetta balsamic glaze and Tenderloin Medallions served with Asparagus and Gnocchi in a Gorgonzola cream sauce. We also serve traditional Italian dinners such as Chicken or Veal Marsala, Chicken Parmesan, Seafood Fra Diavolo, and Chicken Saltimbocca. We make our own desserts in house like the traditional Tiramisu and Berries with Zabaglione. And the customer favorite-Mount Vesuvius, a warm chocolate brownie with hot fudge, ice cream and topped with whipped cream.

Tullio's was recently named one of America's top 1000

Italian Restaurants by the Zagat Guide Survey for 2008. We were recently featured on Quincy Cable on the Quincy Restaurant League show.

Our function room "The Grotto" seats up to 30 people and is popular for sharing special events like birthdays, rehearsal dinners, anniversaries, graduations and showers.

Jack, Andrea, Kim-our Manager, and Ozzie-our Chef, look forward to you visiting us soon. Call for reservations or stop by on your next "Date-Night". We are open Wed, Thu, Fri for lunch and every night for dinner. See you soon.

Check out these other great businesses!

year, at the urging of Louise Meservy, past president of the Wollaston Garden Club, and others, the legislature officially revoked the action which was taken 338 years before.

Hutchinson is remembered in Quincy with two obscure signs in Wollaston that acknowledge that in 1638, she used that site on her way to Rhode Island on the 17th day of April. The site is located on a parcel of land that was part of the original grant of 600 acres made by the Town of Boston to Anne's husband, William Hutchinson.

The Wollaston Garden Club and the Park Department, first started preparing the site in June, 2001, and it has been the goal of the garden club to beautify and maintain the site for the dedication ceremony.

Medicine Cabinets Can Be As Hazardous As Street Corners For Youngsters

The home medicine cabinet can be as hazardous as the street corner for youngsters or any potential drug addict, according to Michael Botticelli, the state's Director of the Bureau of Substance Abuse.

"Prescription drug abuse has shown significant increase, particularly among young adults," Botticelli told City Councillors Monday as he discussed substance problems in the city and across the state.

However, regardless of all the new directions, Botticelli said, "Alcohol is still the primary drug."

Botticelli spoke after the state's legislative delegates described plans to increase the cigarette tax in order to raise funds. He noted that Massachusetts has not increased the tax on alcohol since 1976 and is on one of only four states that "doesn't have an excise tax" on alcohol.

Botticelli described the "non-medical use of prescription drugs" as a recent trend for vulnerable persons of all ages, but especially young people.

"Of course it's very alarming," said Botticelli who described younger and younger addicts who move from prescription drug to heroin addiction.

Both Botticelli and Councillor John Keenan described the ease with which some medical professionals dispense powerful drugs.

Botticelli and Keenan said they'd recently visited their dentist where they'd had serious, but not incapacitating, dentistry performed. In each case, the different dentist offered prescriptions for heavy-duty painkillers.

Tonull Keenan's pain, his dentist offered a prescription for Oxycontin, known as a highly addictive and dangerous medicine when not closely monitored.

Under the same circumstances, Botticelli's dentist was ready to write out a prescription for Percocet, another heavy-duty medication.

There are people who will leave unfinished and dangerous medicines in the cabinet for youngsters to take, according to Botticelli's report and youngsters often get high on "their friends' prescriptions from a medicine cabinet."

Botticelli congratulated Mayor Thomas Koch for recently lining up a drug task force for the city. He then provided statistics showing how serious the city's problem is.

Quincy's fatal drug overdoses outstrip the state average by almost two to one or 15.6 out of 100,000 to the state's 8.3.

Similarly emergency room treatment for drug incidents is, again, almost double the state's average, according to Botticelli's data.

"Some of those numbers may be skewed," Council President Jay Davis said, noting the city's exception programs for homeless shelters.

On the positive side, Botticelli noted that Quincy's medical and social service agencies have applied for grants, that that are early intervention programs in some elementary schools and Quincy Medical Center has a thorough treatment and screening program.

Both Councillor Joseph Finn and Ward 1 Councillor Leo Kelly stressed that addiction problems are not the problem on youngsters and adults in any specific economic group.

"They can come from the best families," said Finn.

Aerial Larval Application To Begin April 14 In Quincy

The Quincy Health Department has received notice from the Norfolk County Mosquito Control Project (NCMCP) that the 2008 Aerial Application to Control Mosquito Larvae will begin during the week of April 14 and continue through April 18.

If the application cannot be completed within this time frame, it will continue beyond these dates. As always, the weather in the spring is unpredictable. For this reason, the NCMCP cannot pin down the dates with more accuracy.

The NCMCP will be conducting helicopter applications of the biorational larvicide Bti (Bacillus thuringiensis israelensis) to control mosquito larvae. The trade name of the granular formulation of Bti to be used is VectoBac G (EPA Reg. #73049-10).

The application will be conducted over specific large wetlands in the City of Quincy as well as other Norfolk County towns. In Quincy, mosquito larvae surveillance has indicated the need to apply larvicide by helicopter to the Broad Meadows Marsh.

The application should take only one day to complete.

For further information contact the Norfolk County Mosquito Control Project online at <http://massnrc.org/nemcp>, or contact John J. Smith, Director, at (781) 762-3681.

Meet Casey Perdios

Did you happen to notice the baby in the photo on Page One in last week's Quincy Sun?

That was the photo showing Mayor Thomas Koch signing up for the Quincy Solar Challenge with a number of people involved surrounding him.

One of them in the background was Steve Perdios of the Quincy Environmental Network holding a baby partially hidden.

Her name wasn't mentioned and Steve and his wife, Courtney, were disappointed.

Can't blame them. The young lady's name for the record, is Casey Perdios, Steve and Courtney's first child, and only 17 days old when the photo was taken.

Sorry for missing you, Casey, and wishing you many happy years.

1775, the thunder of the bombardment had been terrifying even at the distance of Brantree.

"From a granite outcropping that breached the summit like the hump of a whale, they could see the smoke of battle rising beyond Boston, ten miles up the bay."

That night, Abigail noted of the first all-out battle of the Revolution: "How many have fallen, we know not. The constant roar of cannon is so distressing that we cannot eat, drink or sleep."

The memorial known as the Abigail Adams Cairn was erected at the intersection of Franklin Street and Biden Road on Penn's Hill in 1896 by the Adams Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

As the years passed and the city's population expanded to the edge of its boundaries, the Cairn was surrounded by residences, an historical treasure that was hidden from the view of all but the most curious.

But all that may be about to change, thanks to David McCullough and HBO.

The miniseries, said

Raymondi's resolve, "has resulted in millions of Americans being reintroduced to the significant roles that John and Abigail Adams played in the formation of our Nation, and

"Whereas, it is anticipated that the popularity of the John Adams miniseries will result in increased numbers of visitors to Quincy's historic sites including the Abigail Adams Cairn on Penn's Hill, and

"Whereas, unfortunately, the Cairn is in need of restoration and the area surrounding the Cairn must be made more visitor friendly;

"Now therefore be it resolved that the Mayor, Park Department, Historical Society, Historical Commission and Tourism Officials work together to restore the Abigail Adams Cairn and make this important historical site as welcoming and rewarding as possible for visitors to our great historical city."

PHILIP RAGUSA JR., broker/owner of Boston Premier Properties, and his staff join Mayor Tom Koch in cutting the ribbon on their new flagship office in Wollaston. Boston Premier Properties Sites Flagship In Quincy Boston Premier Properties, with a long record of successful apartment rental and real estate sales, has opened its flagship office at 664 Hancock St., Wollaston, with a ceremonial ribbon-cutting.

Present at the opening were Philip Ragusa, the broker/owner and his staff, Mayor Tom Koch, Dean Rizzo, executive director of Quincy 2000 Collaborative, as well as friends, family and well-wishers.

Ragusa, who has nearly a decade of experience in the Boston area, started his own business two years ago. With his staff and customers expanding, the office opening was the next step in growing the business.

The owners attributes the company's success to "an unwavering commitment to adhering to an unusual sales approach of utilizing a laid back, low pressure tactic."

The firm is distinguished from others by an individual sales focus which matches the customer with the best possible home/apartment for them, which requires really listening to a customer's needs and translating them into a match.

Each sales person is required to have a commanding knowledge of inventory and also know the market so that they can locate a home or apartment that may not even be in inventory at the time the customer calls.

This approach, coupled with training which instills maintaining integrity and professionalism at all times is the perfect recipe for success.

"We pride ourselves in a large inventories on properties and the ability to find what a customer is searching for," said Ragusa. "We believe that the customer always comes first and we treat each customer of every level the same way. We are a full service brokerage firm."

This program is part of a large endeavor, in cooperation with the other conservation efforts in Massachusetts, to restore the landscape and our environment with the eternal beauty of living trees.

The memorial trees are planted in the spring and fall. After each service, close family members and friends are informed that the memorial tree has been arranged for by the Dolan Funeral Services. When the tree has been planted, the designated people will receive a certificate of planting suitable for framing and keeping in the family's history.

This living memorial is an example of the new innovative approach being taken by the funeral directors profession as a whole, and by the staff of the Dolan Funeral Services in particular, to increasingly contribute to their community and the environment.

FIRE SAFETY

Dangers Of Oil Rags And Proper Disposal

Here is a subject I've never addressed. There's been a house fire recently and I'd like to discuss how it started. As a source of ignition, the subject occurs infrequently enough; however while discussing it in this office we came across enough incidents deeming it worth bringing to your attention.

The subject is the casual disposal of oily rags and the possible consequences.

Oily rags used and disposed of after use in staining or painting must be disposed of properly to avoid spontaneous combustion. Spontaneous combustion? Let's say you've used a rag with staining oil. It is discarded on a table, folded or possibly balled up and left there after use. Here is what can happen.

The oxygen in the air can combine with the oil on the cloth creating heat. Particularly if the oily cloth is balled up or crumpled, this heat cannot disperse in the air and will accumulate within the rag eventually creating enough heat to ignite it. The process is called spontaneous combustion.

Spontaneous combustion is the outbreak of fire without the application of heat from an external source. The oily rag, for example, may be heated to its ignition temperature by a slow oxidation process. Oxidation is a chemical reaction involving the oxygen in the air around us, which in this instance reacts with the oil on the rag, raising the inside temperature of the oil and the cloth to a point at which a fire starts.

I've spoken with an investigator in this office and he conveyed the circumstances regarding two other fires, which started in similar ways. One had to do with oily rags discarded in a plastic bag with sawdust from wood floor refinishing. The entire contents ignited from spontaneous combustion when oily rags heated the contents to its ignition temperature.

A similar situation occurred when rags were left on the wooden basement stairs, igniting, while the ensuing fire extended to them and the structure of the house.

So what sort of oils are we discussing here? Linseed oil is the most common culprit while tung oil is quite susceptible as well. You may be thinking that you typically use neither, however, that oil based commercial stain you're using might contain a certain percentage of one or both. Therefore, read the label on the can or bottle and determine any warnings associated with its use.

Where I'm not a chemist, I'll go so far as to treat any cloth used with turpentine, paint thinner; oil based paints, acetone or any hydrocarbon-based solution with the same consideration I would with linseed oil. I won't take a chance. I make certain the cloth is draped in such a way that should heat from oxidation occur, the cloth is positioned so that created heat can rapidly disperse.

Meanwhile, I don't leave the cloth adjacent to anything combustible. For instance, take a cloth with turpentine used to clean brushes. After use, I'll place the cloth outside on the gravel walkway, or drape it over a fence, and let it dry there in open air.

There are two things occurring here. First, any heat created by oxidation will be dispersed into the open air, not the cloth. Secondly, the oil and turpentine will dry out in the open air, minimizing the hazard. It isn't unusual for me to leave a cloth out there for a week in the elements to eliminate the potential hazard.

There is an alternative however, place used rags within a covered metal container, isolated from combustible surroundings as well. The oxygen supply within the container is minimal, and if spontaneous combustion occurs, the possibility of fire extending outside the container is eliminated.

Thank you and be safe.

OSTEOARTHRITIS AND THE FEET

There are more than 100 different types of arthritis, but the most common is osteoarthritis. Osteoarthritis is sometimes called "degenerative arthritis" because it occurs as people age and the cartilage connecting the joints to the bones starts to wear down simply from normal use. People with osteoarthritis often experience pain and stiffness in the foot or toe joints, and may even find walking or other movement painful and difficult. They may notice even more stiffness in the morning or after any period of rest. There are several treatment options for someone with osteoarthritis ranging from medication therapy to physical therapy to surgery. High arches or flat feet put people at increased risk for osteoarthritis. Osteoarthritis of the foot warrants professional, personalized attention. To get the treatment your feet deserve, and sometimes demand, call the foot care specialists. If you have a foot problem, you're not walking alone. Four out of five adults suffer from some kind of foot problem, and many smartly choose to have their problem treated by a specialist in foot care. We offer complete family foot care for feet of all sizes and shapes at QUINCY MEDICAL CENTER. Call 781-986-3668 for an appointment. Office hours also available at 999 North Main St., in the Randolph Medical Office Building, and Milton Medical Building in Suite 221 I am affiliated with the Brockton and Good Samaritan Hospitals.

P.S.: It is estimated that by the year 2020, 60 million Americans will have osteoarthritis.

State Aid For Schools Seen Up, But Future Gloomy

vise some of the figures down."

"We're going to live within our revenues," Mariano said.

On the upside, the state's rainy day monies or stabilization fund was estimated $3 billion. However, legislators said the years ahead are likely to have heavier deficits when that fund will be tapped.

Morrissey described the three major public works projects currently underway for Quincy, specifically the Fore River Bridge, the Neponset Bridge and the new ramp connecting Crown Colony to Interstate 93.

While the state's income is dwindling, the state's obligations are skyrocketing, according to Morrissey. He outlined some $150 million in added state obligations, including an additional $66 million needed for the state's pensions, another $70 million increase in the school building program, and millions more in the MBTA transit system deficits.

"I've never seen it this bad," said Rep. Ron Mariano, adding, "Next year could be even worse...."

"The stresses on our budget are the same as stresses on your budget," Mariano told councillors, adding "We going to take some tax votes to close some of the deficits."

If these two financial initiatives pass on Beacon Hill, Mariano expects $170 million in added revenue from the new cigarette tax and a savings of $289 million from closing corporate loopholes.

These changes will produce "more revenues that would have come from a casino," said Mariano, adding that the proposed taxes and changes would produce "revenues that can be used immediately."

Tobin said he hopes the legislature will commit to a comprehensive review of our tax policy. "My biggest concern is that we don't hurt business growth."

Legislators had hoped for a 4.4% increase in local aid but that's not likely to be the case.

However, the legislature will allocate $15 million to sewer and water rate relief for Quincy, according to Mariano.

Despite the economic woes, Ayers pledged to seek proper state maintenance for such areas as Wollaston Beach and Squantum Point Park, noting that it's important to protect such areas.

Legislators briefly visited such subjects as Governor Deval Patrick's casino plan which Morrissey supported and Mariano opposed.

As for other income for the city, Morrissey said other state legislators will not approve a meals' tax which would benefit such cities as Quincy. "The meals' tax is not going to happen," unless the tax receipts are put in the state's general fund.

Koch said he chose Bellotti because he is "unquestionably objective," adding the sheriff will select the other members of the screening committee himself.

"The Mayor's only request was that this be a fair, objective and thorough process," said Bellotti.

"I look forward to the task and I believe firmly that the group we put together will in the end make a recommendation based on the best interests of the Quincy Police Department and the city."

Koch said he hopes to have a recommendation from Bellotti's committee in time to have a new police chief in place when Crowley formally retires at the end of June.

He said the captain's position left vacant by the appointment of a chief will not be filled in the municipal budget for Fiscal 2009, in keeping with his campaign pledge that the department's ranks are weighted too heavily toward command staff.

A Fresh Coat for Spring

Q. In midwinter I moved into an apartment that had been occupied by a smoker. Cleaning up wasn't too bad — there was no carpet to worry about, and the drapes had been removed. However, the walls are all dingy and I'd like to freshen up the place. Will my landlord allow me to paint the apartment? Do you have any tips on making the apartment look bigger and airier? — Jeri K., via e-mail

A. Painting your apartment shouldn't be a problem. Most apartment leases include sections on redecorating — specifically painting, wallpapering and carpeting. Check your lease to see if there are any limits on the types of colors one can use or even if the apartment management or landlord offers any rebates for doing improvements yourself.

Most landlords want to be informed of any painting or related work in an apartment. A heads-up is not only polite, but can also be helpful if there are areas that the landlord needs you to avoid or to be careful around, or if he or she would prefer that you use latex or oil-based paints.

Here are a few tips:

- Wash the walls a couple of days before painting by dipping a sponge in warm, soapy water and wringing it out well. This will remove grimy residue and help the new coat of paint better adhere to the old surface.
- Apply spackling paste over unused nail holes and smooth using a putty knife.
- Try to use the same type of paint — latex or oil-based — as the old coat. If this is not possible or you don't know for sure, apply a coat of primer paint the day before painting.
- The same goes for significant color changes, especially if you're painting a light color over a darker one — apply primer beforehand.

Renting Vs. Owning: Building Equity In Your Future

(NAPS) — For many Americans, owning a home is the cornerstone of their financial wealth. In fact, building equity in a home, combined with tax advantages offered by both federal and state governments, has driven homeownership to record levels in recent years. However, millions of renters continue to have misconceptions about the home-buying process, often delaying a home purchase by saying, "it's too complicated." Buying a home is not as complicated as it may seem. With a thorough understanding of the process, owning a home can be a very real possibility for many renters.

One of the key steps in determining whether you should be a homeowner versus a renter is understanding what happens to the money you pay each month for rent or mortgage.

For example, let's consider a renter with a monthly payment of $600. Over five years, that person will have spent $36,000 on rent. In 10 years, that number rises to $72,000. That would be $72,000 without building any equity, or ownership, in return.

If the same monthly payment were applied to a mortgage, a portion of each month's payment would go toward paying down the principal (the price at which you purchased the home less a down payment), which would allow you to build ownership in the property. In addition, the interest that you pay each month, as well as any property taxes, may be deductible on your federal income taxes — a tax advantage not available to many renters (consult a tax advisor or the Internal Revenue Service regarding the deductibility of interest).

"What renters often don't realize is that in the long term, they can't afford to not buy a home, particularly as rental rates increase in many parts of the country," says Jim Ferriter, executive vice president for GMAC Mortgage.

Market conditions are very favorable for first-time homebuyers. If you have been thinking about making the move to owning a home versus renting, now is the time to start seriously looking at homes.

On the flip side, probably the greatest advantage of renting is the flexibility it offers in terms of moving. Also, the ease of knowing you are not responsible for many repairs that might arise or for the upkeep of a yard is appealing to many people of all ages. Renting is a good step towards homeownership because it helps people understand the discipline of meeting a monthly obligation and it can possibly improve a person's credit score when payments are made on time.

Start Building Your Nest Egg Now

(NAPS)—In 2007, a home was sold in the United States every 4.9 seconds. Although no one can predict the future, demographics will continue to drive long-term demand. Looking ahead through 2015, nearly 15 million new households are expected to be formed in this country. And all of those people will need a place to live.

Getting a jump now—when rates are low, inventory is plentiful and home prices are compelling—can be a great strategy for building your own nest egg and personal wealth. The experts at Realty Corporation, the parent company of the CENTURY 21, Coldwell Banker, ERA and Sotheby's International Realty brands, explain why:

Great Rates

Mortgage interest rates remain very attractive and are at or near 40-year lows.

Great Timing

The economic stimulus package recently signed into law provides a significant benefit to homebuyers and sellers. With the conforming loan limit raised from $417,000 to as much as $729,500 in some market areas—more buyers can get lower interest rates. So if you saw a dream home you couldn't afford last year, look again.

Great Long-Term Investment

Home equity is the largest single source of household wealth for most Americans. From 1972 to 2007, the median home price appreciated at a compound annual growth rate of 6.2 percent. To put that in perspective, a $25,000 investment back in 1972 at the same rate of return would be worth approximately $233,000 today. Maybe that's why nearly two-thirds of Americans agree that renting a place to live is like throwing money away.

Taxes Not Done? Don't Panic

If you're down to the wire and haven't finished (or started) your taxes, there's still time to get it done. It's important to file on time because penalties and interest accrue if you don't. The meter starts running the day taxes are due, and they can add up to 25 percent of your tax bill.

Here are some ways to get your taxes done at the last minute:

- Take your taxes to a tax preparer such as H&R Block. Call ahead of time to see if there's a long wait. Ask how long before your return can be completed.

- The IRS has the Volunteer Income Tax Assistance Program, where you can get free basic tax preparation if you can be considered low or moderate income (approximately $40,000). Call 1-800-829-1040 for a location near you.

- If you're age 60 or older, consider the Tax Counseling for the Elderly Program. For more information on TCE, call 1-800-829-1040. Also consider the AARP Tax-Aide program for seniors. Call 1-888-227-7669 for information.

- You can call the IRS for help with filling out the forms (1-800-829-1040) or visit a Taxpayer Assistance Center near you. The IRS Web site has a locator to find the center closest to you with addresses and phone numbers. Call in advance to ask about its hours. If you go that route, take everything you might need — Social Security numbers of dependents, W-2 Forms and so on. Be sure to write down the name and employee number of the agent who helps complete your return.

- Grab tax-prep software from an office-supply store and start plugging in your numbers. Remember to let the program get the form updates online. Read the computer requirements on the box to make sure your machine can handle the software.

- Use the IRS software FreeFile, available at www.irs.gov, to prepare and e-file if your adjusted gross income was less than $54,000.

If all else fails and you cannot get your taxes finished in time, file a Form 4868 to get a six-month extension of time for filing. Note that it's an extension for filing, not paying — you still must pay what you estimate you owe at the time you file.

Protecting Your Home – Easy Basement Waterproofing

(NAPS)—Spring may be good for flowers, but it's bad for basements. Excessive moisture in basements and foundation walls can result in structural rot and decay, as well as high humidity levels throughout the home. And even a small amount of moisture can create the perfect conditions for mold and mildew. That's why it's important to take care of water problems before they start.

It's easy to waterproof your concrete basement walls if you follow a few tips from the pros. Here's some advice from the waterproofing experts at Zinsser:

Prepare the surface

Clean the surface of dirt, grease and other contaminants. Kill any mold and mildew with a solution of household bleach and water. Remove efflorescence (a powdery white deposit found on many concrete surfaces) with a concrete etching solution such as Waterlite Etch and Cleaner. Finally, patch any hole and cracks with Waterlite Hydraulic Cement, especially those that show signs of active water leaks.

Apply two coats of water-proofing paint

Fortunately, it's easy to keep water out-and keep mold and mildew away-by using a water-proofer that contains mold and mildew protection, such as Waterlite Mold & Mildew-Proof Waterproofing Paint. Available in either an oil-base or the new latex-base formula, these superior-performance products are guaranteed to stop water and offer a five-year, mold and mildew-proof paint film guarantee. Both are low odor and easy to use.

To apply Waterlite, use a thick synthetic brush or large nap roller to apply the first coat to a small section of the masonry. Use a brush to work the coating into the pores of the concrete to produce a continuous, pinhole-free film. Apply a second coat with a brush or roller.

Enjoy your basement

Waterlite dries to a very smooth, beautiful finish that can be applied white or can be tinted to a wide range of off-white, pastel and medium-tone colors to help you transform a damp, leaky basement into a beautiful living space.

Renting Vs. Owning: Building Equity In Your Future

If you decide to move forward on the process of buying a home, consider these tips from GMAC Mortgage:

- Attend a first-time buyer workshop to learn more about the home-buying and financing process. In addition, there are many online resources, such as smartedgebygm.com that offers information about financing your first home.

- Check your credit. Be aware that your credit history may affect the interest rate, and the type of mortgage for which you may qualify. You may want to work on improving your credit before purchasing a home.

- Find an experienced real estate professional. A real estate agent can be invaluable in helping you through the process of buying your first home.

- Get preapproved for a mortgage. It is one of the best ways to determine how large of a monthly mortgage payment you can afford and will give you an indication of your price range as you shop for homes. You will want a pre-approval letter when you bid on a home, as some sellers may not accept offers from buyers who have not demonstrated some ability to finance the purchase.

"Owning a home is a great opportunity to begin building equity and it can offer numerous other advantages," added Ferriter. "No one should be intimidated by the process involved with buying a home sooner than you think."

A Job Well Done

On Thursday, March 27, at approximately 5:58 p.m., Detectives Paul Piper and Karyn Barkas were on Copeland Street heading towards Water Street in an unmarked cruiser when Quincy Police Teletype Operator Michael Bowes gave out a B.O.L.O. (be on look out) over the Quincy Police radio.

The B.O.L.O. was that two white males committed an armed robbery of the "Super Shine" in Braintree employing a used syringe as the weapon. The incident had occurred within the last ten minutes and the white males fled in an older model, green minivan on Quincy Avenue towards Quincy.

LT. DAN MINTON

The detectives traveled to the intersection of Water Street and Quincy Avenue in hopes of locating the suspect vehicle. As the detectives turned onto Quincy Avenue, they observed a green minivan in the northbound lane of traffic on Quincy Avenue. It was the second vehicle in from the intersection waiting for the light to turn green. As the detectives passed in front of the minivan, they observed two white males in the front seats of the minivan. The detectives then followed the minivan and radioed the plate to Communications.

The minivan headed westbound on Water Street towards Franklin Street and then into the parking lot of the Getty Gas Station located at 60 Franklin St. Once the minivan came to a stop, the driver (suspect #1) walked into the gas station while the passenger (suspect #2) exited the passenger side, walked around the vehicle and sat in the drivers seat.

Detective Piper walked into the gas station behind the suspect, while Detective Barkas approached the vehicle. Officer James Flaherty arrived on scene and went into the gas station to back up Detective Piper, who was instructing the suspect to step away from the counter and walk outside.

Officer Flaherty conducted a pat frisk for weapons and discovered a hard object inside the rear of the suspect's pants. Detective Piper removed the object, which turned out to be a bundle of cash rolled up. After Detective Piper read the Miranda rights, the suspect was questioned and he said that he was coming from his mother's house.

The second suspect told Detective Barkas that they came from Walgreen's. When told that their stories were inconsistent, suspect #1 said that he wanted to tell what really happened. Suspect #1 told Detectives that suspect #2 held a silver handgun to his head and told him to go into the Super Shine and get the money that was owed to him. When asked where the gun was, suspect #1 stated that suspect #2 tossed the handgun out the passenger window of the minivan in the area of the former West Coast video site.

Quincy Police Officers' Declan Breslin and William O'Neill arrived on scene and searched the second suspect for weapons. Inside his right front pocket, they found a hypodermic needle. Suspect #2 was questioned and stated that he currently has a heroin addiction. He denied that there was any gun involved and that he did not threaten suspect #1. Officers and Detectives searched the area but did not find a gun.

Braintree Police Detective Brendan McLaughlin arrived on scene with the victim of the armed robbery, who made a positive identification of suspect #1 as the man who robbed him with the syringe. The victim/witness stated he was 100% sure of suspect #1's involvement, but could not identify the second suspect because he had remained in the car during the robbery. Detective McLaughlin placed both suspects into custody and they were transported to the Braintree Police Station by two Braintree marked units. Detective McLaughlin charged both suspects with "Armed Robbery" and placed the syringe, money and clothing into evidence bags. Suspect #1 was a 19-year-old Quincy resident and suspect #2 was a 22-year-old Weymouth resident. The suspect's vehicle was towed to the Braintree Police Station for evidence collection. Nice Work!

In this particular case, many Officers were looking for the suspect vehicle and by Detectives' Piper and Barkas quick action, not only were they able to capture two suspects involved in a serious crime, they may have prevented a second robbery by following one suspect into the gas station as the second suspect moved into the driver side seat, ready to drive off!

SPORTS

Seasoned Presidents Hope To Make Progress

By SEAN BRENNAN

Experienced players who can and will play multiple positions on the baseball diamond and who all have the drive to be the best will be the story this season for the Quincy Presidents varsity baseball team.

The Presidents, coming off a 10-10 record last year and a fourth appearance in the last five years in the Division II South Sectional tournament, will be aiming to match that feat and take it a step forward as spring turns to summer.

"We have a situation where this team has experienced seniors and juniors who have played for us in the past at the varsity level and who are ready to take the next step," said head coach Mike Draicchio. "And with many of these kids being able to play at multiple positions it gives us a little more flexibility and that is a good spot to be in."

But as it always is in high school athletics, a talented senior class and a trio of captains in the Presidents' case—who will be looking to make their last seasons special will lead the Presidents.

Senior captains Mike LeBel (SS/SP); Rick Salvucci (3B/P) and Teddy Walsh (2B) along with seniors Joe Reggianini (C/OF); Eric Englehart, Robert Ranalli, Dave Griffin, Kyle Crag and Diego Arredondo form the core group this season for the Presidents.

"The three captains are all returning starters from last year's team and all three of them are not only outstanding athletes but all three of them are also outstanding students (all three are at or near the top of their class)," added Draicchio. "LeBel, who is our shortstop and one of our top pitchers, is a great player. While Salvucci and Walsh both bring experience and solid play to the team."

"But our other seniors should also make impacts this season. All of them can play different positions and that should make us competitive in every game we play this season."

With the ability to put a different product on the field to match whatever situation the game presents, the Presidents will be leaning heavily on its underclassman as well. Players to keep an eye on this spring include Andrew Papile, Edwin Nunez, Corey Morgan, Tony Salris, John Parry, Sean Gray, Lance Peterson, Colin McCarthy and Leroy Wallace.

BASEBALL

"This team is made up of kids who are multiple sport athletes," said Draicchio. "It is a good mix of players who all have talent and come to practice everyday looking to get better as a team. I feel like with this roster we can match up with and compete with any team we go up against."

"This team gets along well and all of them have a love for the game of baseball. Hopefully we can start the year off with some victories and get on the winning track. And if we stay healthy, we can win a lot of games."

Quincy, which plays in the competitive Atlantic Coast League (ACL), has made the tournament four times in the last five years, and Draicchio sees no reason why this season should be any different.

"We, as a program, have had a nice run the last five years. Making the postseason four out of the last five years is a great feat and even though the league is very competitive, we have proven that when we bring our 'A' game that we can beat any team."

The Presidents opened their 2008 season on April 3 with a non-league game against King Philip High School at a wind-swept Adams Field. Quincy dropped the contest 7-3.

The weather (wind) caused problems for both teams. The Presidents had five errors, including three on misplayed popups, and the mistakes proved costly.

LeBel, who is headed to the University of Rhode Island on a baseball scholarship next fall, started on the rubber for Quincy and went five innings allowing five hits while walking three and striking out six. He also hit a monster 363-foot homerun over the left field fence in the third inning.

Quincy trailed 3-1 entering the top of the six inning but King Philip went up 7-1 on the strength of three hits, two walks and three errors. In the bottom of the inning, the Presidents stage a late-game rally. Reggianini doubled to left; pinch-hitter Sean Gray double to right to drive him in; Kyle Craig reached on an infield hit and Walsh drove in Gray with a force out. But Quincy could muster no additional runs and lost by four.

"This was our first game and it will take some time to hit our stride," said Draicchio. "But we had guys in scoring position all game and eventually we will translate those opportunities into runs."

Diego Arredondo finished the game with two hits.

Quincy played on Monday against Silver Lake Regional High School (results next week) and are scheduled to play its first ACL game this Friday on the road versus Nauset High School.

Raiders Open Season With Win Over Randolph

The North Quincy Red Raiders officially opened the 2008 season with a 13-7 thrashing of Randolph High School in a non-league game last Thursday afternoon.

North received strong pitching performances from Ryan Louis (first varsity win); Kevin Chenette; Ben Leahy and Matt Jay in the win.

The Raiders' bats stayed hot as the team finished the game with 13 runs on 11 hits. The team's top-three hitters, Matt Rodriguez, John Ainsley and Joe Vialpando, combined to go six for nine with six runs scored and five runs batted in (RBI).

Matt Jay and Alex Tragellis each added two RBI's in the victory.

On March 31, the Raiders played an exclusion game against Brockton High School at Adams Field. North came up short, losing 12-8 to the Boxers.

But the game was not a total loss as all nine starters had hits and the team as a whole combined for fourteen base knocks.

Rodriguez, Vialpando, Ainsley, Trevor Brown and Dan Richards each had two hits and Brown and Louis both finished with two RBI.

Pitching well despite the loss were Keith Morreale and Joe Edgerly.

The Raiders were scheduled to play their first Atlantic Coast League game versus Whitman-Hanson High School yesterday (4/9) and will play on the road against Falmouth HS on Friday (game time: 4 p.m.).

North's next home game at Adams Field is April 15 against ACL foe Marshfield HS.

Basketball MVP In Independent Girls Conference

Michele Norton Difference Maker For Woodward

By SEAN BRENNAN

Sometimes, not often, but sometimes one athlete can be the difference between a winning or losing season; a successful or unsuccessful season or a season that exceeds expectations.

Michele Norton, a senior at The Woodward School for Girls (Quincy Center), was that athlete this past winter for the Wildcats varsity basketball team. Norton, a three-year varsity starter, helped carry a team that was low on experienced players (11 in all), and a team that was predicted to finish at or near the bottom of the competitive Independent Girls Conference (IGC) to a surprising third place finish in the league's First Division.

Woodward ended the 2007-08 season with a 8-6 record and Norton was named the IGC's Most Valuable Player on the strength of her team's performance and her own individual accomplishments.

Norton finished the year with 265 points (20.5 points per game), 117 rebounds (9.0 rebounds per game) and was named to the New England Preparatory School Athletic Council all-star team. All while playing the year facing double and triple teams; and playing all five position on the court.

"I knew from the first time Michele stepped on the court in the 10th grade that she could probably be the best basketball player this school had ever seen," said Woodward head coach Bob Giordano. "Her leadership makeup and her take charge attitude made her a coach on the court. And this year, without question, her performance was the single best basketball performance by a Woodward player since I've been here."

Norton, who has been active in basketball since the third grade, transferred to Woodward after one year at the Newman School (Boston) and immediately made an impact, improving each of the three years she played for the Wildcats.

Her first year she averaged 14.9 ppg and 8.1 rpg; her second she scored 16.5 ppg with 8.7 rpg and her third year she carried an over achieving team to a winning record, but it was her willingness to be the 'one,' and all that came with it, that made her such a special high school player.

"Basketball is my love," said Norton. "I know and have been coached that to be the best you need to give 110 percent and that is what I try to do every time I am out on the court competing. But I also know that to be a successful team you need everybody on the same page and working as one whole unit."

"I had a good year, but the most important thing was how the team played and not how many points I scored. I never once said I could do this alone and it was my teammates and coaches that made the season such a success."

The 5'9" forward/center took what she had learned during her first two years and brought that basketball knowledge into practice and games this season and that was the difference between an under .500 record and the 8-6 record Woodward finished up the year with.

"I grew up this season," added Norton, "on the court and as a team leader. This year, with our inexperienced team, I saw the game from a different angle. I saw different sides of things and always gave my best in every situation."

"This was my team. And I did what I had to do to take them under my wing. It ended up being one of the best years I have ever had playing basketball."

Besides her athletic accomplishments, Norton is also a star student. She is a member of the exclusive National Honor Society and next fall she hopes to attend Massachusetts College of Pharmacy and Health Sciences in Boston.

Norton wrapped up her Woodward career with 799 career points, 403 rebounds, three IGC all-league nominations and one league MVP. She was also recognized this season by The Boston Globe, which placed her on their 2007-08 All-Scholastic team.

Norton also played soccer for the Wildcats and will captain the varsity softball team this spring (she is a star pitcher/shortstop).

"My mom Michele, who I consider my hero, always tells me that if I am going to do something, then put your mind to it," said Norton. "That is what I try to do, no matter what it is, and this year our entire team did that and it paid off."

"I wouldn't have had the success I had at Woodward without the support of my teammates, coaches and teachers. It has been a great place to go to school and play basketball."

Sarah Lindenfield To Run Boston Marathon for Team BMC

Sarah Lindenfield, a Quincy resident, is one of 35 runners who will be running the 112th Boston Marathon as part of Team BMC (Boston Medical Center).

Each member of Team BMC will raise a minimum of $3,000 for the many programs at the medical center. Last year's Team BMC raised more than $200,000 and many runners have pledged to raise more in hopes of surpassing that

The North Quincy Red Raider varsity softball team could be a very deep and dangerous team this spring.

The 2008 edition returns every member off last year's 15-6 team (10-3 in the Atlantic Coast League, second place finish) and exceptions are high for an even better year this season. The Raiders, who made the post season in 2007 for the first time since 1995, lost in the first round of the Division 1 tournament to Somerset High School 7-0.

"This year we have the entire team returning as we had no seniors on our roster last year," said head coach Michael Connor. "The team this season is deep and talented and everyone of the players are hard working and only getting better."

With his entire starting lineup returning in force, Connor has comfort in knowing that his team will be well prepared for what lies ahead and what is needed to achieve another successful season.

"So far things have been positive," he added. "Last year we were one victory shy of a league title. With everyone one returning our goal, or one of them, is to win the ACL. We have more experience and being a tournament team last year the goal of winning the league is a realistic one."

"No North Quincy softball team has ever gone out and won a league title, so that is something we are hoping to achieve. We will take the season one game at a time and when the dust settles, hopefully we will be where we think we can be."

The roster itself is littered

with student-athletes who have been winners throughout their high school careers, be it on the volleyball court, soccer field, and basketball court or on the diamond and this experience should bode well for the Raiders.

Senior captains Kasey O'Connell (1B); Paige Bonanni (SP/2B), Kerry Coughlin (C) and Rebecca Goreham (LF) head the impressive 2008 senior class for the Raiders. Others seniors who will see significant time this season include Brianne Carnell (1B/OF), Caitlin Nelson (1F) and Simone Leary (RF). Senior Katherine Feeney is injured and will miss the season.

The Raiders also have a stellar supply of underclassmen that will be looking to improve on last season. This list includes juniors Catherine O'Connell (1B), Kathleen Lynch (3B), Brittany Folkins (2B/P) and Siobhan Carnell (CF). Sophomore Jessica Ainsley (2B/IF) will also be a major contributor this spring.

"This year because of the depth and talent of the returning players we only have a 12-person varsity roster," added Connor. "But the jayvee team is also stacked with talent so if an injury comes up or we are in need of some extra bodies, we have plenty of talent to move up to the varsity level."

"But the roster now is filled with girls who have and know what it takes to achieve success. The experienced they have gained by playing other sports and the results that they have had bodes well for the team.

"It is a very talented and competitive group and very easy to coach because they all have such high standards. We will not fail because of a lack of trying. No matter what happens, it should be a fun season and once we jell and put it together we should be real good."

The Raiders opened their season with a convincing 6-1 league win over Plymouth North High School last week.

Bonanni hurled a complete game (7 innings) six hitter, allowing just the one run. Kasey O'Connell finished 2-for-3 at the plate with a run scored and a stolen base; Goreham had a big two-run double and Carnell came through with a clutch two out RBI.

"They (PN) are one of the teams we will be competing with all year," said Connor. "We hit the ball and played good defense and Paige pitched us to the win. A good way to start the year."

North Quincy plays four games this week. The team played Plymouth South on Monday; Nauset HS on Tuesday; are scheduled to play against Whitman-Hanson HS today (April 10) at 4 p.m. at Mitchell/McCoy and end the week with another home game Friday (April 11) against Falmouth HS at Mitchell/McCoy (4 p.m.).

Notes: Kerry Coughlin, Brittany Folkins and Kasey O'Connell were all ACL all-stars last season... Rebecca Goreham, Paige Bonanni and Kathleen Lynch were honorable mention league all-stars.

Feeling Down? Exercise!

Q. How can exercise help with depression? My friend has suffered from depression for several years, and her doctor recently recommended exercise as part of her treatment. She hasn't begun to exercise yet, and I want to help her. Where would I start?

A. Exercise has been shown to help not only our physical health, but also our mental health. A study reported in the American Journal of Preventive Medicine found that moderate aerobic activity done five times a week can cut the symptoms of mild to moderate depression in half. Another study found that weekly physical activity and exercise can help lessen occurrences of relapse in people recovering from depression.

The benefits of exercise on our physical body are well-known, but we often do not correlate exercise with having a similar benefit for our mental health. Even when not depressed, exercise can aid in relieving stress and help us to relax.

The type of workout might not be as important as how often you exercise and how consistently you continue to work out and be physically active. Starting to incorporate exercise into your lifestyle can be difficult for anyone. Here are some tips to make the transition as smooth and effective as possible:

- Slowly add exercise into your daily routine. Trying to change too much too fast can lead to frustration and discouragement. You might try to help your friend by inviting her to walk with you around the block once or twice a week. Start at a pace that is comfortable, and increase your speed or distance after a few days. You want your friend to enjoy walking and develop a desire to want to do it again.

- Help your friend find something she enjoys. If she does not like walking, help her find a physical activity she'll have fun doing. She might enjoy sports or swimming or cycling, which is great. The more someone enjoys an activity, the less of a chore it becomes and the more he or she is willing to stick with it.

- Be an exercise buddy or find another friend who can help. Although some people are motivated to exercise by themselves, having someone else there to share the experience can make it more enjoyable and help your friend stay accountable. This can help both of you, as lack of accountability is one of the main reasons people discontinue exercise programs or stop working out.

- Over time, begin to increase you and your friend's amount of activity. Start slow, and as you become more conditioned, modify your exercise routine. Add new exercise moves, find a more challenging walking course or continue to try new activities. This will not only help you avoid getting bored with your current routine, but also allow you to see progress by pushing yourself to do more.

Exercise can benefit both our physical and mental health, and even if we're not diagnosed with depression, we can all give our bodies this gift.

Always consult a physician before beginning an exercise program.

Quincy Medical Center Campus Smoke-Free

Joining a growing national trend, Quincy Medical Center this month became a smoke-free campus.

While smoking inside the hospital has been prohibited since 1989, smokers had been permitted to smoke in designated areas outside the hospital. The new policy extends the smoking ban to the hospital's grounds, including entryways and parking areas, and it applies to all persons; including employees, medical staff, patients, visitors, tenants, contractors and other guests.

"I believe this is the right course to take for our patients, our visitors, our employees and our community," says Gary W. Gibbons, MD, President and CEO. "Quincy Medical Center is dedicated to promoting the health and well-being of its staff, patients and visitors, and smoking goes against everything we do here. We understand that smokers who are affected by this change may need our support and our goal is to help them adapt."

QMC instituted the policy in recognition of its role as a model for health promotion in Quincy. The QMC leadership team cites the following statistics among the many reason for instituting the new policy:

Smoking is the leading cause of preventable illnesses and deaths in the United States; it is the major cause of hospital admissions and re-admissions.

Patients who smoke have twice the risk of wound infection than do non-smokers; are slower to heal after surgery or trauma; and have increased gastrointestinal, prenatal and orthopedic complications.

More than 440,000 people die in the U.S. each year from smoking-related diseases — more than from all alcohol, cocaine, crack, heroin, homicide, suicide, car crash, fire and AIDS deaths combined.

Smoking is leading cause of heart disease, cancer, stroke, and emphysema.

Second hand smoke is the third leading cause of preventable death in the U.S. after active smoking and alcohol use.

"I'm proud that Quincy Medical Center has taken a leadership role in drawing attention to this public health issue by proactively promoting the health of our community," said QMC Trustee Grace Murphy-McAuliffe.

Quincy Medical Center is a 196-bed acute care community-teaching hospital providing South Shore residents with comprehensive medical and surgical services. The medical center's Alliance for Quality with Boston Medical Center (BMC), formed in 1999, brings academic medicine to the community. At Quincy Medical Center, physicians from Boston Medical Center direct the departments of medicine, surgery, anesthesia, and emergency medicine. Additionally, physicians from BMC who are board-certified in a range of medical and surgical specialties work alongside community physicians to ensure the continuity of care. Quincy Medical Center is a leader in quality benchmarks both state and nationwide.

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century

by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

FULL DISCLOSURE

If you want to see just how effective your tooth-brushing and flossing efforts are at removing plaque, the dentist can perform a simple test. Plaque is the bacteria-laden sticky film that forms and clings to teeth. If it isn't removed on a daily basis, plaque reacts with sugars and starches to form acids that harm teeth and cause decay. To see how much plaque remains on your teeth after you have brushed, the dentist can use a product that stains the plaque on your teeth after it is swished around in the mouth and spit out. So-called "disclosing" tablets/rinses show areas that you might have missed with a brush and floss, enabling you to identify places that warrant extra attention.

We can give you tips on the proper way to brush and floss. Brushing and flossing correctly helps keep your teeth white and healthy. We'll also recommend a personalized oral home care program to meet your specific needs. We take the time to talk and answer any questions you may have. Please call us at 617-479-6220 to schedule an appointment. We can explain all procedures and what they will do for your smile, and we take the time to be gentle. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street, where our friendly staff and relaxing environment will put you at ease. We offer the services of anesthesia with a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Visit us on the web at www.quincydentist.com.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Did you ever put something in the wrong place and wonder later where it was? Of course you have. We all have. Sometimes when the thing shows up, we ask the silly question, "How did it get there?" We know the answer. It got there because we put it there.

Similar reasoning can apply, in a way, to religion. People put God in the wrong place. It may sound peculiar, but we can put God in the right place. It can even be said we can put God in His place, if we want to. And this is said without "smart alecky" semantics.

We know God is in Heaven. But He is elsewhere too. Instead of placing Him in that uncharted area "way up there," why don't we put Him where he can find Him all the time? We got to His house of worship on Sunday and then return to OUR home. Why not bring Him along home with us? When we put Him in our home, where most of us need Him most, we always know where He is...

$3,000 Grant To Jumpstart Programs At Wollaston Beach

The Friends of Wollaston Beach have received a $3,000 grant from Save the Harbor/Save the Bay and The Boston Foundation to jump start the beach programs for the 2008 season.

The Friends were one of 11 organizations in nine beach communities selected to share in Better Beaches Grants of more than $25,000 for use on the metropolitan area's public beaches.

The Friends plan to spend their share on Arts on the Shore, a beach party and an art festival featuring sidewalk chalk and sandcastle competitions.

"It is clear that the people of our region love their beaches," said Patricia Foley, president of Save the Harbor/Save the Bay.

"Programs like these are an important step in improving the quality of life in our region for residents and visi-

First Husband-Wife Recipients

Bob, Gloria Noble Honored As Sun 'Citizens Of The Year'

Robert and Gloria Noble, who have quietly volunteered their service to worthy community causes for more than a half-century, have been honored as The Quincy Sun Citizens of The Year.

They are the first husband and wife team-and the 24th and 25th recipients-of the award since it was established in 1985.

Nearly 200 guests-including four mayors, city, state and county officials, past recipients, family and friends attended the reception at the Quincy Sons of Italy Social Center.

A panel of judges selected the Nobles from among 44 nominees submitted by Quincy Sun readers.

In presenting the award, Publisher Henry Bosworth said: "If there's a worthy cause somewhere, chances are you will find Bob and Gloria there. Not just attending. But rolling up their sleeves to help make sure it is a success."

The inscription on the plaque reads:

"The Quincy Sun Citizen of The Year Award

"To Robert and Gloria Noble
"For Outstanding Community Service

"By giving freely of their time and talent for more than half a century to civic, charitable, veterans and other worthy causes.

"And, for being Bob and Gloria always on the go."

Koch Urges:

Catch Rain In Barrels To Help Water Supply

In an age of lasers, computers and space travel, Mayor Tom Koch is turning back the clock to simpler times in order to save a few dollars on the water bill.

He'd like folks in Quincy to catch raindrops in barrels to conserve the city water supply and reduce storm water runoff and he has a state grant covering the cost of 50 rain barrels to get the program started.

The grant from the Department of Environmental Protection will provide 50 barrels at a discounted price of $56.50 or 40 per cent off the retail price of $99. Subsequent barrels will go for $66.50 each.

The average home uses about 40 per cent of its metered water for outdoor occasions. One inch of rainfall on a 1,200-square-foot roof will yield more than 700 gallons of water.

A quarter inch runoff from an average roof will easily fill the barrel. Five storms a season equals 275 gallons of free water. This reduces stress on municipal water supplies and improves storm water management.

The rain barrels are made from 55 gallon blue plastic recycled containers. They have two brass spigots, one to connect a hose for watering; one for overflow.

A hose can be connected to the overflow spigot so that water can be directed away from the home. It even comes with a five-foot hose with a shutoff valve. Multiple barrels can be joined for additional capacity.

The top of the barrel does not come off so children or pets cannot get into the barrel. It has a six-inch diameter inlet opening covered with a screened louver to keep insects and dirt out.

Free Foreclosure Clinic At City Hall April 23

A free clinic addressing foreclosure problems will be held from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m., Wednesday, April 23, in Robert Foy, 3rd, Conference Room B at Quincy City Hall, 1305 Hancock St., Quincy.

Interested persons must register by calling Melissa Klezmer at Neighborhood Housing Services (NHS) at 617-770-2227, Ext. 24. Space is limited to the first 20 callers.

"The Quincy and Weymouth Fair Housing Committee are working as part of a consortium to address this issue head on," said Mayor Thomas Koch who, with Planning Director Dennis Harrington, announced plans for the clinic.

According to Koch and Harrington, the clinic is designed to offer information and leads for persons who are having trouble paying their mortgage or who expect their mortgage interest rate to increase.

Clinic participants must bring a copy of their most recent lender's statement. All participants will be offered an individual counseling sessions after the formal presentation on general issues.

The Quincy and Weymouth Fair Housing Committees are jointly sponsoring the event in conjunction with Neighborhood Housing Services.

Neighborhood Housing is a non-profit organization certified by the United States Department of Housing and Urban Development as an approved counseling agency.

MAYOR TOM KOCH, joined by former Mayors Frank McCauley, Walter Hannon and James Sheets, reads a proclamation he issued congratulating Bob and Gloria Noble as The Quincy Sun Citizens of The Year and proclaiming April 6 "Bob and Gloria Noble Day In Quincy."

Greene Commended For Service On Zoning Appeals Board

City councillors recently honored Attorney Jack Greene for his service on the Zoning Board of Appeals.

Ward 6 Councillor Brian McNamee presented the council's commendation to Greene after citing his quality work on the Board of Appeals which he noted required considerable volunteer time with no compensation.

Other councillors, including Ward 2's Daniel Raymondi, Ward 5's Douglas Gutro, and Council

JACK GREENE

President Jay Davis also cited Greene's contribution to the city.

Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin described Green's "practical, pragmatic and reasoned approach" to the board's cases.

Greene cited family obligations, including his new son, recently when he stepped down after four years on the board.

Zoning Board chairman is Martin Aikens with members, Michael Hanley, John Fagerlund, Stephen Harold, Robert Kachinsky and David Portesi.

At $98.9 Million

High School Building Cost Back On Budget

City officials and building contractors announced this week that the new Quincy High School building project is back on budget at a Guaranteed Maximum Price (GMP) of $98,993,615.

The GMP prepared by Gilbane Construction Company and dated March 26, provides a final estimate on defined costs.

Despite the good news, Gilbane's report contains nearly two dozen potential exclusions that could change the final figure.

Just two months ago on Feb. 11, the final construction estimates indicated that costs were nearly $1.4 million over the original budget.

"That shortfall no longer exists," James Anderson, Senior Project Manager for Tishman Construction Corp., told city councillors Monday.

Anderson's reported to the City Council Education Committee Monday on the budget, the possibility of a future job action by union workers, and the latest research on a controversial sewer line beneath the new building.

As for staying on budget, that was a joint effort, according to Chris Walker, Policy Director for Mayor Thomas Koch. Walker said the construction budget was tightened after "a lot of work by a lot of people."

The main savings occurred when Koch obtained clearance from the state to eliminate a sixty-foot section of buffer between the new school building and the old school building. That will save $1.3 million.

"We were going to have to tear down a section of the old high school," Gary Cuniff, Director of Public Buildings, said after the meeting, adding, "Primarily, we got good relief from the School Building Administration (SBA)."

The 1924 yellow brick Quincy High School building will remain in place after construction is completed in 2010. At this time, Walker said that there are no discussions regarding reuse of the structure which may be designated as administration offices, city offices or even a cultural center.

In determining the GMP, Cuniff explained that the contractors had reached "agreements with all the vendors to guarantee their price through the end of construction."

At this time, legal challenges to bid awards appear to have been resolved. City Solicitor James Timmins said Monday that the attorney general's office appears to have rejected bid challenges filed by an electrician and a masonry company.

Timmins said he is still waiting for written notice from the attorney general's office on the electrician's dispute and written notice from the Supreme Court on the masonry bid.

However, there could be a work slowdown as union members plan to protest the hiring of the non-union company for masonry work.

Enforcement Of School Guidelines Stepped Up

Phone messages to some Quincy High School parents outlining new enforcement of student behavior guidelines should not be interpreted as a change in policy, says Principal Frank Santoro.

"It's nothing new," he said. "The kids are starting to ignore the handbook and we're starting to enforce it. It's the same old rules."

One of the rules mentioned in the phone message, according to one parent, involved the wearing of hats in school. Another, the use of spring water bottles.

"There are no new rules," said School Committeeman David McCarthy. "They've been there since before my time. We don't have a dress code but we want the kids to look presentable."

Hearing Set For May 19

Raymondi Ordinance Aimed At Stolen Gold Meltdowns

By LAURA GRIFFIN

City Councillors Monday wrestled with a proposed ordinance which would expand current laws governing precious metal dealers who buy and sell second-hand jewelry and heirlooms.

The ordinance proposed by Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi is aimed at helping victims whose gold, silver, and platinum treasures are stolen and, subsequently, resold or melted down before police can identify the thief.

The discussion at the Ordinance Committee was the first review of Raymondi's proposal which is scheduled for a public hearing Monday, May 19 at 7:15 p.m.

Raymondi said police officers aided him in preparing the regulations..

DAN RAYMONDI

During Monday's debate, councillors attempted to balance victims' rights with the rights of the public and the rights of legitimate business owners, in contrast to dealers who work in tandem with thieves and fence stolen goods.

While councillors agreed to extend the current 14 day holding period to 30 days, they clashed on such details as publicizing the name and picture of each person selling such items, allowing any police office, at any time, to review the business' books, and the requirement for an open or transparent display of all second-hand items.

Councillors agreed with Ward 5 Councillor Douglas Gutro who said the extension of the holding period from 14 days to 30 days excluding weekends and holidays was "right on target" and "long overdue."

Raymondi said he would revise portions of his proposal before the public hearing but he stressed the need for a tough action now when gold and platinum prices are the highest in almost 30 years. "This is designed to make it as

Obama's 'Bitter' Comments Sadden, Outrage Sheets

By TOM HENSHAW

Former Mayor Jim Sheets, a Pennsylvanian by birth, was preparing for a trip back to the home of his childhood, Clarksville, a town of less than 5,000 people in the hard-scrabble coal mining country, when he got the word.

Folks like those who live in towns like Clarksville, said Barak Obama, the senator from Illinois who wants to be president, are "bitter, they cling to guns or religion or antipathy to people who aren't like them or anti-migrant sentiment . . . as a way to explain their frustrations."

"As a lifelong Democrat," said Sheets, "it was tragic to hear a candidate for the Presidency of the United States uttering such untrue, unkind and purely ignorant words demeaning not only working class people but also a way of life."

JAMES SHEETS

"He was describing me, my mother and dad, our neighbors and friends. He was describing people who are grateful for their way of life, people who are fiercely proud, patriotic Americans."

Sheets lived in the little Allegheny Mountain town in southwestern Pennsylvania until he was 18 years of age when he went away to school at Eastern Nazarene College in Wollaston. He visits his old hometown often.

"I look forward to min-

"No such antipathy was evident in my lifetime living there. I can remember miners striking for improved safety conditions in the mines. Dad was joined by his black brothers when they

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

• On April 19, 1775, at about 5 a.m., 700 British troops march into the Massachusetts town of Lexington to find 77 armed minutemen waiting for them. Suddenly, the "shot heard around the world" was fired from an undetermined gun. When the brief Battle of Lexington ended, eight Americans lay dead or dying and 10 others were wounded. The American Revolution had begun.

• On April 20, 1841, Edgar Allan Poe's short story "The Murders in the Rue Morgue" first appears in Graham's Lady's and Gentleman's Magazine. The tale is generally considered to be the first detective story.

• On April 14, 1912, just before midnight in the North Atlantic, the RMS Titanic hits an iceberg, rupturing five watertight compartments along her starboard side. Hours later the massive vessel sank, and more than 1,500 people died in the icy waters.

• On April 15, 1927, Douglas Fairbanks, Mary Pickford and Norma and Constance Talmadge become the first celebrities to leave their footprints in cement at Grauman's Chinese Theater. The future Hollywood landmark was still under construction at the time.

• On April 17, 1937, Daffy Duck makes his debut in the Warner Bros. short "Porky's Duck Hunt." In the 1920s, movie houses had started showing a short cartoon before feature presentations, but the form became more popular after sound was introduced in 1928.

• On April 16, 1947, a massive explosion occurs during the loading of fertilizer onto the freighter Grandcamp at a pier in Texas City, Texas, killing 600 people. The blast was heard 150 miles away and was so powerful that the ship's 3,000-pound anchor was found 2 miles away.

• On April 18, 1983, Joan Benoit wins her second Boston Marathon in the women's division with a time of 2:22:43. The inaugural Boston Marathon was run on April 19, 1897, and was a men-only event until 1972, when women were officially allowed to compete.

New Life For Republican Party

You might call it the rebirth of the Republican Party in Quincy.

A determined start, anyway.

The Republican City Committee had been drifting rudderless for eight years and virtually went out of business.

Now, new leadership has stepped forward to accept the challenge of breathing new life into the party at the grass-roots level.

The Republican Committee is now back in business with two energetic go-getters at the helm:

Jennifer McCauley Logue as chairman of the committee and Christine Cedrone Logan, Republican State Committeewoman who will serve as secretary.

Logue is the daughter of former Mayor Frank McCauley, the last Republican to hold municipal office in Quincy.

The first executive director of Discover Quincy, she ran for councillor at-large last year.

Logan is a former school committee member and now an attorney. As state committeewoman she is the only local Republican holder in elective office.

Logue says she is already encouraged by the response.

"I am pleasantly surprised," she says. "Since the announcement of the reorganization of the committee two weeks ago, I've been getting calls from people wanting to get involved."

"We hope to have local Republicans running for office," says Logan. "We have already had young people say they are interested in joining us. That's a good sign and an encouraging one."

Logan said the committee now has "some strong people and we feel that we can change things."

The old committee, without leadership, hit its lowest point in the Presidential Primaries in February.

Local Democrats elected 192 Ward Committee members. Republicans not, one.

There were no candidates for 180 Ward Committee seats on the Republican ballots. Even though there was room to elect the 180 on write-in ballots.

But none of the write-ins received the required minimum five votes. So, no Republicans were elected.

"As far as I am concerned it means there now is no Republican City Committee," said City Clerk Joseph Shea at the time.

SHEA

But now, Logue, Logan and other new officers and members of the new committee are determined to turn things around.

"We will be holding meetings in the next couple of weeks," says Logue.

For several years Democrats Senator Michael Morrissey and Reps. Bruce Ayers, Ron Mariano and Steve Tobin have run for re-election unopposed.

Could there be a Republican challenge or two this year?

"Right now we are focusing on reorganizing," says Logue. "If a Republican decides to run, we will be there to support him or her."

Lack of ballot competition is reducing voter turnouts, she notes.

"With people (Democrats) running unopposed each year, why get up on a rainy election day to go to the polls?" she asks.

"Our goal is to give voters a true choice. Everyone wins when there is a good contest. It forces candidates to get out there and state where they stand on issues and why."

The new committee members have their work cut out for them.

At last count there were only 5,875 registered Republicans to 24,713 Democrats and 23,875 unenrolled (independent).

"Maybe we can sway some of the unenrolled over to our side," says Logan optimistically.

Meanwhile nomination papers for the Sept. 16 state primaries are in circulation and some already filed at the City Election Department.

Nomination papers for the state primaries have been available for awhile-but not at City Hall.

For the first time, nomination papers cannot be picked up at city or town halls.

Candidates must obtain them at the office of Secretary of State William Galvin in the McCormack Building across from the State House. Or at his offices in Springfield or Worcester City Hall.

But the papers will be filed at City Hall as usual. Deadline is April 29 at 5 p.m.

Federal candidates' deadline is May 6 at 5 p.m.

Early local and county filers include: Congressman William Delahunt, Morrissey, Ayers, Mariano, County Commissioner John Gillis, Register of Probate Patrick McDermott, County Commissioner Francis O'Brien, County Treasurer Joseph Connolly.

All Democrats.

No local Republicans-so far.

But that's going to change. Logue, Logan and the committee are determined.

Ward 5 Social, Election Tonight

nual election of officers and neighborhood social tonight (Thursday) at 6 p.m. at the Beechwood Knoll School, 222 Fenno St.

The Ward 5 Citizen of the Year, Joanne Dondero, will be celebrated as will the winners of the High Five, Sandra Arabian, Gladys Petkun and Carol Wilson, and the Junior High Five, Brenna Morrissey, Patrick Morrissey and Jacqueline Devin.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS POSTCARD from the 1920's a view looking east on Huckins Avenue in Squantum. On the left is the four-room Squantum grammar school built in 1921. The school opened with 100 students and four teachers. This street was named for Captain James Huckins, who bought almost 90 acres of land here in 1854 and built an estate on the hill near today's Bellevue Avenue. His granddaughter, Lillie Titus, known as the grand lady of Squantum, later sold most of the property to land developers who laid out and sold almost 1,000 house lots in this part of Squantum in the beginning of the last century. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

Federal Funds Sought For Blighted Areas

By FRANK MCCAULEY

Councillor Alfred G. Helfrich is expected to introduce into the city council a resolve authorizing the city manager to apply for federal funds to finance the urban redevelopment of certain sections in Quincy.

The councillor pointed out that $164,000 of federal funds are available for Quincy under Title One of the 1949 federal housing law.

Helfrich said that the 1940 federal census indicated so called blighted areas in each of Quincy's six wards. With the assistance of federal funds he said, such areas may be cleared and the land made available for private development.

CITY OFFERS $60,000 FOR RAILROAD STATION

The City will offer the New Haven Railroad $60,000 for the Quincy Depot and the adjacent land as a result of the city council action.

It is expected that the New Haven will accept the city's offer, which is two thirds of the assessed valuation of the property involved.

City Manager William J. Deegan was authorized to make the offer by the unanimous vote of the councillors. New Haven representatives attending the council meeting are informing directors of the offer.

Under the terms of the verbal agreement, the city must maintain an area of at least 1200 square feet, a waiting room, ticket office and toilet facilities.

In the most disgusting opening day performance reeled off in years at Fenway Park, 31,822 paying customers watched the Red Sox fritter away a 9-0 lead and blow a 15-10 decision to the New York Yankees. Pageant Field Best Location For New Track Faxon Field is not back on track for the proposed track facility.

It is a marginal site with many issues including: Proximity to two major streets with heavy traffic, not centrally located, questionable soil stability, possible wetlands issues, unknown timeline due to site availability, and lack of city owned space for field events.

The track community in Quincy could have a new regulation track facility by next summer if Mayor Koch and the Parks Commissioner would place the approved and funded track proposal for Pageant Field out for bid immediately! Pageant Field is the best location for the only regulation track in the City of Quincy.

Mayor Koch needs to put his personal feelings on Pageant Field aside and do what is in the best interest of the track community and all residents of the city. Five years without a regulation track is unacceptable and is bordering on discrimination against the track athletes. All other athletic teams and sports have regulation fields to play on except the track athletes.

I strongly urge Mayor Koch to proceed with the construction of the approved track facility at Pageant Field immediately. This site and proposed facility has received all required approvals and funding from the Park and Recreation Board and the City Council.

Your immediate construction of the new track facility is required at Pageant Field.

Fundraiser For Samantha Hamel A Wonderful Event

The Hamel Family Committee would like to express their sincere thanks and gratitude to The Quincy Sun for your help promoting our recent fundraiser to benefit Samantha Hamel, a seven-year-old Quincy resident with Rasmussen's Encephalitis, at the Venezia Restaurant in Dorchester on Sunday, March 30th.

Those who attended the sold-out event were treated to a great meal, live band, and hilarious performances by four local comedians. Tommy Dunham coordinated the comedy show and brought the crowd back to the days of Mike the Winger and the Bargain Center.

Christine Hurley, voted one of America's funniest moms by Nickelodeon, provided lots of family related humor. Bobby Niles and Dave McDonough rounded out the lineup of comedians, all of which donated their time to entertain the crowd. This was a wonderful event with the Quincy community coming together, opening their hearts and wallets to help a family in need.

Samantha's parents, Ray and Chris, were speechless at the outpouring of generosity given to their family by those who put together and attended the event.

"There's just no possible way to express what this means to us," Ray said. "We received many donations from Quincy Sun readers who do not know the Hamel family. It was touching to read the letters and prayers that accompanied the donations, and those were most appreciated."

Chris Hamel said "The outpouring of love and emotional support the family is receiving is incredible."

Donations, payable to the Hamel Family Fund are still being accepted and can be mailed c/o Capt. Dale Freeman 262 Palmer St., Quincy, MA 02169.

It was an honor to coordinate this event and I want to thank the committee for all of their support and those that made a donation and/or attended the event. Please keep Samantha and her family in your thoughts and prayers and know that Quincy is a great community to live in and your neighbors are ones you can rely on.

A Far Cry, an energetic, young conductor-less string orchestra, will present a concert with guest violinist Roger Tapping Thursday, April 17, at 7 p.m. in the Cove Fine Arts Center at Eastern Nazarene College.

The concert, entitled "Words and the Night," will include music that explores connections between music and text and the beauty of the nocturnal world.

The performance will include selections of Mozart, Britten and Schoenberg as well as the 16th century masters Palestrina, Dowland and Gesualdo.

A Far Cry is a collectively-led, 16-piece string orchestra composed of young professional musicians drawn together to seek the freedom and flexibility of chamber music and the power and beauty of an orchestra.

Violinist Roger Tapping was a member of the Takacs Quartet for 10 years during which time they won three Gramophone Awards, a Grammy and three Japanese Record Academy Chamber Music Awards.

Tickets at $15 for general admission, $10 for seniors and $5 for students will be available at the door. The program is part of the ENC Musica Eclectica Concert Series.

Council Transfers $200,000 For Veterans' Needs

City Council has approved a $200,000 transfer from Free Cash to beef up the Veterans' Services account after hearing Veterans' Director Hank Bradley describe the soaring numbers and costs for the city's veterans. "There is nothing in our budget right now to make out the checks," Bradley. Told the council last week.

Bradley noted that the city receives a 75 percent reimbursement of veterans' expenditures from state and federal accounts. In Fiscal Year '07, the city received a $390,533 reimbursement of its $529,028 in expenditures for veterans.

The veterans' rolls are increasing each day, according to Bradley who said that the new clients represent veterans of both the Korean and Vietnam wars.

"This week, we are taking five new applications," said Bradley whose enrollment climbed 20 percent from 97 clients to 124 in the past year.

HANK BRADLEY

New enrollments are still coming in.

Bradley then outlined some of the veterans' needs ranging from burial costs, health insurance, and spousal benefits to the need for heating oil.

Last year's seven burials cost $2,000 each, according to Bradley who, also, noted the increase in fuel assistance costs.

"We have 20 clients we assist with heat. The cost ranged from $78 to $146 per month," reported Bradley. However, those costs will now more than double as the state has changed policy.

"In January, we received a directive from the State Office of Veterans' Services that each of these clients would now receive $250 per month for their heating costs," Bradley said.

Councillors agreed that the Veterans' Service account has been intentionally underfunded at budget time because the reimbursements are factored in before they are received.

In other to avoid these annual transfers, Councillor John Keenan suggested that the city set up a revolving fund for Veterans Services.

A revolving fund would allow reimbursements to be posted directly to Veterans Services. The funds are now credited to the General Fund.

"It may be a more prudent way to do it," said Keenan who asked that the city solicitor's office research the legality and feasibility of a revolving fund.

Raymondi Ordinance Aimed At Stolen Gold Meltdowns

difficult as possible," said Raymondi, adding later that "14 days is not sufficient time (for police) to do an investigation. Clearly, it's not working."

Raymondi cited a recent incident in which a dealer purchased stolen jewelry and had the items melted down within two weeks, just days before police caught up with the thief. He noted that unscrupulous dealers could count even weekend days in meeting the 14-day waiting period.

Councillors agreed with the importance of extending the holding period but balked at such details as publicizing a picture of the seller of each item on a web-site.

Councillor John Keenan questioned the privacy issues involved, noting that a "law-abiding citizen may not want a neighbor or relative to know they are having tough times."

Councillor Joseph Finn also challenged details of the proposal, calling them too broad.

The details of the current lengthy proposal would require a daily report to the police web site which must include a correct list and description of all items purchased that day as well as a photograph of each item and the seller.

The description must include weight, size, shape, color, length, and any distinguishing engraving or *mark

"In addition," the proposal states, "any police officer of the Quincy Police Department may, at any time, enter upon the shopkeeper's premises to ascertain how the business is being conducted...."

Raymondi's proposal would also require all items purchased by the dealer to be displayed publicly for the 30-days and any contested item would be placed on a "police hold."

formed their picket line. Regardless of color or ethnicity, men were treated equally in the mine.

"Obama's remarks are demeaning to a proud way of life and Americans who still love America and want only to have a job, works and raise their families."

Sheets recalled an incident during his visit to Clarksville last fall that he feels better describes the people of a small Pennsylvania town than all the oratory in Obama's quiver.

"When I was closing my coal-patch home, I needed to replace a broken window," he said. "It was Friday afternoon and I could not find a store that carried window glass. Finally I spoke by phone to the owner of a store about 15 miles away in the town of Waynesburg.

"He had the glass but he said he was closing for the day. I said I would drop by in the morning and pick up the glass. He said he would not be open since he was going on vacation for two weeks and the store would be closed.

"He knew I was calling from Clarksville so he said to me, 'I live in Mather, that is halfway between Clarksville and Waynesburg. Why don't I cut the glass and you can pick it up at my house.'

"When I stopped by and picked up the glass, I said, 'How much do I owe you?' and he said, 'Nothing. I am just glad I could help.' When I arrived home and opened the nicely wrapped pane of glass, I found not one but two pieces of glass.

"I never met him before and probably will never see him again."

"People in these small towns are just the opposite of what Barack Obama describes. They certainly are not bitter. They go to church as most Americans do because they love their God and want to raise their families with Christian values.

"If they have guns, it's because some still like to hunt in the mountains where in the past their fathers hunted because they needed to put food on the table. It has been a way of life for generations.

"Who are the people in these small towns?"

"Just visit the World War II Memorial in the center of Clarksville, where I grew up. Count the extraordinary number of men and women who served and the extraordinary number who never came home. Drive four miles to the little town of Mather, where more than 180 men died in a single mining explosion.

"Who are these people?"

"They are patriotic, hard working, courageous men and women, who love their country and the way of life it has provided them.

"Barak Obama doesn't understand these towns and their people because he doesn't understand America. Barak Obama aspires to become President of a country he doesn't even know."

Mayor Koch Thanks Good Shepherd Church

At a recent farewell event, Mayor Thomas Koch officially thanked Rev. Nathan Piphio and the Good Shepherd Lutheran Church for providing a temporary home for the Atlantic Neighborhood Center.

The Center's programs operated out of the Good Shepherd Church while a permanent location was renovated at the North Quincy branch of the Thomas Crane Public Library.

Koch presented Rev. Piphio with a plaque that read in part, "We (the City) express sincere gratitude for the cooperative efforts of the Good Shepherd Lutheran Church - a true community partner."

Rev. Piphio began serving the Good Shepherd Church soon after being ordained as a pastor of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America in September 2002. Since coming to Good Shepherd, Pastor Piphio has led neighborhood door knocking and outreach efforts, has worked to empower lay leadership and has held outreach bible studies on Wednesday nights at Panera Bread.

Upon accepting the plaque, Rev. Piphio noted the strong friendships that have formed between him, church members and the many folks that participate in the Center's programs.

"The Aviation History Trail begins in Bruce Ayers' backyard and winds around to Michael Morrissey's."

Future Still Uncertain For Beechwood Life Center

A week after Mayor Tom Koch swept the former Myles Standish School out from under the Beechwood Community Life Center, the future of the 27-year-old intergenerational center was still uncertain.

Koch met with Beechwood's board of directors Friday and Christopher Walker, Koch's policy director, described the meeting as "positive."

Sharron Beals, the executive director of Beechwood, agreed that the meeting went well but added, "We're working on our summer programs right now."

Koch informed Beechwood last week that the city wanted the 15,000 square foot building on 11.2 acres at 440 East Squantum St., as the site for a new city-run Senior Center.

Beechwood has occupied the city-owned Myles Standish School since 1994 with the proviso that the city could take repossession at any time. Koch asked for it back as of September, 2008.

Beechwood has until then to find a new place for its daycare and enrichment programs for youngsters, its senior center and its aviation history information center. Its funds are raised from private donations.

Correction

An April 10 story on the state legislators' report to City Council described the $15 million that legislators hope to apply for sewer rate relief.

These funds would be disbursed statewide and would not be designated strictly for Quincy.

Editor Robert Bosworth presented a framed copy of a special Quincy Sun Page One, telling of their selection, the names of the other 42 nominees and the panel that made the final selection. Copies of the Page One were presented to those attending.

Mayor Tom Koch, whose late father, Richard J. Koch, Sr. received The Sun Award posthumously in 1988, proclaimed the day as "Bob and Gloria Noble Day In Quincy."

He invited past mayors Walter Hannon, Frank McCauley and James Sheets to join him at the podium as he read the proclamation.

It cited the Nobles for "selflessly giving of their time and talents to their community in countless ways...and...continue to make our city a better place to call home."

State Senator Michael Morrissey, presenting the Nobles with a citation from himself and Governor Deval Patrick, noted, "Truly they are one of the community institutions...they are great people and it's a great choice."

Morrissey also presented Bob Noble with a State Seal Watch as a gift from the Quincy State House delegation.

Reps. Ron Mariano,

Bruce Ayers and Steve Tobin presented a joint citation congratulating and commending the Nobles.

Photos Pages 16, 17, 32

Mariano, in whose district the Nobles live, said: "They are truly what makes the city of Quincy a very special place to live."

"They are truly members of the Greatest Generation," said Ayers. "They have a great legacy together. Advocating for the values and principles they believe in. Volunteering their time, their energy and resources for the many charities they believe in. Their only motive is helping others with their kindness and generosity."

Councillor Daniel Raymondi in whose Ward 2 the Nobles live on South Street presented a citation on behalf of the entire city council, which read in part:

"For your long term commitment to the community and volunteerism in civic, charitable, veteran and many other worthy causes.

"You are two of Quincy's most respected citizens. You make a great team."

Raymondi and the other councillors also presented the Nobles with City of Quincy pins.

"Each one of them individually is worthy of this award," said Dist. Atty. William Keating in presenting a citation. "Each one of them could have the award by themselves but together it was really an unbeatable choice.

"They are an unbeatable couple in life, partners in life and partners with the Quincy community and all of us here."

Sheriff Michael Bellotti, presenting sheriff jackets along with a citation noted:

"They make such a difference in the city. Everywhere they go they are contributing and they are helping. Everywhere you go, they're there. They are Quincy."

Cathy Mella, presenting a citation from Congressman William Delahunt told the Nobles: "The incredible things you have done are an inspiration."

John Raeke, past commander of the George Bryan VFW Post of which Bob Noble is a member, presented them with a National VFW citation.

Two of their four children, Bob Noble, Jr. retired Quincy High School football coach and Alicia Gardner, former Ward 6 city councillor, expressed the sentiments of the family and the pride they have in their parents.

"They have truly lived by the motto, 'It's not what you say. It's what you do,'" Noble said.

"They are a shining example to the idea that age is just a number. That you are put on this earth for a reason, not simply to wait for the end.

"I am proud to say I am the son of Robert and Gloria Noble."

Gardner thanked those who nominated her parents and the selection panel.

"You revealed to us how others see our parents. We are so proud. So it should come as no surprise that as committed as they are to their civic duties, their commitment to their children, grandchildren and great grandchildren is unwavering.

"Through their words and actions they have taught each of us so much."

She thanked her father "for the lessons he has taught us of commitment to our families, to our community and to our country. Your fine example of love and strength is what this family has been built upon."

"My Mom, she is my best friend. Commitment to her family is her middle name. All of her children, grandchildren and now her great grandchildren have learned so much by her words, actions and deeds."

Also attending were their two other daughters, Nancy Noble McLaughlin of Harwich, director of development, International Fund For Animal Welfare (KFAW) and Andrea White of Quincy, active member of the Quincy Parents Advisory Council.

Libbie Payne, a long-time friend, had this tribute:

"Gloria and Bob Noble represent the heart and spirit of Quincy. They epitomize what is best about Quincy.

"Quietly and consistently, without fuss or fanfare, they go about doing what needs to be done...little kindness to make another's life easier. They just do it."

The Nobles came to Quincy from Dorchester in 1952 and have been community active since.

Their community service has been both as a team and as individuals-most of it together.

Together they served on the Quincy Christmas Festival Committee for a combined 60 years, Quincy First Night Committee 10 years each and together have worked to help veterans, especially former prisoners of war and their families.

Bob, himself, was a POW in World War II, taken prisoner by the Germans in December 1944 while serving with the 87th Infantry Division.

He has never forgotten his fellow prisoners of war.

He has served twice as commander of the American

Ex-Prisoners of War, Department of Massachusetts and is present chaplain. He has also served as Southeastern Massachusetts Chapter commander and is now sergeant-at-arms.

He has been an organizer and master of ceremonies of "Former Prisoners of War Recognition Day" events for the last eight years.

Gloria has been beside him in veterans' causes. She, too, has served as commander of Southeastern Chapter, American Ex-Prisoners of War.

She is a member of the Wollaston Mothers Club, the Furnace Brook School PTO, a member and former director of DOVE. She has served on the board of directors of the Good Shepherd Maria Droste Agency and now on it's fundraising committee. She is a board member of the Friends of the Thomas Crane Public Library and a member of the Quincy Historical Society.

Bob is a member of the Morrisette Legion Post, the Bryan VFW Post and the Quincy Cavanagh DAV Chapter.

Both are politically active as members of the World War II Democratic City Committee. Gloria is past president of the South Shore Women's Political Caucus.

A husband and wife community active team.

Maggie Will Top Woodward Science Fair Winner For Third Time

By LAURA GRIFFIN

Squantum's Maggie Will won the Grand Prize at the Woodward School Science Fair for the third consecutive year with her project, "Some Like It Hot; Coral Does Not."

Maggie, a ninth grader, demonstrated the deadly danger of a warming earth for living species in the temperate zone, proving that Polar bears in the Arctic's melting snow are not the only beings endangered by a heated climate.

Through her project, Maggie confirmed that when the ocean waters warm up by just two degrees, coral dies as do pretty little fish called the "Damsel Fish."

Maggie's success this year is the first time in memory that a student has topped honors three years in a row, according to Carol Andrews, principal of the Woodward School which has presented science fairs for over half a century.

In Grade 8, Maggie won with "Batter Up," a study of the physics of cheating in baseball and, in Grade 7, a study of Siamese Fighting Fish.

This year, Maggie again faced plenty of top-notch competition as her schoolmates tackled questions on environmental, health and social issues.

The fair's judges and nearly 300 visitors viewed projects prepared by 77 students in Grades 6 through 10. The young women chose projects affecting their lives, their environment and their health, ranging from a study of taste buds, to an examination of eyewitness memory and a study of dangerous driving.

Projects included Phoebe Walsh's study of peanut allergies, Eva Kravette's analysis of acid rain. Samantha Smith's study of smoking and Lindsey Michetti's research on bacterial soap.

And what about snow?

"If snow is pure water, it wouldn't have shape," concluded Katrina Eckbloom who provided all the details on the composition of snowflakes.

Social issues also concerned the young women as another Squantum resident Kristen Bimmler tested the effects of the high energy drinks like Red Bull on classmates by testing their blood pressure and reactions. Sixth grader Feenish Mulkerri analyzed the IQ's of blondes and brunettes, asking whether blondes are really "ditsy" and deserve their reputation as not so bright.

"I am a blonde and people think blondes are ditsy," wrote Feenish in outlining her project's goal. She herself has excellent grades.

Feenish administered tests to her blonde, brunette and raven-haired classmates. She dispelled the notion that blondes aren't smart and concluded that her blonde subjects were actually smarter than their dark haired counterparts.

Maggie's counterpart in the Lower School, Julia Butts of Braintree, won that grand prize for her project entitled "Ready... Set... Sit?" while other lower school students studied desalinization, fingerprints, wind turbines and hydroponics.

Judges awarded prizes to 18 students in addition to Maggie and Julia. They are Grade 6, 1st prize: Veronica Frank, Weymouth, 2nd prize: Bridget Higgins, Randolph, 3rd prize, Taylor-Ann Greenwood, Quincy, and Honorable Mention, Emily Carvalho, Dorchester.

Grade 7, 1st prize: Niamh O'Connor, Quincy, 2nd prize, Alexandra Baylis, Quincy, 3rd prize, Rachel

Koch Urges Involvement In Cleaner, Greener

Mayor Thomas Koch urges neighborhood residents to continue to submit clean-up sites for this year's Cleaner, Greener Quincy Day scheduled for Saturday, May 3.

"We have so many neighborhood groups who participate year-in and year-out, and we want to encourage even more participation this year," Koch said. "Cleaner, Greener is a great day to show the pride we share for Quincy."

Volunteers fan out across the city to clean up beaches, parks, playgrounds, and neighborhoods on the annual clean-up day, which will run from 9 a.m. until noon. To designate a clean-up site or to volunteer, residents should call the Quincy Park Department at 617-376-1251 or email jconso@ci.quincy.ma.us.

The Park Department will also support the cleanup effort by providing the necessary tools including rakes, brooms, bags, gloves and other equipment. In addition the Department of Public Works and Allied Waste, who had dedicated trucks and manpower to assist with the cleanup efforts, will be on hand to haul refuse and other debris collected throughout the day.

Following the cleanup, Mayor Koch will host an appreciation cookout where T-shirts will be distributed to all volunteers at the Park & Recreation Complex, One Merrymount Parkway, at 12:30 p.m.

Rush Hour Car Chase Driver To Face Court

A Quincy man led police on a wild car chase through rush hour traffic from Squantum to South Boston, injuring two Quincy policemen, Monday night, an incident that started when he ran a stop sign.

John Sloane, 46, of 18 Fensmere Ave., Quincy, also was injured in the melee with officers and was held in Boston Medical Center for arraignment yesterday (Wednesday) in Quincy District Court.

Officers Robert Curtis and James Flaherty were injured during the chase that ended on I-95 when State Police deflated Sloane's tires at Columbia Road. The two officers were treated and released from Boston Medical Center.

The chase started about 6 p.m. at Huckins Avenue and East Squantum Street when Sloane drove through a stop sign and Curtis gave chase in his cruiser, crossing the Neponset River Bridge onto I-95.

Sloane rammed Curtis' cruiser twice before State Police stopped him with a tire deflating device. He managed to get the car going again, striking Flaherty before police overpowered him.

Rush hour traffic on I-95 was disrupted for some two hours while the chase and capture were going on.

Koch Urges Involvement In Cleaner, Greener

Mayor Thomas Koch urges neighborhood residents to continue to submit clean-up sites for this year's Cleaner, Greener Quincy Day scheduled for Saturday, May 3.

"We have so many neighborhood groups who participate year-in and year-out, and we want to encourage even more participation this year," Koch said. "Cleaner, Greener is a great day to show the pride we share for Quincy."

Volunteers fan out across the city to clean up beaches, parks, playgrounds, and neighborhoods on the annual clean-up day, which will run from 9 a.m. until noon. To designate a clean-up site or to volunteer, residents should call the Quincy Park Department at 617-376-1251 or email jconso@ci.quincy.ma.us.

The Park Department will also support the cleanup effort by providing the necessary tools including rakes, brooms, bags, gloves and other equipment. In addition the Department of Public Works and Allied Waste, who had dedicated trucks and manpower to assist with the cleanup efforts, will be on hand to haul refuse and other debris collected throughout the day.

Following the cleanup, Mayor Koch will host an appreciation cookout where T-shirts will be distributed to all volunteers at the Park & Recreation Complex, One Merrymount Parkway, at 12:30 p.m.

Rush Hour Car Chase Driver To Face Court

A Quincy man led police on a wild car chase through rush hour traffic from Squantum to South Boston, injuring two Quincy policemen, Monday night, an incident that started when he ran a stop sign.

John Sloane, 46, of 18 Fensmere Ave., Quincy, also was injured in the melee with officers and was held in Boston Medical Center for arraignment yesterday (Wednesday) in Quincy District Court.

Officers Robert Curtis and James Flaherty were injured during the chase that ended on I-95 when State Police deflated Sloane's tires at Columbia Road. The two officers were treated and released from Boston Medical Center.

The chase started about 6 p.m. at Huckins Avenue and East Squantum Street when Sloane drove through a stop sign and Curtis gave chase in his cruiser, crossing the Neponset River Bridge onto I-95.

Sloane rammed Curtis' cruiser twice before State Police stopped him with a tire deflating device. He managed to get the car going again, striking Flaherty before police overpowered him.

Rush hour traffic on I-95 was disrupted for some two hours while the chase and capture were going on.

Bob's And Gloria's Remarks

Bob and Gloria Noble, in accepting The Quincy Sun Citizen of The Year Award, had these remarks in part:

BOB: "Thank you, Quincy Sun, for sponsoring this event that has recognized the activities of so many worthy recipients.

"We are deeply honored to be added to this prestigious list.

"We also wish to thank those that nominated us and the committee that selected us from all the candidates.

"Gloria and I arrived in the Montclair section of Quincy from Dorchester 56 years ago when the city was more Republican than Democrat.

"Like most parents we became active in the community through our children-school PTOs, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, neighborhood associations.

"Gloria and I have always been active in supporting candidates for public office. Democrats, naturally.

"It has always been known that if you got one of us, you got both. Although the first 30 years I was known as Gloria's husband."

Bob paid tribute to the accomplishments of their four children, Robert Noble, Jr., Alicia Gardner, Nancy Noble McLaughlin and Andrea White, and introduced other members of the family.

Reception On Ch. 8

The reception for Bob and Gloria Noble, Quincy Sun Citizens of The Year Award recipients can be seen on Quincy Access Television's Channel 8.

The reception held at the Quincy Sons of Italy Social Center, will be shown Wednesday, (April 16) at 7:30 p.m. and Friday, (April 18) at 7 p.m.

GLORIA: "We are grateful for the people and friends who have become such an important part of our lives, many of whom are here today.

"This honor could not have been possible without your help-I mean that sincerely.

"When you go out and you meet and work with people, sometimes you have them as friends for the rest of your life. That's what happened to me, working on different programs-meeting people, some still my friends.

"We have been blessed with many, many friends over the years. Sadly, there are several no longer with us.

"Such as Pat and Jack Toland, Joyce Baker, Paul Harold, Agnes Trillcott, Anne Kane, Rabbi Jacob Mann, Ray Buckley."

Gloria recalled joining Joyce Baker as she was forming the South Shore Women's Political Caucus.

"Its purpose was to encourage women to be more politically informed and perhaps run for office. Pat Toland became our first candidate.

"Partly because of this we have more women in political life than we had before, including my own daughter (Alicia Gardner).

"Thank you, so much, for selecting us, the first couple, to The Quincy Sun's 'Citizen of The Year.'"

Dollars and sense

Bracing for Tough Times

Recession, depression, downturn in the market — no matter what it's called, there's less money going around. Taking the right steps now can help you get through what might be a bumpy time.

If you've been considering a job change, perhaps to a middle-management slot in the same or another company, give it long thought before you accept a position. "Last hired, first fired" could apply if your new company downsizes, and middle managers are most vulnerable. Meanwhile, be indispensable at the job you do have.

Develop multiple sources of income. If you have a marketable mini-skill or hobby (small engine or appliance repair, sewing, home maintenance) that allows others to fix what they have rather than buying new, consider starting a part-time business. Invest in a few ads to promote your services and increase your presence in local groups. The more you're known in places like church or social or service groups, the more opportunities you'll have to spread the word and to hear what others are able to provide.

Set up a trade system with likeminded others. If you can fix a computer, but your neighbor is good with oil changes or alterations, you both can benefit.

Do it yourself where possible. If your local community college or chain hardware store offers classes in home repair, take advantage of those that will allow you to avoid the high cost of repairs.

Sign up on Freecycle (www.freecycle.org), a site that promotes the reuse of goods.

Don't take on any new debt. When magazine subscriptions expire, don't renew. Get out of book clubs, gym memberships (unless it causes a penalty fee) and anything that involves an automatic expense each month.

Minimize the number of automatic bill-paying deductions you have coming out of your checking account. Write checks each month instead, staying more in control of your money.

Take care of maintenance now for anything from dental work to roof repair to forestall big expenses down the road.

Consider unemployment insurance to cover your mortgage.

Imagine that your income is cut off tomorrow. Calculate how long you would be able to survive and pay your bills on the money you have now. Consider what a dollar means to you today versus what it might mean tomorrow.

Bank Of Canton To Participate In Expanded Mortgage Relief Fund

Bank of Canton is increasing its proactive efforts to assist homeowners in avoiding foreclosure.

George DeMello, senior vice president of Residential Lending for Bank of Canton, announces the bank has joined as a participant in the Massachusetts Bankers Association and Federal Reserve Bank of Boston's Mortgage Relief Fund Program.

The Mortgage Relief Fund was started by five regional banks in conjunction with the Boston Fed to assist borrowers facing rate adjustments and payment increases to avoid foreclosure. According to a survey released by the Warren Group, the number of foreclosure deeds recorded statewide more than doubled in February 2008 compared to a year earlier. To help combat this rising problem, the Massachusetts Bankers Association has expanded the Mortgage Relief Fund to include community banks throughout the Commonwealth.

Bank of Canton, as part of its participation in the Mortgage Relief Fund, has agreed to make available a pre-determined amount of money that can be used by qualified borrowers to refinance their homes through a variety of mortgage products, DeMello said.

"Bank of Canton looks forward to actively participating in this program and helping our customers refinance at a more affordable rate," DeMello said. "We offer a wide variety of mortgage programs, and we work with our customers to find the one that best fit their needs."

For more information or to determine eligibility for the Mortgage Relief Fund, contact the Bank of Canton at 888-828-1690.

Bank of Canton has branches in Brookline, Canton, Quincy, Randolph and Hyannis, and a Mortgage Center in Auburn, and lends throughout Massachusetts.

Cleaning Storm Window and Door Hardware

Q. I just switched out my storm windows for screens, and now I need to clean the grime — dirt, old paint and so on — from the nooks and crannies of those storm windows. It's a pain. Do you have a faster way to clean this stuff? — A Reader, via e-mail

A. Cleaning handles, hinges and the grooves inside storm windows is a real pain at any time. But cleaning and storing them properly each spring will ensure smooth-functioning storm windows that last for many years.

One way to ease the amount of work involved is to create your own soaking and cleaning solution for storm windows (and any grimy window or door hardware that needs it).

First, remove hinges, screws and handles from the storm windows. Place the windows themselves in an open area where you can spray water on them.

Fill an old saucepan with about a quart of water and add four tablespoons of baking soda. Heat the water to a simmer and make sure the baking soda has dissolved fully. Place all the small hardware into the saucepan and continue simmering for 20 minutes or so. Remove the hardware using a slotted spoon or mesh scoop, let cool and scrub with steel wool.

Let the reserved water-baking soda mixture cool until you can touch it, then take the saucepan out to where the storm windows are waiting. Lay them out on a clean, dry surface (or even on an old tarp). Ladle the mixture over the grooved sides and let sit for a few minutes; then scrub with steel wool or a wire brush and rinse with clear water (for a faster rinse, spray them down with the garden hose). Stand upright to dry, reattach the hardware and store in a safe place until next fall.

Send questions or home-repair tips to homeguir2000@hotmail.com, or write This Is a Hammer, c/o King Features Weekly Service, P.O. Box 536475, Orlando, FL 32853-6475.

The Active Consumer: Cutting Grocery Costs

(NAPS) — BJ's Wholesale Club, with 177 clubs along the eastern U.S., offers these tips for shopping wholesale clubs:

- When you comparison-shop, make sure you are looking at the same item and taking into consideration differences in size and amount. Check the unit pricing—it's the easiest way to make a comparison. Multipacks and larger sizes are designed to offer valuable savings.

- Shop in a store that offers both quality (bulk pricing) and quality (leading brands). Wholesale clubs should offer quality selections such as USDA choice meats and organic items.

- Develop a list to help you focus more on needs and less on impulse buys.

- Traveling to several locations to shop can cost you plenty in gas and increase time spent on errands. Instead, look to warehouse clubs for everything under one roof, including groceries, gifts and seasonal products.

- Some clubs offer restaurants-branded items including Legal Sea Foods Clam Chowder, Panera Bread Company Broccoli Cheddar Soup and Chili's Chicken Fajita Kit.

- Look for retailers that offer an assortment of diaper brands and sizes, and that stocks other baby products such as detergents, formulas and accessories.

- Whether it's shrimp, fresh-baked cookies, prepared foods, frozen organic fruits, shampoo, vitamins or more, a good wholesale club offers high-quality house brand items at savings comparable to brand-name items.

- Shoppers can log on to BJ's.com and view available manufacturer's rebates, submit it for redemption or inquire about a previously submitted rebate. Additionally, the club is the only wholesaler that accepts all manufacturers' coupons and all major credit cards, in addition to checks, cash and debit cards, while offering more than 7,000 items—many competitors offer just 4,000 items.

A Vermont native, Dr. Berry earned his Doctorate of Medical at the University of Vermont, where he also spent his undergraduate years. Dr. Berry was named to the UVM Athletic Hall of Fame for Track and Field. He completed an orthopedic internship at New England Deaconess Hospital, which solidified his passion for the field of orthopedic surgery.

Milton Hospital's family atmosphere and dedication to growth has kept him here his entire career. "The hospital is always improving," he said. "The services we can provide here are similar

A father of 10 children, Dr. Berry and his wife Carol currently serve together as leaders of the Roxbury Latin Parent Organization. He also served as a team physician at Curry College for many years.

The Lira Family Award for Physician Excellence at Milton Hospital was established by the late Hugo "Baron" Lira in his last will and testament. He asked that the Parkway Church, of which he was a dedicated member, use a portion of his estate to annually recognize an outstanding Milton Hospital physician, and asked that the fund be memorialized in the name of the Lira family. "The Baron" built a strong relationship with hospital employees and medical staff members by contributing over 6,000 hours of volunteer work before his death in 1992.

Surgeons (ACFAS) wants men to know about five foot problems they should never ignore:

1. Heel pain is often caused by tissue inflammation, but can also result from a broken bone, a tight Achilles tendon, a pinched nerve or other problem. A qualified physician will know how to diagnose and treat the true cause of heel pain.

2. Ankle sprains always, always, always require a prompt visit to the doctor. Men who skip out on medical care are more likely to suffer repeated ankle sprains and then develop chronic ankle instability.

3. Big-toe stiffness and pain develop slowly over time, as cartilage in the big-toe joint wears down. This eventually leads to arthritis. The sooner this is diagnosed, the easier it is to treat.

4. Achilles tendonitis usually develops from a sudden increase in physical activity, such as when men play weekend sports. Chances of an Achilles tendon rupture can be reduced by treatment of the symptoms of Achilles tendonitis: pain and tenderness on the back of the foot or heel.

5. Ingrown toenails can pierce the skin, open the door for bacteria to enter the body, and convince some men to perform dangerous "bathroom surgery." A doctor can perform a quick procedure that will end the pain and permanently cure an ingrown toenail.

Red Hot Raiders 4-0 In League Play

By SEAN BRENNAN

This season there is a new softball powerhouse in the Atlantic Coast League. The North Quincy Red Raiders, at 4-0 in league play, are off to a great start in the ultra-competitive ACL and don't expect things to cool down any time soon.

The Raiders (5-0, 4-0 in the ACL) recently wrapped up a 4-0 week with wins over Plymouth South (7-2, non-league game), Nauset (8-5 win), Whitman-Hanson (5-1 win) and Falmouth (10-1 win).

"We are off to a great start in league play," said NQ head coach Michael Connor. "At 4-0 in the league we are heading in the right direction in regards to one of our season goals, winning a league championship for the first time in the program's history."

"This is a very special group of girls and every game we have played and will play this season, they all expect to go out and win. This winning approach helped us beat all those teams last week and should bode well for us moving forward."

The Raiders finished off their perfect week with an impressive 10-1 win over Falmouth last Friday afternoon at Mitchell/McCoy Field in Quincy.

Senior captain Paige Bonanni went the distance on the mound for the win. Bonanni allowed just five hits and the one run.

Junior third baseman Kathleen Lynch (3-for-4, two runs scored) and senior outfielder Simone Leary (2-for-4, two runs scored) led the offensive attack for North.

The win over league foe Falmouth was a nice way to cap off the week, but the Raiders picked up their biggest victory of the season the game before with a 5-1 decision over perennial ACL power Whitman-Hanson.

The Panthers have had North's number over the years, and after three innings of play last Thursday, W-H held a slim 1-0 lead, but in the top of the fifth inning, the Raiders defense helped change the momentum of the game.

The Panthers opened the inning with a leadoff double, but Bonanni, playing at second base, made a circus catch over her left shoulder and doubled off the runner at second to help North escape any further damage. The defensive gem seemed to get the Raider bench fired up as the team came to the plate in the bottom of the frame and put W-H to bed.

With the score tied at 1-1, the Raiders loaded the bases for senior captain Rebecca Goreham (2-for-3, three RBI) and she delivered with a bases clearing double to left that put North up 4-1. Sophomore Jessica Ainsley (1-for-3, RBI) finished off the five-run fifth by driving in Goreham with a RBI single.

Junior pitcher Brittany Folkins went the distance for the win.

"This was a huge win," Connor said. "Whitman-Hanson is always at the top of the league standings and have had our number over the years. They are going to be one of the teams we will be competing with all season for the league title and this was the first time in many years that a North Quincy team has beaten a Whitman-Hanson team."

"Folkins stepped up and pitched a great game for us and the defensive play by Bonanni in the fifth was a huge boost for the team."

Goreham's hit was the key offensive play. It was a solid performance from the whole team."

The Raiders earned their second win of last week with a come-from-behind 8-5 victory of ACL opponent Nauset High School.

Junior Catherine O'Connell finished the game with four hits, two runs scored and two RBI to help North rally back from a 5-2 deficit in the sixth inning.

"This was a strange game for our team," added Connor. "We seemed to have three base runners every inning but we couldn't get that hit to drive them in until the sixth inning. But a good sign for me was that when we were down 5-2, the whole team was saying that they could come back and would come back. And that is exactly what they did."

"These girls just know what it takes to win and that attitude should help us as the season moves forward."

The Raiders played Tuesday afternoon against Marshfield High School and will be playing a non-league game versus Archbishop Williams HS this Friday at home (4 p.m. start).

Over the school vacation week, North Quincy will be hosting its annual NQ Softball Tournament on Tuesday and Wednesday (April 22 & 23) at Mitchell/McCoy Field. The Raiders will play Weymouth HS at 10 a.m. on Tuesday followed by Winthrop and Scituate immediately following the first game.

On Wednesday, the consolation game will be played at 10 a.m. and the championship game at 12 Noon.

The Central Middle School girls' basketball team recently captured their fourth consecutive City Championship with a 43-23 victory over Sterling Middle School on March 20 at Broad Meadows Middle School.

Central entered the playoffs with a 5-1 regular season record and in the semifinals, the girls defeated Atlantic Middle School 35-20 to advance to the finals. Sara Ryan, a seventh grader playing the guard position, led Central with nine points against Atlantic. Eighth grade center Kiley McDonald chipped in with eight points.

As Central headed into the championship game, they were looking to avenge their only defeat of the season, a one-point loss to Sterling.

During the first half, the Rams (Central) pressured the Eagles (Sterling) with a full court 2-2-1 defense. At the halftime break, the Rams held a 19-12 lead.

In the second half, Ryan took control of the game and put Sterling's championship dreams to bed. Ryan scored 20 points to help lead Central to their fourth straight city title. Eighth grader Olivia Umoren (forward) scored seven points and dominated the glass.

McDonald played another great game and eighth grader Courtney Timmins and Julia Murphy along with seventh graders Liz Kelly and Callie Cabral led a solid defensive team effort.

Presidents Defeat Nauset, Silver Lake

By SEAN BRENNAN

The Quincy Presidents' baseball team just finished a successful stretch of games. The team went 2-0 last week by beating Silver Lake Regional 5-3 in a non-league game and knocking off Atlantic Coast League opponent Nauset 7-2.

In the game against Nauset last Friday, Quincy received a solid pitching performance from senior standout Mike LeBel (complete game, 12 strikeouts). LeBel went the distance to earn his first win of the year and he was backed by a potent offensive attack. The Presidents finished the game with twelve hits to go along with the seven runs the team scored.

"We came alive with the bats against Nauset and LeBel pitched a great game," said Quincy head coach Mike Draicchio. "The combination of great pitching and timely hitting helped us earn this win."

The Presidents got the scoring going with a six-run fourth inning. Sophomore Lance Peterson started the fourth by reaching base via a hit-by-a-pitch. Andrew Papile followed with a single and sophomore Leory Wallace knocked both in with a two-run double.

After seniors Ted Walsh singled and Joe Reggianinni reached on an error to load the bases, LeBel drove all three in with a double to put Quincy up 5-0. Senior Rick Salvucci finished the scoring with a RBI double to plate LeBel.

Nauset did come back to score their only two runs of the game in the bottom of the sixth, but that would be all the runs they would score the rest of the way.

The Presidents scored the final run in the top of the seventh inning. Sophomore Kevin Keith singled; Papile sacrificed him to second and Dave Griffin drove in Keith with a RBI single.

"It was a good win," added Draicchio. "We have a lot of kids stepping up and playing well. Being able to play some of these kids at different positions on the field is allowing us to get everybody involved in games and that can only be a good thing moving forward."

In the non-league game against Silver Lake, the Presidents received another strong pitching performance. This time it was from Salvucci. Salvucci went the distance, allowing four hits and striking out nine batters.

"This was a fun game to play in," said Draicchio. "It was gutsy performance from the entire team and especially Ricky. He didn't want to come out of the game. He told me that he wanted to finish what he had started and that is what he did."

Quincy trailed 1-0 entering the bottom of the fourth inning, but the offense came through once again.

Papile got the frame started with a single; Griffin and Walsh reached base on hit-by-pitches and Reggianinni walked to drive in the tying run.

LeBel continued his torrid start at the plate by singling in Griffin and Walsh to put Quincy up 3-1 after four innings.

After Silver Lake tied the game an inning later, the Presidents scored twice in the sixth to put the game away. Reggianinni started the inning with a walk and LeBel followed that with a double that drove in the winning run. Salvucci singled to score LeBel and the Presidents went up 5-3. Salvucci closed the game with a 1-2-3 seventh inning.

"LeBel and Salvucci, our three and four hitters, are hot," said Draicchio. "With those two hitting and pitching as well as they are, the entire team is clicking and the results are wins. It was a good week for the team and we are looking forward to continued success this season."

The Presidents played Tuesday night versus Plymouth North and the team is scheduled to play Whitman-Hanson today (April 17) at Adams Field. Game time is 4 p.m.

Correction: Last week's Quincy Presidents baseball preview noted that the team had made the Division II tournament four out of the last five seasons. Quincy plays in the Division I state tournament.

Raiders Record Stands At 1-2

The North Quincy Red Raiders dropped two games last week and the teams now have a record of 1-2.

Last Friday, the Raiders traveled down to the Cape to play against Falmouth High School. North Quincy ran into some tough pitching and lost the game 5-1.

The story of the game for the Raiders and their downfall was the lack of timely hitting. North showed solid patience at the plate, drawing ten walks, but the team was unable to get that one big hit to break the game open.

On a positive note, the team showed tremendous improvement in its pitching and defense, according to head coach John Fidalgo. Defensively the team had no errors and had several outstanding plays to get out of further damage.

Matt Jay, pitching in his first varsity game, allowed four runs in the first inning before shutting Falmouth down over the next four innings. Joe Edgerly continued to be perfect out of the bullpen allowing no runs in an inning of relief.

John Ainsley collected the only RBI on a sacrifice fly in the seventh inning.

The Raiders started freshman Colin Ryan at second base against Falmouth. Brought up to steady the middle infield defensively, Ryan made several key plays in the field.

Earlier last week, North played an Atlantic Coast League game against Whitman-Hanson. The Raiders lost in extra innings 11-10.

North forced extra frames by storming back from an 8-1 deficit but couldn't hold on for the win. But, despite the loss, the team pounded out 17 hits. Leading the way offensively were Ryan Louis (four hits), Dan Richards (three hits), and John Ainsley (three hits). Sophomores Sean Harrington and Brian Donaghey contributed in a big way at the plate, both collecting their first varsity hits.

On the mound Keith Morreale pitched well through four innings. In relief, Joe Edgerly was solid once again coming out of the bullpen and pitching well in the crucial sixth inning.

The Raiders played Tuesday night (4/15) against Marshfield High School. Senior standout Mike Horgan was scheduled to make his first start of the spring.

North will play Plymouth North today (4/17) on the road.

Notes: Edgerly has not allowed a run in three relief appearances this season... The Raiders have collected 37 walks over five games and have a team on base percentage of .456... The team, as a whole, is hitting .314... The Raiders played five sophomores against W-H and each of them collected hits... The 17 hits against W-H were the most this season for a single game.

A Job Well Done

On Monday, April 7, Officer Terence Hack was dispatched to 481 Quincy Ave. on a report of a "Breaking and Entering into a Motor Vehicle in progress." The caller/victim stated that he and a co-worker were chasing the suspect on Quincy Avenue towards Braintree.

When Officer Hack arrived on scene, he spoke with the victim who said, "A woman just broke into my vehicle and ran up Quincy Ave." A description was sent over the radio for other responding units as well as the Braintree Police Department. Officer Steve Cleary was searching the area when he observed a female matching the description running behind D' Angelo's Sub Shop on Quincy Avenue and then to Shaw Street in Braintree. The Officers were able to stop the suspect at the intersection of Shaw Street and Hayward Street in Braintree. Dispatch informed Braintree Police and their Officers responded too.

LT. DAN MINTON

The suspect, trying to catch her breath, wanted to know why she was being stopped. When told, the suspect said, "I was just sitting in the car." She then declared, "I'm pregnant and I'm having a miscarriage right now! I'm bleeding everywhere and I can barely stand up." Although the Officers could not see any indication that she was bleeding, the Braintree police officers requested an ambulance to come and evaluate the suspect. Officer Hack requested that dispatch check for any warrants on the suspect.

Officer Steve Elmes, who was working but in another part of the city, heard the name of the suspect on the radio and informed Officer Hack that he had just taken out criminal complaints against the same suspect for the same offense. In that case, the suspect was again seen inside a vehicle located in the lot of the Varsity Club and witnesses identified her as the culprit.

The victim arrived on scene and immediately blurted out, "That's her, she's the one that broke into my car." The ambulance arrived on scene and the suspect was about to be examined by a female EMT when she said, "I am fine - I don't need to be looked at. Get me out of here."

The suspect was removed from the ambulance and then handcuffed, placed in a cruiser and transported to the Quincy Police station. The 28-year-old Quincy resident was charged with "B&E to a Motor Vehicle in the Daytime (Felony) 266-18."

Officer Hack then interviewed the victim, who said that he was working in his shop when a worker from a nearby business yelled to him that there was a woman going through his car. The victim ran outside and found the suspect in the front seat of his car. The suspect fled but the victim caught her at Hajjaars Clothing store.

The victim told the suspect she needed to come back to the car to see if anything was missing. The suspect then said she was having a miscarriage and was bleeding. The victim said he would call her an ambulance back at his shop. The suspect then turned and ran off. The victim called the Police. The victim checked his vehicle and nothing was missing.

Officer Hack then spoke to the witness, who said that he looked out his office window and observed the suspect trying to open the doors of the car. He saw the suspect open the driver's door, get in the car and then go through the glove box. He then notified the owner by yelling out to him. Nice Work!

A CRAZY NIGHT: On Friday night, around 11:30 p.m., the city was quiet and had been for most of the 4-12 shift. One officer who was working at a bar in Quincy Square went outside to check the parking area and smelled marijuana. He approached two males who were smoking and as soon as he neared, he was punched by one of the suspects, who fled the area with the Officer in pursuit. As the Officer gave chase, he informed responding Officers of the suspect's description and direction of travel. At the same time, a call came in from another bar a short distance away that a patron was passed out on the floor and was not breathing. Due to the seriousness of both calls, Officers hurried to both locations, but unfortunately, one of the cruisers collided with a telephone pole on the slick roads, leaving the Officer with minor injuries. The suspect who assaulted the Officer was never found. The Fire Department and Fallon Ambulance assisted the patron. He was taken out of the bar and into the ambulance. Incredibly, their efforts in getting to the sick patron were hampered by numerous customers in the bar taking photos of the injured person with their camera-phones!

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) A little woolgathering is OK. But don't let that dreamy state linger beyond midweek, when you'll want to be ready to take on new workplace responsibilities.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Love rules the week for single Bovines seeking romance. Attached pairs also find new joy in their relationships. Friday should bring news about a business opportunity.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Home becomes the center of a new social whirl, as you show your talent for hosting great parties. You can expect to impress a lot of people who've never seen this side of you.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) The Moon Child might have to raise those powers of persuasion a notch to get a still-wary colleague to agree to go along. Finding more facts to back up your position helps.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Hold off trying to fix the blame for an apparent mishandling of a work situation. A full investigation could reveal surprising facts on how and why it really happened.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Your ability to find details others might overlook gives you an advantage in assessing a possibly too-good-to-be-true offer. A trusted colleague has advice.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Expect to be called on once again to act as peacemaker in a long-simmering dispute that suddenly flares up. Offer advice, but be careful to stay out of the fray.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Your organizational skills help you line up your priorities so that you get things done without added pressure. The weekend could hold a special surprise.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) New ventures are favored. But don't launch yours before rechecking all facts and sources. Also, be sure you can rely on support from certain people.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Don't be pushed into renegotiating an agreement, even though it might help avoid a potential impasse. Get legal advice before you sign or agree to anything.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Helping others is what Aquarians do so well. But this time, someone wants to help you. Expect to hear some news that will surprise and delight you.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Things go so swimmingly that you're tempted to take on more tasks. Best advice: Finish what you have now, then enjoy a well-earned relaxing weekend.

BORN THIS WEEK: Your understanding of human nature helps you make wise decisions that are appreciated by all. You would make a fine judge.

Public Passover Seder At Rabbi's Quincy Home Saturday, Sunday

Jewish residents of Quincy, regardless of affiliation or background, are invited to attend the first authentic Public Passover Seder Saturday and Sunday, April 19 and 20, at 7 p.m. at the home of Rabbi Shmuel Bronstein, 1356 Quincy Shore Drive.

"This Seder is an opportune time to bring unity to the Community and just get together to enjoy each others company," said Rabbi Bronstein. "It's the Seder that has kept families together for thousands of years."

The evening will be replete with the Mah Nish Tanach, traditional handmade Matzah, Four Cups of wine, lively dialogue and an exquisite Kosher for Passover meal in an atmosphere of warmth and acceptance.

Passover (or Pesach in Hebrew) commemorates the Jews' escape from bondage in Egypt when God smote the first born of the Egyptians and "passed over" the first born of the Jews, then parted the Red Sea to aid their escape.

"Passover is the ideal time to celebrate freedom," said Rabbi Bronstein. "This Seder will focus on being liberated from the daily challenges and tribulations that bind and confine us by encouraging personal growth and self development."

"What a great way to relive the Exodus — people walking away feeling freed from their problems."

"This is an exciting opportunity to meet new people, share and enjoy great food," said Shevy Bronstein, the Seder coordinator.

"The Seder meals will be interactive, warm and vibrant, interspersed through lively discussion through group participation as well as individual involvement."

SCOTT DEWARE

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Couldn't it be said that the oft-repeated question, "What is Life?" can be answered in many different ways. Some anonymous quotes come to mind: Take life as you find it but don't leave it that way... If you find life empty, try putting something into it... Life is not a goblet to be drained, but a measure to be filled.

We especially like this quote: Life is a winding road through the years that are allotted to us. It passes through pleasant valleys and over steep hills. It threads its way through wastelands, too. No one can see far enough ahead along the road to know which he will be required to travel on any given day, but each has within him the strength for the hills and the courage for the wastelands. Only those who childishly insist that all the road must be through pleasant valleys fail. And they fail because they never learn to use the inner strength God gave them for the hills, nor to call upon the inner courage He gave them for the wastelands.

"We are anticipating some sort of job action by the laborers,"

Anderson said Monday, suggesting that the action is likely to involve information picketing. "D'Agostino is not a union shop."

Any work stoppage costs are not included in the GMP, according to Anderson who said the contractors are prepared for informational pickets.

For most of Monday's meeting, councillors questioned Anderson regarding the history of a sewer pipe which is located beneath the new high school.

The pipe which carries 500 plus gallons of sewerage daily is more than 100 years old and costs of a back-up line were not included in the original bid.

Members reviewed material suggesting that contractors were informed about the existence of the pipe prior to the bids in 2007 and had disregarded or rejected remediation costs in the original bids.

"This is an issue that was talked about way back in 2006," Cunniff told councillors.

Several councillors said that the issue should have been addressed in the original bids.

Councillor Joseph Finn said that the required sewer line improvements, "certainly should not have been a surprise."

"It's interesting that it was in and then it was out," said Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi. "Who made the decision to eliminate from the design a multi-million sewer line? Why was it put back in?"

At the conclusion of the meeting, Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin said, "I don't feel I've gotten straight answers."

Koch: 'A Major Priority'

$300,000 For Fixing Potholes, Trenches

That plaintive cry for help from motorists grown weary of dodging potholes and trenches left in city streets by the winter weather has reached the office of Mayor Tom Koch.

"We know that fixing potholes is a priority for our residents and it is a major priority of this administration," said the Mayor, as he announced an aggressive plan for making them disappear.

The $300,000 plan aims to have major pothole properly filled and fixed on dozens of roads during the spring, the funds going for increased city pothole crews, outside contractors and asphalt and other material.

"The goal is to act quickly with a sound plan that will ultimately save taxpayer money with fewer legal claims for damaged cars and fewer pothole that need to be repaired repeatedly," said Koch.

The pothole and trench repair plan is the second piece of an overall, spring public works effort that also includes doubling the speed of spring street-sweeping, which is already underway in some neighborhoods.

The Department of Public Works is also now coordinating its street and sidewalk paving plan for the upcoming year.

"The winter did a number of our roads and we will be making every effort to repair them," said Public Works Commissioner Larry Prendeville.

"Our crews will be out in full force and then some. And we will be keeping a strict eye on contractors to make sure they do the job right the first time."

Residents can report potholes to the DPW by calling 617-376-1914.

48 Lost In Vietnam To Be Remembered At Ceremonies April 29

By LAURA GRIFFIN

Four Apache helicopters will fly over Marina Bay in mid-afternoon Tuesday, April 29, climaxing a full day of ceremonies marking the 2008 Vietnam Veterans Day and honoring a Quincy native lost in Vietnam.

The day will begin at 11 a.m. in Quincy Point when the corner of Elm Street and Miller Stile Road will be named Lt. Thomas J. Chiminello Square to honor the Quincy native killed on a medical rescue mission in 1967 in Vietnam.

Rev. John C. Swanson, pastor of Union Congregational Church, will perform the blessing.

The Chiminello family lived at 88 Elm St. while Thomas was a young child and later moved to San Antonio, TX. The Elm Street house is now home to Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi and his family.

Lt. Chiminello was the son of Army Col. Dominic and Mrs. Chiminello and the grandson of the Anthony Chiminellos of Vine St.

Then, at 3 p.m., formal ceremonies marking Vietnam Veterans Day will begin at the Clock Tower Vietnam Memorial at 500 Victory Rd., Marina Bay, with greetings from Lt. Col. Orson Swindle, USMC, (Ret.), a former prisoner of war, and from state and city officials.

In case of inclement weather, the ceremony will be held at the North Quincy High School auditorium.

Ceremonies have been organized by the 200-member Quincy Chapter of Vietnam Combat Veterans (QCVV) headed by Larry Norton, President. Treasurer is Sgt. Thomas Bolinder, USMC, (Ret.) Secretary, Marine Col. Edward Murphy.

Bolinder will introduce the veterans and their families and Joseph Brooker, Past President of QCVV, will place the wreath at the tower.

Guest speakers will be Diane Carlson Evans and Joseph McCain, USN. McCain, the brother of presidential candidate Sen. John McCain.

Evans served six years with the Army Nurse Corps, including one year in the burn units of evacuation hospitals in the Central Highlands of Vietnam. She was 21 years old when she joined.

As President of the Vietnam Women's Veterans Memorial Foundation, Evans lobbied long and hard for a memorial in Washington honoring the women who served in Vietnam.

After seven years, Evans and her supporters won approval for the seven-foot memorial sculpture now standing on the National Mall.

The Massachusetts National Guard will conduct the "Missing Man Flyover." Brig. Gen. Thomas Sellars and Brig. Gen. Leonid Kondratyuk will explain the symbolism as the four helicopters engage in military formation and soar through the sky.

One of the four helicopters, a special one marked with a red cross, will "peel off from the others," according to Norton, "This symbolizes the loss of the pilot."

The downed pilot to be honored this year, Lt. Chiminello, 25, was leading a medical recovery mission in 1967 in an unarmed Med-Evac helicopter in Vietnam.

"He was (called) a dust-off pilot," Norton said, adding, "He was called to fly out and pick up the wounded."

At the destination base in Vietnam for Lt. Chiminello's medical unit, Captain Barbara Chiminello served as an emergency room nurse on duty when her brother's body was brought in. She and her brother had been commissioned lieutenants within one week of each other.

Chiminello, now Barbara Robinson of New York, had to call her parents in San Antonio. They were thrilled to hear her voice until she said through the Military Affiliated Radio System (MARS) from Vietnam, "Tommy is gone."

"Then I heard the phone drop, the wailing, the scream for Tommy. I started to cry, filled with sorrow and helplessness," Robinson wrote in her web narrative which honors her brother and all those who served.

She accompanied her brother's body home to Texas.

Through her eyes as a nurse on the front-line, Robinson also, recounts the horrors of war on both military and civilian victims in her narrative.

At one point in her comments, Robinson describes the Vietnam War, "What a war of contradictions."

Robinson, Chiminello's brothers, Phillip of San Antonio, a former captain in Vietnam, and Gene of Los Angeles, will attend the ceremonies at the Marina Bay tower. The generals will present the family with the helmet their brother wore when he was killed.

The clock tower at Marina Bay, completed in 1987, is inscribed with the names of the 48 Quincy residents who were killed in the 10-year Vietnam War, which ended in 1973. Some 1300 Quincy residents served and 58,000 Americans were killed in service to the United States.

The memorial was built and paid for by Peter and William O'Connell, the developers of Marina Bay.

March 29 is the official date for Vietnam Veterans Day. However, after the local chapter experienced many disruptions caused by bad weather in recent years, members postponed the observance until April 29.

Officer Donald Sautter of the Quincy Police Department will sing the Star Spangled Banner. Senator Michael Morrissey, Rep. Bruce Ayers and Mayor Thomas Koch will offer greetings from the city and state.

Lawrence A. Connors, USMC, and David Lawson, USMC, will read the roll call of departed brothers followed by Quincy Police Sgt. Steven Kring playing "Taps" on his bugle.

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

• On April 19, 1775, at about 5 a.m., 700 British troops march into the Massachusetts town of Lexington to find 77 armed minutemen waiting for them. Suddenly, the "shot heard around the world" was fired from an undetermined gun. When the brief battle of Lexington ended, eight Americans lay dead or dying and 10 others were wounded. The American Revolution had begun.

• On April 20, 1841, Edgar Allan Poe's short story "The Murders in the Rue Morgue" first appears in Graham's Lady's and Gentleman's Magazine. The tale is generally considered to be the first detective story.

• On April 14, 1912, just before midnight in the North Atlantic, the RMS Titanic hits an iceberg, rupturing five watertight compartments along her starboard side. Hours later the massive vessel sank, and more than 1,500 people died in the icy waters.

• On April 15, 1927, Douglas Fairbanks, Mary Pickford and Norma and Constance Talmadge become the first celebrities to leave their footprints in cement at Grauman's Chinese Theater. The future Hollywood landmark was still under construction at the time.

• On April 17, 1937, Daffy Duck makes his debut in the Warner Bros. short "Porky's Duck Hunt." In the 1920s, movie houses had started showing a short cartoon before feature presentations, but the form became more popular after sound was introduced in 1928.

• On April 16, 1947, a massive explosion occurs during the loading of fertilizer onto the freighter Grandcamp at a pier in Texas City, Texas, killing 600 people. The blast was heard 150 miles away and was so powerful that the ship's 3,000-pound anchor was found 2 miles away.

• On April 18, 1983, Joan Benoit wins her second Boston Marathon in the women's division with a time of 2:22:43. The inaugural Boston Marathon was run on April 19, 1897, and was a men-only event until 1972, when women were officially allowed to compete.

Remembering Pope John Paul's Visit

Pope Benedict XVI passed up Boston on his visit to America, disappointing area Catholics and those of other religions.

But many still have their fond memories of Pope John Paul II's visit here 29 years ago this October.

Especially those who were there that memorable night on a rain soaked Boston Common.

It was Oct. 1, 1979 and Pope John Paul II was there to celebrate an historic Mass.

He died at 84 from the onslaught of Parkinson's Disease in April 2005. But that night he was a young 59-vigorous, energetic, charismatic. And that is the way we, who were there that night will always remember him.

The rain arrived around the start of the 5:30 p.m. Mass and came down heavy and chilling.

It eventually soaked clothing to the skin but it couldn't dampen the spirit of the 400,000 or more who jammed onto Boston Common. It was like taking a shower with your clothes on.

But few, if any, would have swapped places with those sitting comfortably and dry in their room watching this momentous event on television.

Who cares about a little rain. Or, a lot of rain.

Not when you can see and hear the Pope in person saying: "I greet you America, The Beautiful. Beautiful even if it rains."

The crowd laughed and chanted "Viva il Papa." Some held signs such as "Protestants for the Pope." And, "Our Hope For The Future Is Here."

Arthur Tobin, who was Quincy mayor then, his wife, Shirley, brother Tim, and I had arrived around noon. The tickets we had were good for standing room only, some 75 to 100 yards from the altar. We wished we had brought binoculars.

But luck was coming our way.

Robert Chenette of Merrymount, head of the Boston Police Department detective security at the Mass, and a friend of the mayor, stopped to chat.

Next thing, we were walking in the direction of the VIP reserved section in front of the altar.

Chenette knew four guests weren't going to make it that night and invited us to take their seats.

So, there we were—not 75 or 100 yards away—but in the reserved section just eight rows from the foot of the red carpeted, yellow flowers banked altar.

The ironwork for the special platform for the altar was done by Antonelli Iron Works, a Quincy firm headed by Larry Antonelli and his son in-law, Jim Kearns.

Seated near us were Senator Edward Kennedy, House Speaker Thomas (Tip) O'Neill, Gov. Edward King, Henry Cabot Lodge, Congressman Brian Donnelly.

When Kennedy arrived shortly before the Mass, there were chants of "Ted for President." But you knew who the real star—a superstar—was that night.

Pope John Paul made a special effort to reach out to the young people.

Earlier you had noticed all the young faces in the crowd. And later learned that the Pope himself had decreed that 10,000 tickets be given to the young.

And, they were listening, hanging onto his every word as the rain continued to come pelting down.

"Tonight, in a very special way, I hold out my hand to the youth of America," he said.

It touched off a roar of approval from the crowd—followed by cries of "Long Live the Pope. Long Live the Pope!"

"Tonight I want to repeat what I keep telling youths," he added. "You are the future of the world and the day of tomorrow belongs to you."

More roars and applause from the crowd.

"I'm glad he remembered us," said a teenage girl standing behind us.

"He's so cute," said her friend, peering through the rain with binoculars for a close look.

POPE JOHN PAUL II waves to crowd lining the street enroute to Boston Common to celebrate historic Mass Oct. 1, 1979. There was no need for a bulletproof popemobile back then.

"He's my Pope, he's my Pope!" a young nun behind me cried. And when I stood up, she jumped onto my chair to flash a picture with the elevation offering a better view of the altar.

As the rain continued to come down, a feeling of togetherness spread through the crowd.

"Umbrellas down in front," went up a friendly chant from those standing behind the reserved section and wanting a better view. "You in the reserved section have to suffer a little."

Down came the umbrellas amid laughs.

A Lebanese priest said to several teenage girls standing behind the ropes: "You know, you would think with all the clergy that is here we would have a little influence on the weather."

"Not in New England," they told him.

The Pope's homily lasted about 40 minutes and was interrupted by applause some 25 times or more.

His words were stirring, crisp and clear.

Among the concelebrants of the Mass with 15 cardinals and 30 other bishops were two well known former Quincy church figures: Most Rev. Thomas Daily, Auxiliary Bishop of Boston, formerly of St. Ann's parish and Most Rev. Joseph Maguire, Auxiliary Bishop of Springfield, formerly of St. John's parish.

Among the 300 priests selected to distribute Communion were a number of familiar faces:

Fr. William McCarthy, Fr. Joseph Connolly, Fr. William Walsh, Fr. Daniel Graham of St. John's; Fr. Cornelius Heery and Fr. James Hawker of Sacred Heart parish; Fr. Gerald Ostermann, St. Boniface; Fr. Lawrence Pratt, Fr. David Delaney and Fr. Mark Sheehan, formerly of St. John's.

The rain turned into a steady, heavy downpour with the priests distributing wet hosts to the thousands who walked through mud to receive Communion.

For such a huge crowd and the drenching rain, every thing seemed to go off without a problem. No incidents to mar this historic event.

Some 400,000 or more people of all ages and religions jammed together in a chilling rain, their clothes soaked. And no problems. Many of them had been there since 5:30 a.m. that morning hoping to stake out a good viewing spot.

Pope John Paul II gave his final blessing in Latin and the Mass, which lasted more than an hour, was now over.

And the crowd started filing out orderly-singing in the rain.

But not before one more rousing cheer went up for John Paul.

He had captivated this huge crowd and had given them—young and old—hope for the future. And a wonderful feeling of togetherness.

It was a night to remember.

A night to cherish and treasure.

THIS REAL PHOTO POSTCARD is a 1924 view of Willow Street in Wollaston looking north from Elm Avenue. Electric trolleys ran along Elm Avenue connecting to Norfolk Downs via Billings Road. The tracks are visible in the unpaved street. Some of these houses appear different today; porches and other trim have de-cayed over the years and have been removed or replaced. In the 1920s, Henry Frink, a Quincy photographer, took dozens of pictures of neighborhoods like this one and sold many of them as postcards, but they are hard to find today. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

He Would Like A Two-Party State Again

Following your editorial ("New Life For Republican Party") on April 17, I've a few thoughts for the organizers. What happened to the Republican Party in this state?

They were victimized by the national party, who sought-successfully-to turn Massachusetts into a reviled swear word, nationwide, and whose solution to the serious problems this country has usually involves finding some Democrat to blame for them.

They were sabotaged by the crazies populating talk radio for whom rational debate is for wimps, screaming "Liberal! Liberal!" is the answer to every question they don't like, and whose response to pretty much anything they don't want to hear is to shout out, cut it off, insult it or toss off a ten second sound-bite about it.

They were dishonored every time one wrapped himself in the flag without ever having worn the uniform which defended that flag on so many battlefields, and who had no problem in demeaning other honorable veterans who didn't vote their way.

They were ignored by the ones who would claim at every step of the way how much they hated big government, wanted term limits and line-item vetoes, advocated restrictions on government power, wanted to kick out the corrupt pols...up until they got into power themselves and got their own noses in the troughs and the corner offices.

There are a lot of people like me in Massachusetts, who used to vote Republican back in the 1970s before our party didn't want us anymore. A lot of us would like candidates who are for more than they're against, and who want to make a difference more than dole out patronage. A lot of us would like a two-party state again. A lot of us would like Republicans who impressed us with their ideas, not with their command of venom. It won't be easy. Feel up to the challenge?

Thank You Julie Berberan

(This letter is in response to Julie Berberan's letter two weeks ago)

While I think we all strive to be guided by our altruistic nature; the pressures and demands of daily life rarely afford the time to follow the philanthropist that exists in each of us.

Work, children and the responsibilities that overwhelm, make it hard to even find the time to reflect on what is important in this complicated world; especially in third world countries where the needy, through no fault of their own, depend on charity of others to survive.

Julie Berberan represents the true spirit of caring and giving. As you read in the Sun a couple of weeks ago.

Julie is heading to Calcutta to hold and care for the orphaned, sick, destitute and dying people there. Julie has dedicated her itinerary to tireless work to nurture and comfort people who's unmitigated suffering is often sadly forgotten.

Her charitable efforts last year to raise money locally for an orphanage in Kenya called "An Orphan's Dream" proved fruitful as the orphanage is now currently under construction.

I wish Julie well and safe in her travels and hope when she returns, the Quincy Sun will share her experiences with it's readers to help us appreciate the wisdom of such basic human values. I'd also like to express how honored and proud I am to call Julie my friend.

Quincy's Yesterdays

Hannon 'Welcomes' LaRaia Probe At Quincy Hospital

By FRANK McCAULEY

Mayor Walter J. Hannon calling Quincy Hospital "well-managed," said he "welcomes any investigation City Councillor Joseph J. LaRaia would like to make."

LaRaia, chairman of the city council's Hospital Committee and an announced candidate for mayor, said he would schedule a series of hearings "to determine the extent of the problems at Quincy City Hospital."

Referring to a chief surgeon's recent complaint of inadequate instrument supplies at the hospital, LaRaia said, "The situation at the hospital is indeed grave when members of its professional staff feel compelled to speak out strongly about problems there."

LaRaia said he also wants to investigate the Board of Managers' request to transfer some $200,000 from its capital outlay account to its expense account to cover operating expenses.

GOOD NEWS: NO WATER RATE HIKE

Mayor Hannon announced there would be no increase in Quincy's water rate for 1975, despite information that the MDC has increased charges to the City of Quincy by $40 per million gallons.

"This is a 100 percent increase in Quincy's water costs in two years," Hannon said. "In 1973 Quincy paid $120 per million gallons with an approximate cost to us of $450,000. In 1974 the cost rose to $200 per million gallons and the present cost in 1975 is $240 per million gallons, with an approximate cost to us of $900,000."

"We are able to keep Quincy's rate at a low of $.60 cents per 100 cubic feet because of efficient operation and more importantly, increased revenue by the installation of new water meters throughout the system."

"The new meters will insure that all pay their fair share for water consumed," Mayor Hannon concluded.

The concert, which will include pieces by Cambini, Mozart, Haydn and Hummel, will be followed by a collation featuring Regency-style cakes and tea to conclude the library's Discovering Jane Austen program series.

The Boston Chamber Ensemble was founded in 1989 as a group of 40 instrumentalists from which smaller groups are formed to provide programs of great diversity and interest.

The trio that will perform Sunday at the library is made up on Elisa Birdseye on the viola, Timothy Macri on the flute and Rob Bethel on the cello. Individually, they have performed all over the United States and Europe.

Birdseye is principal violist for the New Bedford Symphony Orchestra and executive director of the Boston Chamber Ensemble. She has been featured twice on WGBH's Off the Record.

Macri is principal flute of the New Bedford Symphony and is a frequent guest with the Boston Pops Esplanade Orchestra, the Boston Philharmonic and the Portland, Maine, Symphony.

Bethel is the principal cellist with the North Shore Philharmonic and was a featured performer and clinician at the most recent Chants de Vieilles Festivals in Quebec.

The free event is sponsored by the Friends of the Thomas Crane Public Library. For more information, call 617-376-1301.

Art Exhibit To Raise Funds For China Trip

Artist members of the TreuBlooGroup are organizing a month-long art exhibit starting Sunday, April 27, at the Art and Frame Gallery, 1422 Hancock St., to raise funding for a trip to China by David Maynard to have his spinal injury treated cell transplants from umbilical cords.

Maynard is the long-time residential counselor at Bay State Community Services' Granite House for mentally ill adolescents who has undergone five surgeries in the past nine years and faces the possibility of paralysis if his condition worsens.

He and his friends feel his best option is techniques developed from stem cell research in Asia using umbilical cord treatment for nerve regeneration.

TreuBlooGroup is collaborating with the National Transplant Assistance Fund's Northeast Spinal Cord Injury Fund in the art exhibit.

'Operation Day's Work' For Broad Meadows, QHS Students To Raise Donations For Poor

'Spring Fair For Burundi' At Wollaston Congregational Church Saturday

What can youth do in a day's work?

If you are a student at Quincy High or Broad Meadows Middle School, you already know you can change lives in a day. In fact, they already have.

This year, these students in a club they call "Operation Day's Work," hope to turn a day's work into donations which will literally save hundreds of lives in Burundi.

The students will be working April 26th at the Spring Fair for Burundi to be held at the Wollaston Congregational Church near the Wollaston T stop, and they hope the public stops by to help.

The students will be offering foods from around the world, games and a PS2 drawing. The Spring Fair for Burundi runs April 26th from 1 to 5 p.m.

Admission is $10. It's all you can eat. All proceeds go to fund the building of a community health center in Kigutu, Burundi. This would be the 10th successful global aid project completed by Quincy youth in the past thirteen years.

Since 1995, students at the Broad Meadows Middle School have followed a blueprint they originally devised to build "A School for Iqbal" in Pakistan. That campaign raised over a $100,000. A School for Iqbal now thrives in Pakistan.

Instead of retiring after that successful project, the students decided to build a school each school year. To do that, they needed to organize students in other schools. They also knew they needed to partner with trusted organizations in countries they hoped to aid.

The results are impressive. Schools have been established, renovated or reopened in five countries, orphanages have been expanded in three countries and now a health center is being finalized in Burundi.

How can 12 year-olds be a part of such long distance aid? Their blueprint can be summed up in two words: organize and partner.

Current or past members of Broad Meadows Middle School have organized peers locally at Quincy High, North Quincy High and Archbishop Williams, and long distance at the Young Middle School in New York and at the Wellesley Middle School.

Students used the internet

BROAD MEADOWS Middle School student Liam Batson, grade 6, congratulates the Director of Village Health Works, Deo Niyizonkiza of Burundi, on his decision to partner with Operation Day's Work students to build, fund, staff and operate a Community Health Center in Kigutu, Burundi (the poorest country in the world according to 2006 World Bank statistics).

DEO NIYIZONKIZA of Burundi presented to the Operation Day's Work students from Quincy a special greeting from children in Burundi.

to link with schools in six other states to form an after school activism club known nationally as Operation Day's Work. The goal of Operation Day's Work is to bring aid such as education or health care to children in one, poor, developing country each school year.

At their after school planning meetings, the members of Operation Day's Work vote on which country and what type of aid to provide annually. Then, the students send out "requests for proposals" to reputable, in-country, non-governmental organizations in the selected country such as the Heifer Project or Salesian Missions. Students then debate the strengths and weaknesses of project proposals received back. Students then vote and one project proposal is selected.

The Operation Day's Work students then officially partner with the winning organization to create a school, orphanage or health center.

In this way, student volunteers learn how to create sustainable aid projects in developing countries. Organization and teamwork can create annual miracles.

In the past eight years, Operation Day's Work has successfully established partnerships resulting in schools or orphanages in countries such as El Salvador, Nepal, Bangladesh, Vietnam, Ethiopia, Rwanda and Haiti.

In 2008, the students have voted to accept the project proposal submitted by Village Health Works and the renowned Dr. Paul Farmer's Partners in Health. This winning proposal calls for a fully staffed Community Health Center to be built in Kigutu, Burundi.

Preventable diseases claim hundreds of lives in Kigutu each year for lack of medicine. Village Health Works is paying for the construction of the actual building, paying for the doctors' salaries and all utilities.

OPERATION DAY'S WORK student members from Broad Meadows Middle School, Quincy High School, Archbishop Williams High School, Thetford High (VT) and Hanover High (NH) gather together with Village Health Works Director Deo Niyizonkiza of Burundi, to formalize the partnership between the two organizations.

THE PARTNERSHIP BETWEEN Village Health Works/Burundi and Operation Day's Work will result in the construction, staffing, funding and operation of a Community Health Center in Kigutu, Burundi. Villagers from Kigutu are shown hauling construction materials to the proposed site of the Health Center. No roads exist, yet.

BURUNDIAN VOLUNTEERS and professional construction workers begin building the foundation of the Community Health Center in Kigutu, Burundi.

The Operation Day's Work students will fund the addition of malaria nets, vaccines, pediatric health care and two nurses to the Community Health Center. Over 20,000 people live in the village of Kigutu.

Until now, there not only has not been a hospital, there are not even any roads or electricity in that region of Burundi. The project includes generators for electricity and the construction of several roads.

All proceeds from the spring fair go to the completion of the Community Health Center in Burundi.

This is the 11th global project undertaken by Broad Meadows and Quincy High students through Operation Day's Work.

The previous projects were all successful and still are up and running, improving the lives of children and their families in: Pakistan, Haiti, El Salvador, Nepal, Bangladesh, Ethiopia, Rwanda, Vietnam, Ethiopia again, the Twin Towers Orphans Project in New York and now Burundi.

The public is invited to come to the students' fair on April 26th. Tickets are available at the door.

Donations can be made payable to ODW and mailed to:

MORE FOR YOU HERE AT HOME

Granite City Self Storage is a family owned and operated self-storage company with over twenty years in business. Owners Don and Paula McNally started the business when the self-storage industry was relatively unknown in the northeast. Since its inception in 1983, Granite City has grown to include three storage facilities with over 1,000 units. Construction has recently begun on another three-story state of the art building at the Wollaston location.

Storage units range in size from a small closet to a garage. The need for self-storage spaces is as varied as the customers who use them. Granite City found a niche market when they learned that condo and apartment dwellers need storage space, so they developed the "extra closet" concept for storing seasonal clothing, equipment and decorations. Due to the large number of apartments and condos in Quincy, these units are in demand and can be rented for as low as $30 per month. They can even be fitted with a hanging bar for winter coats and other out-of-season clothes. One can see the change in seasons as the skis and snow shovels get stored away and the golf clubs, beach chairs, etc. come out.

All three facilities offer inside heated, clean, dry and well-lit storage spaces.

The friendly and knowledgeable staff at Granite City is able to help customers determine what size unit they need. David Streng, General Manager and Robin McDonald, Assistant Manager have been with the company ten and five years, respectively. Together with the part-time staff, including two trainees from WORK, Inc. they provide exemplary customer service, build strong customer relationships and maintain clean and secure facilities.

Granite City takes pride in the fact that they have had many long-term customers, some as long as twenty years. Their excellent customer service and friendly atmosphere have earned them many repeat customers as well as referrals to family and friends.

Two Fundraisers Will Help Quincy Infant And Other CF Afflicted

Two fundraisers will be held in May in Quincy to support research and aid for youngsters like seven-month old Thomas Ahern of Quincy who was diagnosed at birth in October, 2007 with cystic fibrosis.

The first fundraiser, a concert and auction, will begin at 7 p.m., Friday, May 16 at the Beachcomber. The entertainment by "Ramblin Souls - Silent Partner," will be followed by an auction. Admission is $10 which includes a tee shirt and compact disc of the group. Proceeds from the concert and auction will be distributed between the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation and the Ahern family.

On the following Sunday, May 18, the "Great Strides Walk" of one to five miles will begin at 9 a.m. at Marina Bay and all proceeds will go directly to the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation which helps individuals and funds research.

Cystic fibrosis is a genetic and, oftentimes, fatal disease that not only endangers the

TWO MAY FUND-RAISERS will help the family of seven month old Thomas Ahern and the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation patient, but, also, affects families as the needs are many. Some 30,000 children and adults in the United States and 70,000 worldwide suffer from cystic fibrosis.

Children born with the disease often require constant monitoring and medical attention as their lungs and digestive systems are at risk.

Thomas' parents are Josh and Annie Ahern and his big sister is Ruby, an active 18-month old toddler. After Thomas' diagnosis, his family's lives changed as they faced obstacles and the very difficult decisions involved in the disease.

"He's seven months old now," John McLoughlin said of Thomas. McLoughlin is organizing the local fundraising. "Right now, everything is okay but it's in his body and he has to be monitored."

The May events will help not only help Thomas and his family, but also fund research toward helping all victims. Research has helped in recent decades to dramatically increase the life expectancy and the quality of life of victims.

Today, those diagnosed with the disease live full lives into their 30's, 40's and beyond which is why the current fund-raising is called "great strides."

Interested volunteers may join Thomas's Troops by contacting McLoughlin at 781-720-9933.

Matthew Coughlin Youth Delegate At National Conference

Quincy's Matthew Coughlin, a senior at Boston College High School, was a Youth Delegate to the recent National League of Cities Congressional Cities Conference in Washington DC for the second consecutive year.

Coughlin joined with a select group of 100 high school students representing cities and towns from across the country in this annual event which is designed in part to bring together young people interested in the betterment of their communities and becoming future leaders.

At this year's conference youth from around the country developed a new initiative to focus on at the local and national level. Positive Initiatives and Goals For America's Tomorrow represents the promotion of positive healthy lifestyle choices for youth. The national goal for this initiative is to decrease the use of drugs and alcohol, reduce teen pregnancy and combat obesity by increasing options and raising awareness of the consequences of risky healthy choices.

Coughlin also participated

in workshops on the federal budget process, education reform, energy and the environment. He also met with many elected officials including Massachusetts Senators Ted Kennedy and John Kerry, and Cong. William Delahunt. Coughlin delivered Kerry and Delahunt with a presentation regarding the I'm Too Young For This! Cancer Foundation, i[2]y. a pioneering, survivor-led advocacy, support and research organization working exclusively on behalf of cancer survivors and care providers under the age of 40. Cancer incidence in young adults has doubled over the past 20 years to nearly 70,000 diagnoses each year. Cancer survival rates in young adults have not improved over the past 30 years (with the prime reason being delayed diagnosis) and roughly 10,000 young adults die each year due to cancer.

Coughlin hopes to follow-up on his NLC Conference participation with local action and has formulated the concept of a youth council for the City of Quincy which will serve a number of functions including inspiring youth participation in the process of government, serve as a clearinghouse for youth community service and a mechanism for advancing the NLC's youth initiative.

FIRE SAFETY

by Captain Tom Lyons
Fire Prevention Bureau
Quincy Fire Department

Fire Prevention: Poor Choices

On and off through the week I've been thinking about two recent fatal fires in nearby communities. I've abstained from writing about them but I just can't do so any longer. I feel compelled to write for the very same reason I have felt compelled to remain in fire prevention for these past 14 years.

To me, some deaths just seem so senseless. At the beginning of my career, I recall that feeling after an incident. I can remember having been present at the aftermath of a fatal fire. I had the opportunity to examine the scene and ponder the circumstances leading to that death. Having done so I concluded those important simple details had been ignored, resulting, in a tragic loss of life.

The victim was found on the floor of his bedroom. A cigarette in another room started the fire on a mattress. A smoke detector hung from the ceiling, while the attached cover revealed the battery had been removed and never replaced; poor choice number one.

The victim must have been sleeping soundly, and did not wake until the conditions within the apartment became untenable with heat and smoke. The victim stood up, appeared to have begun dressing himself when the flashover occurred with the room of origin, spewing super-heated air and gases throughout the apartment and causing the victim to fall to his knees and die. It would have taken a single breath.

Two feet from where he lay was a wall of windows with direct access to the outside. His decision to delay evacuation killed him when access to safety was two feet away: poor choice number two.

That scene made a tremendous impact on me and, to this day, it has set a trend for me as I attempt to convey choices we can make in our lives to maintain our safety within our homes.

Fire does not typically give us forewarning and announce when it will appear. Consequently, we must seek out methods that afford us early notification to its presence, giving us an opportunity to respond rather than react. That is a choice we can make by maintaining smoke detectors within our homes 52 weeks a year.

We typically enter our homes through a familiar door and leave out that same familiar way. This happens over and over and we become programmed by the familiarity. As fire prevention educators, we attempt to remind people that there are other options and choices they can consciously prepare for which might look fine and become quite practical in the event of an emergency when immediate evacuation is a necessity.

We encourage homeowners to make certain that bedroom windows can be easily opened and we remind them that these windows can be used if more used and familiar means of egress are unusable. A roof outside a window can make that option more appealing, while the importance of a window, which can be easily opened cannot be over-emphasized.

Our choices, now, can have a major impact on both our decisions and on our welfare later. Please be mindful of maintaining smoke detectors and take time to develop an escape plan from your home.

Thank you for doing so.

Why 50% Of Homes Listed For Sale Don't Sell The First Time And What to Do About It

Quincy - If your home has just come off the market and hasn't sold, don't get discouraged. The reason your home did not sell may have nothing to do with your home or the market. In reality, your home may have been one of the more desirable properties for sale.

So Why Didn't Your Home Sell?

Last year almost half of the homes listed for sale never sold at all, and many sellers found that there was a tremendous amount a homeowner needed to be educated on to sell their home for top dollar in the shortest time period.

Don't risk making the wrong choices and losing both time and money on your investment. Before you hire a realtor, know the right questions to ask to save you time and money.

Industry experts have prepared a free special report called "How to Sell a House that Didn't Sell" which educates you on the issues involved.

To hear a brief recorded message about how to order your free copy of this report call 800-611-0351 and enter ID#1012. You can call anytime, 24 hours a day, 7 days a week. Call now to make sure your home sells next time you list it for sale. www.quincyhomeinfo.com

Council Committee Approves Tree Protection Ordinance

The City Council's Ordinance Committee voted 6-2 to approve new regulations aimed at protecting the city's shade trees at their last meeting.

Councillors were expected to consider the issue at the next City Council meeting.

The regulations prepared by Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin would require that a tree study be submitted to the city's arborist for most development projects and utility projects.

The ordinance will, also, require that trees be planted on surface parking lots, that tree bark be protected and fencing maintained during major construction projects. Most of these regulations do not apply to residential properties.

Residents or business owners who must destroy trees would mitigate the damage by replacing the tree or paying into a city tree replacement fund. The lengthy ordinance addresses numerous issue affecting the city's trees and efforts to maintain or replenish their supply.

Councillor John Keenan recommended several adjustments to the ordinance proposal which Coughlin and councillors approved.

Both Ward 4 Jay Davis and Ward 1 Councillor Leo Kelly opposed the ordinance after Davis cited privacy issues and the intrusion of government into homeowners' decisions.

Joining Coughlin in supporting the ordinance were Councillors Joseph Finn, Michael McFarland, Keenan, Ward 5 Councillor Douglas Gutro, Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi. Ward 6 Councillor Brian McNamee was absent.

'Parents For Pageant' Meet To Contest Faxon Track

Parents for Pageant planned to organize last night (Wednesday) at 6:30 p.m. at 333 Southern Artery to fight Mayor Tom Loch's plan to locate the city's community track on Faxon Field.

The group would rather see it placed in Pageant field in Merrymount Park, the original location supported by former Mayor William, as less expensive and more centralized.

Parents for Pageant began circulating a petition Friday and by Tuesday morning had obtained 40 signatures demanding a return to the Pageant Field site.

Faxon Field was a location put forward for a new Quincy High School but that idea was shot down chiefly because of flooding problems. The track facility there faces the same problem.

Scheele To Step Up Education Efforts Most Quincy Beaches Seen In Good Shape

Most Quincy's beaches are in good shape as summer approaches, according to Health Commissioner Drew Scheele, who, this week, reported water test samples for the past two years.

Three beaches, Delano, Heron and Fire Station Beach, appear to top Scheele's list as they were not closed at all in 2007. The three-mile stretch of Wollaston Beach is under state jurisdiction and testing is not part of Scheele's report.

Closings ranged from 53.8% to 46.1% over the summer's 13-week period for the past two years. Beaches are closed and posted when "the enterococcus (or bacterial) count is greater than 104 and/or a five-sample geometric value greater than 35," notes Scheele in his report.

Scheele said he will step up education efforts to improve difficult areas, such as Rhoda and Edgewater Beaches, which were posted two or three times last year after heavy, heavy rainfall.

Major culprits are often boat owners and dog owners and people who litter beaches and streets because the residue and dirt ends up in the bay, according to Scheele. All three types of offenders face fines if they're caught.

Scheele cited a recent street sweeping initiative by Mayor Thomas Koch that can reduce beach problems because the oil and other pollutants are picked up before they reach the water.

"We have some problem beaches," Scheele said, adding it's important for residents to know that animal droppings, such as dog excrement on streets, flow into stormwater drains and, eventually, into the bay waters.

In addition, boat owners also need reminders that Quincy Bay is part of Boston Harbor and subject to "No Dumping" regulations, according to Scheele.

Scheele recommends that boat owners take advantage of the city's pump-out boat. He will also send notices to yacht clubs as the season approaches.

Scheele was scheduled to update the City Council Environmental Committee on the city's beaches water at Tuesday's meeting. The state Environmental Protection Agency pays for the first test of each beach.

Six beaches met the standards and were not posted in 2007. They are Mound, Merrymount, Heron, Delano (Back), Firestation, and Parkhurst.

Three beaches, Orchard, Baker, and Nickerson, were posted once and three beaches were posted two or more times. Chicatabot, Avalon and Edgewater, twice, and Rhoda, three times.

Inspectors did note that a group of geese and a heavy rainfall, very likely, affected the Avalon readings while rain and a discarded sanitation unit were responsible for Chicatabot's high readings.

New Composting Bins Available At DPW Yard

The Earth Machine home composting bins, offering a simple way to convert organic waste into rich humus called compost, can be purchased at the Department of Public Works yard at 55 Sea St.

The cost is a discounted price of $35 and they are available Monday through Friday.

The Earth Machine works like this:

Start with available organic material such as leaves, grass and table scraps. Moisten the dry parts lightly and mix with some old compost, manure, leaf mold, compost starter or rich loam soil.

Add your daily kitchen scraps and garden trimmings. Sprinkle each layer with old compost and work it in. The Earth Machine works best when pieces are small. Weeds and trimmings should be shredded.

Do not add thick layers of any one kind of waste. Grass should not be more than 2 1/2 inches deep, leaves up to six inches deep. Mulch or dry and crumble them. Mix grass with coarse material to prevent compacting.

The lid of The Earth Machine is especially designed to control moisture. If the contents are too dry, it will take overly long to compost. If too wet, the contents may rot and smell.

On high humidity days, turn the lid to expose all the vents. On a cool day, keep the vents closed to maintain the optimum composting temperature.

If you need finished compost for your garden right away, or you are a Type A fast-paced person, take some tips from Victor Dalpadado, who experimented with composting systems as an agricultural extension agent in Sri Lanka.

He wanted to develop a composting business for Sri Lankans who had no daily jobs and foraged for their sustenance. His research identified five key points to follow in making quick compost.

- Vary the materials in order to provide a balanced food supply for microorganisms.

- Mix all materials thoroughly instead of making layers.

- Make many scratches and cuts in stems and leaves to provide entry for microorganisms.

- Turn frequently for aeration.
- Maintain ample moisture.

Dalpadado suggests that proportions be about 2/3 brown (carbon) materials and 1/3 green (nitrogen) materials by volume. Breaking the skin of plant materials is important for microorganisms to do their work.

The first turning should be made on the second day after the pile is built. Turn it again on the fourth, seventh and tenth days. It should begin to cool from 140-160 degrees to 100 degrees, at which point it is ready to use.

Compost should include, from the garden, mulched leaves, grass (not wet), garden plants, weeds, old potting soil and soft plant stems; from the kitchen, fruit scraps, vegetable trimmings, crushed egg shells, tea bags, coffee grounds with filters, shredded paper and cardboard, containers.

Compost should NOT include meat scraps, bones, fish, dairy, oils, cheese, meat or sauces, plastics, metals, glass, stone, pet waste; and maybe just a little, pine needles, pine cones, walnut leaves, wood chips.

FOOT EXAMS CRITICAL FOR OVERALL HEALTH

Many people are aware that foot and ankle exams play an important role in the diagnosis and management of diabetes and heart disease. New research reveals that foot exams are also critical in the diagnosis of peripheral arterial disease (PAD). PAD decreases blood flow to the lower legs and feet. In its early stages, PAD can cause pain during walking and muscle fatigue. In its later stages, if it is not detected, it can lead to even more serious health problems such as amputation, heart attack, and stroke. As part of their investigation, researchers examined the feet and ankles of 200 study participants and found that 65% qualified for further screening for PAD. People don't always realize how their feet mirror their body's general health. They sometimes try to believe their foot problems "will just disappear." We strongly recommend having foot problems attended to in order to prevent them from becoming serious, as well as to keep an eye on the rest of the body. We may not be able to prevent disease here at QUINCY MEDICAL CENTER, but we can help deal with some of the problems that may accompany it. Make your next step pain-free - call for an appointment at 781-986-3668. Office hours also available at 999 North Main St., in the Randolph Medical Office Building, and Milton Medical Building in Suite 221.

P.S: More than 12 million Americans have PAD.

Bellotti To Open Police Chief Search This Week

Sheriff Michael Bellotti has set a tentative date and place of today (Thursday) or Friday at the Norfolk County jail in Dedham for the first meeting of the committee charged with the selection of a new police chief for Quincy.

"We will be laying the ground rules for our procedure," he said. "I expect we will meet several times to judge their achievements, listen to different people talk about them, interview them and weigh every factor before making a selection."

The expertise and experience provided by a sheriff, two police chiefs, a retired judge and an educator will go into the selection of the new boss for Quincy's sometimes fractious Police Department.

Bellotti, the choice of Mayor Tom Koch to chair the selection committee, named Police Chiefs James Hussey of Cohasset and Richard Wells Jr. of Milton, retired Judge Maurice Richardson and President Dr. Carmen Mariano of Archbishop Williams High School to help him.

Bellotti, a Quincy boy himself who grew up in Wollaston and lives in Squantum, promised that the committee will work to make its selection well before the present chief, Robert Crowley, is due to retire June 30 after 36 years as a Quincy cop, the last four as chief.

Backgrounds of Bellotti's committee members cover a wide variety of areas.

Cohasset Chief Hussey, 53, began his career in law enforcement as a Boston patrolman assigned to Roxbury and moved upward through supervisory positions until he was superintendent-in-chief from 2001 to 2004, when he was picked to head the Cohasset department.

His other Boston assignments were superintendent of investigations from 1998 to 2001 and lieutenant detective assigned to the Community Disorders Unit to investigate hate crimes from 1996 to 1998.

He holds a master's degree in criminal justice from Curry College and a bachelor's degree in human services from Springfield College.

Milton Chief Wells, 52, the son of a former Milton police chief, was appointed chief in his own right last September after working his way up the ranks since joining the Milton department as a patrolman in 1984. He began his public safety career as an EMT for the city of Boston.

He is the first commanding officer of the Metropolitan Law Enforcement Council's Special Tactics and Response Division and was the keynote speaker at the 1997 FBI National Academy Commencement.

He holds a master's degree from Boston University and has participated as an instructor in numerous law enforcement training seminars.

Judge Richardson, 79, was presiding justice of the Dedham District Court from 1982 to 1998 and before that an associate justice in the same court from 1974 to 1982. He is recognized as a pioneer in bringing mental health treatment resources to bear in criminal cases where appropriate.

He is currently an assistant professor and consultant in the Law and Psychiatry Program in the Department of Psychiatry at UMass Medical School in Worcester and recently retired as an adjunct professor at the New England School of Law, where he taught for more than 30 years.

He served two years in the Marine Corps and saw action in Korea between his graduation from Harvard College and his enrollment at the University of Virginia Law School.

Dr. Mariano, 61, was assistant superintendent for schools and personnel in the Quincy Public Schools before he was named president of Archbishop Williams High School, his alma mater, last summer.

He has also served Quincy schools as deputy superintendent for Personnel Business and Plant, director of Personnel, assistant principal at Atlantic and Reay E. Sterling Junior High Schools and math teacher at the Sterling School.

He has been an associate dean and campus director at Quincy College and an adjunct instructor at Framingham State College, Massasoit Community College and Fitchburg State College.

Bellotti was chosen by Koch to head the selection committee on the advice of City Solicitor James Timmins and after consultation with the State Ethics Commission to avoid a possibility of a conflict of interest.

Three captains in the Quincy Police Department are competing for the chief's job and one of them, Capt. Paul Keenan, is the Mayor's brother-in-law and the brother of City Councillor at Large John Keenan. The others are Capts. Alan Gillan and Michael Miller.

FORMER PASTOR Fr. William McCarthy and present pastor, Fr. Richard Cannon. Behind them is the plaque noting the sanctuary was rededicated in honor of Fr. McCarthy.

Sanctuary Rededicated In His Name

Father Bill Honored At St. John's Church

It was a unique and special honor for Fr. William McCarthy; former pastor of St. John's Church and "a priest of the people."

The sanctuary at St. John's Church, where he served 25 years—18 as pastor—was rededicated in his name at a recent Mass.

With Fr. McCarthy, himself, participating in the blessing and re-dedication.

Parishioners had donated more than $25,000 to have the sanctuary redone in his honor.

It now has beautiful statues of the Sacred Heart and Blessed Mary in the niches on the altar and a statue of St. John the Baptist, the patron saint of the parish to the side. The tabernacle is now on the altar in the center of the sanctuary.

Fr. McCarthy was honored for his long service at St. John's where he was named the 11th pastor in 1977 and for his dedication to the homeless, poor and hungry.

He was a founder and the inspiration for Father Bill's Place, the interfaith shelter for the homeless named in his honor, a cause in which he is still very active.

Fr. Richard Cannon, present and 13th pastor who gave his full support to honoring Fr. McCarthy, had this tribute:

"Fr. Bill's care for the downtrodden, the homeless, for those of us a little down on our luck is legendary. He's truly a priest of the people."

Fr. Cannon also noted:

THE INSCRIBED PLAQUE

"The impetus behind this day stems from the spontaneous desire if our good and generous parishioners to honor this 'shepherd,' this former pastor of St. John's and throughout the city of Quincy."

"I am very proud and humbled," Fr. McCarthy said.

He commended Fr. Cannon and Fr. Raymond Kiley for their "magnificent job" on beautifying the sanctuary.

"The contribution of the good parishioners of $25,000 shows how much the parish means to them."

"I was fortunate to serve at St. John's for approximately 25 years, 18 as pastor and as assistant. My years at St. John's were the happiest of my priesthood."

A plaque just off the sanctuary reads:

"This sanctuary was rededicated April 13, 2008 by, and in honor of Rev. William R. McCarthy, 11th pastor of St. John the Baptist Church. "Made possible by our good parishioners."

Also participating in the Mass were Fr. Patrick Fixon of St. Joseph's church, Pekin, Ill., a former deacon at St. John's, and deacons Paul Lewis and Dennis Faker.

Attending the Mass were Fr. McCarthy's nephew and nieces Jack and Lucy Perrone and Susan Tait.

Broad Meadows Middle School Celebrates 50th Anniversary

Smiles, conversation and laughter were very evident on Sunday, April 13th at the 50th anniversary celebration of the Broad Meadows Middle School.

Yearbooks, class pictures, and news articles were all displayed and many former students and staff came to visit their old school and reminisce. Several hundred people attended and enjoyed the social and sentimental time. Fifty years of memories and achievements!

REAL ESTATE

Dollars and sense

Bracing for Tough Times

Recession, depression, downturn in the market — no matter what it's called, there's less money going around. Taking the right steps now can help you get through what might be a bumpy time.

If you've been considering a job change, perhaps to a middle-management slot in the same or another company, give it long thought before you accept a position. "Last hired, first fired" could apply if your new company downsizes, and middle managers are most vulnerable. Meanwhile, be indispensable at the job you do have.

Develop multiple sources of income. If you have a marketable mini-skill or hobby (small engine or appliance repair, sewing, home maintenance) that allows others to fix what they have rather than buying new, consider starting a part-time business. Invest in a few ads to promote your services and increase your presence in local groups. The more you're known in places like church or social or service groups, the more opportunities you'll have to spread the word and to hear what others are able to provide.

Set up a trade system with likeminded others. If you can fix a computer, but your neighbor is good with oil changes or alterations, you both can benefit.

Do it yourself where possible. If your local community college or chain hardware store offers classes in home repair, take advantage of those that will allow you to avoid the high cost of repairs.

Sign up on Freecycle (www.freecycle.org), a site that promotes the reuse of goods.

Don't take on any new debt. When magazine subscriptions expire, don't renew. Get out of book clubs, gym memberships (unless it causes a penalty fee) and anything that involves an automatic expense each month.

Minimize the number of automatic bill-paying deductions you have coming out of your checking account. Write checks each month instead, staying more in control of your money.

Take care of maintenance now for anything from dental work to roof repair to forestall big expenses down the road.

Consider unemployment insurance to cover your mortgage.

Imagine that your income is cut off tomorrow. Calculate how long you would be able to survive and pay your bills on the money you have now. Consider what a dollar means to you today versus what it might mean tomorrow.

'A Home For The Brave' Program

Bank Of Canton Commits $3M For U.S. Veterans' Home Purchases

Military veterans now will find purchasing that dream home within reach thanks to a new partnership between Bank of Canton and the Massachusetts Housing Finance Agency (MassHousing) in which the bank will participate in MassHousing's new "A Home for the Brave" program.

MassHousing introduced the Municipal Mortgage program in 2006 to help police officers, firefighters, teachers and other municipal employees buy homes in the city or town in which they worked.

The agency is now reviving the Municipal Mortgage program and shifting its focus to U.S. Armed Service Veterans and introducing the A Home for the Brave program. MassHousing's goal is to have 20 banks statewide as participants in the program.

As part of "A Home for the Brave," Bank of Canton will make available to U.S. veterans portfolio loans at a fixed rate for the first 10 years. One distinct advantage of this type loan is that no down payment is required.

All loans granted as part of this program will be insured by MassHousing and provided to veterans who are looking to buy homes statewide.

"Bank of Canton is proud to be one of the banks supporting the "A Home for the Brave" program," said George DeMello, senior vice president of Residential Lending for Bank of Canton.

"We are a community service bank and, as such, we feel that it is important that we help veterans in our communities experience a smooth transition back to civilian life.

"This program reinforces Bank of Canton's community commitment and is just one way in which we can express our appreciation for those who serve our country."

Put Your Home Improvements 'On Deck'

(NAPS) — When considering home improvements, think about putting your plans "on deck." Whether you're building a new deck or renovating an old one, you can create more opportunities to enjoy your time outdoors with the latest generation of composite decking materials.

Composite decking materials are made from reclaimed wood fibers and plastic resins (WPC) or from expanded polymers (PVC). As an alternative to traditional treated wood decks, new technology has created composite materials that look better and last longer.

"In terms of colors and textures, homeowners have more options than ever to achieve the 'look' they want," said Kevin Brennan, senior vice president, sales, and marketing for TimberTech, a leading manufacturer of composite decking, railing and fencing products. "In addition, they can choose railings or fencing that either match or complement the deck."

Composite decking materials offer benefits such as:

Low Maintenance

Composite decking resists sun and water damage, so it maintains its color and appearance for years. There's no need to paint, stain or seal it like treated wood decks. Since it resists weathering and warping, you won't need to replace rotting, uneven or insect-damaged boards.

Minimal Color Fading

Many decking plank product lines are blended with ultra-violet (UV)-inhibiting pigments that will combat the effects of sunlight. This ensures a consistent appearance and minimizes color fading.

Comfort

Composite materials minimize heat buildup, so you're more comfortable in warmer weather. In addition, composite decks are splinter-free so you can go barefoot without worries.

Durability

Composite decks are more resistant to weathering and warping and last far longer than treated wood decks.

Increased Home Value

In addition to enhancing your outdoor lifestyle, composite decks add value to your home. According to a recent report from Remodeling magazine, the national average return on investment for deck additions is nearly 80 percent.

Fundraising Program Benefits Habitat For Humanity

Conway Birdhouses A Sign Of Spring

As spring approaches and the birds return to nest, they will have some newly decorated homes courtesy of Jack Conway Realtors.

For the past 15 years, Conway agents, managers and family members participated in the Houses that Build Homes program to benefit Habitat for Humanity. Participants decorate the birdhouses, donated by Cape Cod Lumber, which are then sold to the public at South Shore Plaza as part of the fundraising program.

"You can see how much fun people have decorating them, and how well they turn out," said company President Dick Cahill. "And it's an important cause to help build housing in the community."

This year's sale will kick off Friday, April 25 at noon, with special guest Anthony Everett of WVCB-TV. The sale of the decorative and functional birdhouses will run all weekend April 25-27.

The funds raised last year amounted to more than $15,000.

"The money we raise from this really makes a difference," said Habitats Executive Director Jerry McDermott at the Conway judging event. "It's a way to celebrate spring, and to help local families in need of housing."

Conway holds a contest each year for the best decorated birdhouses, and awards prizes for the winners in each of several age groups. This year there were 40 Conway entries.

In the 3-4 year old group, Caroline Canavan was the winner, with Colin Williams in second place.

In the 7-8 year old group, Liam Canavan was first, Caitlin Canavan second, Nicole McGovern was third and Katlyn and Hayley LaCava finished fourth.

In the age 11 group, Karen Boisson was first, and Chris McGovern was second.

In the adult category, Pembroke manager Joan Williams was the winner. Sue Depatie of Conway-Plymouth was second, Sheryl Balerna (Pembroke) was third, Kathleen Welch (Hingham) fourth, Tony Caponigro (Norton) fifth, and Joan Williams second entry was sixth. Honorable mention went to Conway-Mansfield manager Joyce Gerraughty.

Jack Conway Co. is celebrating its 51st Anniversary as the largest independently owned real estate company in Massachusetts. There are 40 sales offices from Boston to Cape Cod. The firm also operates its own mortgage company, Conway Financial Services.

Cleaning Storm Window and Door Hardware

Q. I just switched out my storm windows for screens, and now I need to clean the grime — dirt, old paint and so on — from the nooks and crannies of those storm windows. It's a pain. Do you have a faster way to clean this stuff? — A Reader, via e-mail

A. Cleaning handles, hinges and the grooves inside storm windows is a real pain at any time. But cleaning and storing them properly each spring will ensure smooth-functioning storm windows that last for many years.

One way to ease the amount of work involved is to create your own soaking and cleaning solution for storm windows (and any grimy window or door hardware that needs it).

First, remove hinges, screws and handles from the storm windows. Place the windows themselves in an open area where you can spray water on them.

Fill an old saucpan with about a quart of water and add four tablespoons of baking soda. Heat the water to a simmer and make sure the baking soda has dissolved fully. Place all the small hardware into the saucpan and continue simmering for 20 minutes or so. Remove the hardware using a slotted spoon or mesh scoop, let cool and scrub with steel wool.

Let the reserved water-baking soda mixture cool until you can touch it, then take the saucpan out to where the storm windows are waiting. Lay them out on a clean, dry surface (or even on an old tarp). Ladle the mixture over the grooved sides and let sit for a few minutes; then scrub with steel wool or a wire brush and rinse with clear water (for a faster rinse, spray them down with the garden hose). Stand upright to dry, reattach the hardware and store in a safe place until next fall.

A Job Well Done

On Friday, April 11, at approximately 10 a.m., Officers Daniel Francis and William Lanergan were dispatched to 2001 Falls Boulevard for a "well-being check."

Quincy Police Communications received a "911" cell phone call (transferred from the Massachusetts State Police) at approximately 09:47 hours from an unknown female. Dispatcher/Officer Lauren Lambert said she could hear a female on the phone line involved in a struggle, as if the female was being assaulted.

Officer Lambert said she could hear a male's voice in the background screaming obscenities at a female. Officer Lambert heard the male's voice say, "I'm gonna get you" and the female say, "Give me back my phone - I want to call for help."

Officer Lambert informed responding units that the call had been lost but was identified as having been made from the area of Quincy Avenue. (This is done by triangulation) Officer Lambert spoke with the State Police Dispatcher and reviewed the tapes together, which led them to believe that the word, "Highland" was mentioned by the female.

Officer Lambert called the cell phone number back and listened to the voicemail, indicating the owner's name. Officer Lambert directed the Officers to the apartment complex, "Highlands at Faxon Woods", which is located in the immediate area of Quincy Avenue. The officers quickly met with the management and were able to match up the first name on the voicemail with a tenant. They then went to the apartment door and heard noise coming from inside.

The officers knocked on the door and announced themselves as police officers, but after numerous attempts to convince those inside to open the door, Officer Francis had management come to the door with a key. Based on the "911" call, the failure of the occupants to open the door at the Police Officers request, a recent assault "911" call to the apartment and that someone inside could need assistance, the officers entered the apartment slowly, again announcing themselves as Quincy police officers.

Once inside, with his service weapon drawn, Officer Francis did not initially see anyone. Then, a male known to them from past incidents appeared in the hallway positioned in a fighting stance, with fists clenched, red faced, breathing heavily with a highly agitated appearance. The suspect stated "What the & *%$ do you want?" The officers noted the suspect appeared to be much more muscular than the last time they had seen him.

Knowing that the suspect had a history of fighting with the Police, in combination with his agitated state, the suspect was ordered to the ground. After the suspect complied, Officer Francis holstered his weapon and then handcuffed him. The suspect screamed at the officers, demanding they leave as he kept trying to get up. He was extremely agitated, wanting to know what he was being arrested for.

LT. DAN MINTON

The suspect was moved onto a couch, where it was noted he had large scratches on the left side of his neck and upper chest. When asked how he got the marks, the suspect said he was in a fight with his friend Mark. Officer Lanergan then began checking the rest of the apartment for additional suspects as well as victims.

Officer Lanergan went into the bedroom and called Communications via the police radio requesting an ambulance be dispatched immediately. With the suspect handcuffed, Officer Francis joined Officer Lanergan in the bedroom, where he saw a young female lying in the bed in a semiconscious state.

Officer Francis attempted to check the vital conditions of the female (i.e. pulse and breathing) when she reached out to him with her left hand. Officer Francis held the female's left hand as she attempted to speak but was unable to due to very labored breathing. The female had large red marks on her throat and neck area consistent with a recent trauma.

When asked if she could speak, the victim responded by crying. Concerned with the female's breathing and crying accented with wheezing, the officers became increasingly worried that she had trauma to her airway that could potentially lead to her not being able to breathe. Officer Francis radioed for additional Officers to take the agitated suspect away and that the ambulance hasten its response their location.

While awaiting the arrival of the ambulance, the Officers attempted to calm the female and ascertain how she had become injured. The female whispered, "He choked me." The victim identified her assailant by name through labored breathing and crying.

Upon the arrival of the ambulance EMT's, Officer Francis advised the suspect, a 27-year-old Quincy resident that he was under arrest for "Attempted Murder by Strangulation." Officer Lanergan, along with Lieutenant Kevin Tobin, who had arrived on the scene, escorted the suspect from the apartment to an awaiting cruiser.

Officer Francis was able to determine from interviewing the stabilized victim that she leased the apartment with her boyfriend/suspect and recently became afraid of him because he has physically assaulted her in the past.

The victim no longer stayed at the apartment due to the physical abuse, but went back to try and rekindle the relationship, believing that the suspect has changed. The victim slept over and woke up in the morning to discover that the suspect had overslept and was late for work.

Once awakened, the suspect became upset and went to the living room where his friend Mark was sleeping on the couch. The suspect then dragged Mark off the couch and began beating him. The victim screamed at the suspect to stop, so he did so that he could grab her by the throat and choke her while screaming at her, "Mind your own*^%#$% business." The suspect then released his grasp on the female victim and went back to beating Mark. The female victim ran for the door with her cell phone, but the suspect saw this and yelled at her, "You better not call the police."

She assured him that she was not calling the police as she dialed "911" on her cell phone. The suspect, apparently not believing this, grabbed her again by the throat, declaring, "I'd rather kill you than go back to jail." He then dragged the victim by the neck, in a chokehold and into the bathroom.

When the suspect smashed the cell phone, the victim attempted to free herself but this led to the suspect punching her in the back of the head, causing her to fall to the ground. The victim said that the next thing she remembered was waking up in bed with the suspect straddling over her, as if trying to resuscitate her.

The victim said the suspect is currently out on $10,000 bail from a criminal case where the suspect assaulted her in Weymouth. She said the money came from the suspect's grandparents. Officer Francis confirmed the suspect was out on bail and with the assistance of Court Prosecutor/Captain Michael Miller; they were able to hold the suspect

Sorensen-Torpey Pace Presidents To Fast Start

By SEAN BRENNAN

The young Quincy Presidents girls' softball team is off to a fast start this spring. After finishing last week's three-game schedule with a 2-1 record, Quincy's record currently stands at 5-2 overall, and a perfect 2-0 in the Atlantic Coast League.

"As young as we are as a team this season, I am happy with the progress we are making and the start that we have had," said head coach Mike Sedar. "We had a good week last week. We finished with our first two league wins and are moving in the right direction."

The Presidents closed the week by dropping a 5-0 non-league game to Stoughton High School, but the game was closer than the final score indicates.

"On Saturday, we played Stoughton and the score was 0-0 heading into the late innings," said Sedar. "They scored five runs on us late. We had some young mistakes on defense, but we have to put that game behind us and continue to look to improve on what we did wrong."

The loss to Stoughton aside, the Presidents picked up two huge league wins last week.

On April 16, Quincy, behind ten strikeouts from freshman pitcher Kori Sorensen, defeated Whitman-Hanson 4-1. Sorensen allowed two hits on her way to her fifth victory of the year.

Senior captain Marybeth Torpey smacked two homeruns and drove in three runs. Third baseman Julie Yee finished the game 2-for-4.

SOFTBALL

"Torpey stepped up offensively and Sorensen just continues to impress on the mound," added Sedar. "It was a nice win against a strong league opponent."

The Presidents started the week with another solid performance against Plymouth North on April 15. And once again, it was the pitching of Sorensen and the hitting by Torpey that propelled Quincy to the 4-2 victory.

Sorensen went the distance, striking out 11 while allowing only four hits. Torpey (3-for-3, triple) and senior right fielder Janelle Driscoll (1-for-2) led the offense.

"I was happy with our play against Plymouth North," said Sedar. "They are one of the teams we will be competing with all season long in the Atlantic Coast League and it was a great way for us to start the league portion of our schedule."

With five wins in their first seven games, Quincy is on pace to make it back to post-season play. But the story of the season so far has been the pitching of Sorensen. Through seven games, she has walked just one batter, and looks to be getting stronger as the spring moves along.

"I knew she was going to be a good pitcher, but she has been better than expected," said Sedar. "She is a strike machine. She can throw four pitches. Her rise ball is really good; she can throw a drop ball; a deadly changeup and she can spot her fastball."

"Her ability to locate and throw any pitch she wants has allowed us to set our defense to what pitch we call her to throw. She is a tough kid and fields her position well. She has been huge for us this season."

At 5-2, Sedar is pleased with his team's progress, but knows they still have room to improve, especially on offense. But things look bright for this up-and-coming ballclub.

"Like I said, I am happy with where this team is at. We are very young and don't really have a bench or depth. But the future looks bright for Quincy softball and this year we are taking the steps to make that progression happen quickly."

The Presidents played Hingham High School on Tuesday afternoon and are scheduled to play Plymouth South HS at home (Mitchell/McCoy) on April 28 at 4 p.m.

The much-anticipated Quincy-North Quincy showdown will take place on Friday, May 2 at Mitchell/McCoy at 4 p.m.

Raiders Finish Week At 1-1

North Quincy finished last week with a 1-1 record. The team lost to Plymouth North High School on April 17 5-3 and defeated Marshfield HS 8-2 on April 15.

The Red Raiders turned in a solid effort against undefeated Plymouth North HS on April 17, but in the end, dropped a 5-3 decision. North Quincy's record now stands at 2-3 overall.

Sophomore Keith Morreale pitched six strong innings, allowing all five runs on five hits. Morreale had a difficult time pitching out of the bottom of the first inning, but fought through it and stayed mentally tough, coming back out in the second to pitch effectively.

Freshman Colin Ryan got the North Quincy offense started with a stand-up RBI triple in the fourth inning. This triple scored junior Matt Rodriguez who had walked and stolen his seventh base of the young season to get into scoring position.

The Raiders played another good defensive game with John Ainsley, Mike Horgan and Alex Tragellis playing great in the field.

Against Marshfield, senior pitcher Mike Horgan struck out 11 and allowed no earned runs in seven innings of work.

Sophomore third baseman Ryan Louis went 2-for-3 with a bases loaded double, and junior center fielder Joe Vialpando went 1-for-3 with two RBI and two runs scored.

Over school vacation week, the Red Raiders play their first stretch of home dates at Adams Field. On Monday (April 21), the Raiders played East Bridgewater HS, on Tuesday (April 22) the team played Milton HS, and today (April 24) the Raiders will be playing in the North Quincy/Quincy High School Baseball Tournament.

The annual event starts at 10 a.m. at Adams Field.

Quincy Wins One, Loses One

The Quincy Presidents began last week by dropping a 16-0 decision to Plymouth North High School on April 15, but the team rebounded nicely with a 4-2 come-from-behind win over Atlantic Coast League foe Whitman-Hanson on April 17.

Against Whitman-Hanson HS, senior pitcher Mike LeBel threw seven solid innings for Quincy (3-2 overall, 2-1 in the ACL) allowing only four hits while striking out nine batters to improve his record to 2-0 on the season. LeBel's strong pitching effort was needed as the Presidents had used three pitchers in the Plymouth North game.

"I wasn't sure what to do because I used three pitchers on Tuesday," said head coach Mike Draicchio. "To bounce back like we did was huge in keeping us on the right track."

Quincy fell behind 2-0, but a four-run fourth inning accounted for the final score.

The Presidents were scheduled to play a non-league game on April 22 against Archbishop Williams High School and will be playing host with North Quincy today (April 24) in the North Quincy/Quincy High School at Adams Field.

The first game gets underway at 10 a.m.

"The local community has been very supportive of the Lions Club's efforts to

SPOTLIGHT ON HEALTH & FITNESS

Stomp Out Those Excuses

Nutrition News

(NAPS) – If you're exercising more excuses than muscle, you're not alone. Millions of Americans understand the benefits of exercise, yet many of us spend more time making excuses than moving.

"Exercise is probably the closest things we have to a magic pill for keeping our bodies and minds healthy," says Joe Moore, president and CEO of the International Health, Racquet & Sportsclub Association (IHRSA).

Here are some excuses that often hold us back:

"I just don't have the time to exercise"

Sure, you do. Any physical activity is better than none. Just 15 to 30 minutes a day can have health benefits. Stretch and run in place during TV time. Start taking the stairs or park farther out. "I'm too old to exercise"

Says who? As long as your doctor gives you the green light, you can exercise at any age and benefit from it. Exercise is about total health including quality of life, energy level and mental outlook. Research shows that exercise is likely the best prescription for healthy aging and many health clubs offer programs for seniors.

"I don't know how to get started"

That's the hardest part for many of us, but it doesn't have to be. Start off slowly and work your way up. It's okay to start at 5 to 10 minutes a day. Do a little more as you can, aiming for 150 to 200 minutes a week, and think about joining a local health club. Personal trainers and a staff of professionals are there to help. They can provide the knowledge and support many of us need.

Stomp Out Those Excuses

This May, health clubs across the country are standing ready to help stomp out the excuses by opening their doors for free for several days as part of the Get Active America! Program. You'll have access to equipment, classes, personal trainers and a highly supportive environment.

Hints To Help You Win At Losing

(NAPS) – If you've long feared you've a slim chance of slimming down, these do's and don'ts may prove easy to swallow:

- Don't give up your favorite foods. Just adjust the portions. A serving of meat should be about the size of a deck of cards; one fruit of vegetables, about the size of a tennis ball.

- Don't gobble. The more slowly you eat, the faster your body realizes it's full.

- Do get the recommended five to nine servings of fruits and vegetables a day. They can fill you up without filling you out as much as other foods can.

- Don't give up protein. Researchers recommend a diet higher in protein and moderate in carbs for weight loss.

- Do exercise. Walk more, take the stairs and try to get at least 20 minutes of vigorous exercise at least three times a week.

- Don't get discouraged. Even if you slip up or your weight loss reaches a plateau, sticking to your diet and exercise regimen will pay off in the end.

- Do eat several small meals a day. Studies show four to five meals or snacks can control appetite.

- Don't forget to reward yourself. New clothes to fit your slimmer self of a fat piggy bank with money you'd otherwise spend on snacks can lead to non-food-related satisfaction.

- Do drink plenty of water and other low-calorie beverages, such as fruit juice. For instance, you can get fat-free, cholesterol-free Sun Shower 100 percent Nectarine Juices, with no added sugar or preservatives. They're less acidic than orange juice, high in potassium, beta-carotene, vitamin C, phytonutrients and antioxidants, and have only 90 calories per 8-ounce serving—which equals two servings of fruit. There are eight flavors: Nectarine, Nectarine Berry, Nectarine Mango, Nectarine Acai, Nectarine Pomegranate, Nectarine Grape Orange and Stamina Superfood.

DENTISTRY for the 21st century

by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

SEALING YOUR TEETH'S FATE

One of the most effective decay prevention techniques available to children (and adults) involves the use of "sealants." As the name suggests, a dental sealant is a plastic coating that is applied to the chewing surfaces of the back teeth (pre-molars and molars), where decay is most likely to occur. Sealants are applied as a liquid coating, which quickly hardens into a thin shield over chewing surfaces. These surfaces are most vulnerable to tooth decay because they have natural grooves and pits that collect food and germs that can cause decay. Sealants effectively fill in these uneven surfaces, sealing out any bacteria and debris. Children who get sealants have demonstrably fewer cavities in their back teeth.

Sealants hold up well under the force of normal chewing and usually last several years before a reapplication is needed. Remember, sealants work well, but they can't keep your child, or you, cavity-free without some help. Good oral care at home is still very important. It's also important for adults who have received sealants to continue to practice good oral hygiene by brushing twice a day, flossing at least once a day, and visiting a dentist regularly. We believe in preventive care for the whole family. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street. Please call 617-479-6220 to schedule an appointment. We offer the services of anesthesiology with a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Visit us on the web at www.quincydentist.com.

P.S. Parents are advised to have sealants applied to their children's teeth as soon as the permanent molars fully erupt.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) You easily handle your tasks this week, thanks to those high energy levels that never seem to run down. But pace yourself, Lamb, for the demanding week ahead.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) With the arts dominant this week, you might want to pick up any of those creative projects you've neglected. A workplace situation benefits from some fresh insight.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Music helps replenish your energy levels. Play your CDs if you must. But a live concert could prove more rewarding, especially if you go with that very special someone.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Close friends reach out to help perk up your lagging social life. That workplace situation also eases, leaving you time to do more fun things by week's end.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) A revelation clears up that perplexing job-related problem. Some changes will have to be made, which, no doubt, will meet with the Big Cat's roaring approval. Good luck.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Reaching out to someone in need is the noble thing to do. But try to restrain the temptation to add a lecture — no matter how well-intended — to your good deed.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) There could be another tough challenge to face before the month is over. But all that hard work is winning you lots of important recognition from your peers.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Keeping to your work schedule could prove difficult with all those personal distractions. Best advice: Stay with it. There'll be time later for socializing.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Jumping hurdles this week might be vexing for most, but not for the sage Sagittarian, who recognizes that meeting a challenge can open up opportunities.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) More obstacles might be thrown in your path as you try to finalize a new agreement. But the sure-footed Goat ignores the stumbling blocks and stays the course.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) We know the Water Bearer takes pleasure in giving to others. But why not let someone else enjoy the experience too by accepting that offer of help?

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) You might find you need to ease up on your hectic schedule this week. Don't fret about it. It could be helpful to take a break and replenish your energy supply.

BORN THIS WEEK: You have a way of finding practical solutions to complex problems, and you do it with grace.

OBITUARIES

Margaret B. Liscombe, 94

Worked For Gillette, Kresge's

A funeral Mass for Margaret B. (McVey) Liscombe, 94, of Moodus, CT, formerly of Quincy, a retired Gillette employee, was celebrated April 18 in Holy Trinity Parish at the Most Blessed Sacrament Church, Quincy.

Mrs. Liscombe died April 12 at the Chestelm Health and Rehabilitation Center in Moodus, CT after a long illness.

Born and raised in South Boston, she was educated in South Boston schools. She had lived in Quincy for 53 years until moving to Moodus, CT in 2002 to live with her son, Arnold.

Mrs. Liscombe had worked for the Gillette Safety Razor Company in South Boston and the former Kresge's in Quincy Square.

She had volunteered as a Cub Scout den mother, was also involved in Boy Scouts and was an active member of the Most Blessed Sacrament Church in Quincy, the Thomas J. Fitzgerald VFW Post in South Boston and the Henry J. Dixon VFW Post in Dorchester.

in lieu of bail.

Although the victim mentioned, "Mark," there was no indication there was someone else in the apartment according to the officers. They did find a wallet with the name on the license being "Mark" and this was taken into evidence in order to pursue additional assault and battery charges against the suspect.

Sergeant J.P. Kelly found a cell phone believed to be Mark's and was able to contact him.

"Mark" denied being in the apartment or having been assaulted by the suspect.

Based on the statements of the victim, the suspect was additionally charged with "Kidnapping" and "Intimidation of a Witness."

Detective William Monteith arrived on scene to collect evidence of the crimes. During this process, he found numerous syringes, glass vials and pills believed to be associated with steroids. The drugs were taken as evidence and the suspect was additionally charged with, "Possession of Class E Steroids."

Detective Cindy Walsh also collected evidence at the apartment and noted that the bathroom door had screws out of it and the wood paneling had been damaged. She also conducted a follow-up interview with the victim and learned that she was held under the blankets on the bed when the Police knocked at the door. She said that she is fearful of what the suspect will do when he gets out of jail. Again, the victim was advised of all the options available to her as a victim of domestic violence. Nice Work!

RECENT SCAM: Debbie Steele of Quincy called to tell me that she received a telephone solicitation from "Global International Sweepstakes Company" out of Jamaica. She was informed that she won 2.5 million dollars and all she had to do was send $475.00 "for clearing and customs" to an address in Jamaica. Debbie knew this was a scam, but wanted readers to be aware.

Remember, if you didn't play the lottery, how could you win? If you just won that large amount of money, why wouldn't they just take out the "fee" out of your winnings? Caution: The first three numbers of the company's telephone number is "876" which is similar to toll free numbers, but it is the exchange for Jamaica, which may result in exorbitant fees on your next telephone bill.

TAX REFUND AND TAX REBATE SCAM: Beware telephone calls claiming to be the IRS (Internal Revenue Service) requesting you social security number and bank account info so that your return will get back to you faster with "Direct Deposit". The IRS does not initiate business over the telephone - it is done by mail. The Quincy Police Crime Prevention Unit recommends "Direct Deposit" as a preferred method of receiving payment from tax returns and rebates, as well as having your paycheck automatically deposited into your account.

cal business leaders have joined in their efforts to raise funds from area companies in support of the campaign.

"As a physician and a former patient, I recognize the value of investing in our community hospital," said Clifford Gluck, M.D., Milton Hospital's Chief of Urology, who recently contributed generously to the Generations campaign. "I'm so impressed with what Milton Hospital has achieved already with the initial phases of the capital campaign, and look forward to seeing the entire project come to fruition."

As the founding physician of Mass Bay Urological Associates, which serves Milton and many surrounding communities, Dr. Gluck has strong ties to Milton Hospital and joins the many physicians, hospital leaders and members of the wider community that have generously contributed nearly $2.5 million to date—bringing the hospital halfway to its goal of raising $5 million. Once this goal is fulfilled, the hospital will be able to complete renovations of the existing operating rooms and add two new operating rooms this spring—an important milestone for serving the growing community.

"We are immensely proud that leaders within the hospital community such as Dr. Gluck believe so strongly in our mission," said Bruce Alexander, chairman of Milton Hospital's capital campaign. Woman In 'Fair' Condition After Leap From Fire

A North Quincy woman remained in "fair" condition at Massachusetts General Hospital Tuesday, four days after she jumped eight to 10 feet from a second floor window of her burning home at 69 Arnold Rd.

Julianne Princiotta apparently suffered back injuries in the fall as flames licked out the windows and a thick black smoke engulfed the single family home just off Quincy Shore Drive.

Deputy Fire Chief Jeffrey Starr estimated damage at $300,000. The cause of the 11:30 o'clock Friday morning fire is under investigation by the Quincy Fire Department and the State Fire Marshal's office.

Princiotta was lying on her back on the back deck of the house, attended to by her husband, Kevin Barry, when the first responders arrived. Barry was uninjured.

Nearly 40 Sites Including Furnace Brook

1,500 Volunteers Ready For Cleaner, Greener Cleanup

More than 1,500 volunteers are expected to take part in the 19th annual Cleaner, Greener Day cleanup Saturday.

Nearly 40 sites have been designated, including for the first time, a major stretch of the Furnace Brook.

City crews will combine with volunteers to clear the brook of dead trees, trash, and other debris that has piled up one of Quincy's most valuable natural resources.

"Furnace Brook is a treasure, and we do everything possible to keep it that way," said Mayor Thomas Koch. "It is a great, and needed, addition to our list of sites."

Volunteers will spruce up the city's beaches, marshes, school grounds, parks and open spaces from 9 a.m. to noon.

Residents are encouraged to join a cleanup site in their neighborhood and there is still time to designate additional sites. The Park Department will also support the cleanup effort by providing the necessary tools including rakes, brooms, bags, gloves and other equipment. In addition the Department of Public Works will be on hand to haul refuse and other debris collected throughout the day.

Following the cleanup, Mayor Koch will host an appreciation cookout where T-shirts will be distributed to all volunteers at the Park & Recreation Complex, One Merrymount Parkway, at 12:30 p.m.

For information on Cleaner, Greener or to organize a cleanup site, contact the Quincy Park Department at 617-376-1251 or jconso@ci.quincy.ma.us.

Koch Optimistic On Combined Trash Contract

Quincy, Braintree and Weymouth Mayors are continuing to negotiate for a trash collection contract that will combine services for all three communities.

A decision is expected soon.

Mayor Thomas Koch is optimistic that a contract agreement can be reached.

"The process is ongoing and we expect a positive outcome," he said.

The decision to discuss combining trash collection services comes at a time when all three communities are looking for ways to save money for taxpayers, Koch said.

Finance Committee Approves 7-1

Tax Break For First 'Green Building'

By LAURA GRIFFIN

The Finance Committee voted 7-1 Monday to approve a tax break for 100 Hancock St., North Quincy, in the city's first TIF agreement offering tax exemptions for green or environmentally friendly building renovations and upgrades.

"This would be the first green building in the city," Planning Director Dennis Harrington said prior to the vote.

Under TIF or the Tax Increment Financing agreement, the city will allow a six-percent exemption on the increased value of the building due to environmental improvements.

The exemption is expected to be $50,000 the first year and a reduced amount in each of the following years. The savings will be passed on to the building tenants.

Taxes on the building at a 22 percent rate, when fully occupied, would still increase from the current $412,000 a year to $1.1 million a year over 20 years.

These improvements must meet specific standards for such items as reducing energy needs, water conservation and reduced indoor pollutants.

The vote must now be formally confirmed by the city council.

Harrington has long supported the tax break program as a way of encouraging commercial investment and modernization of the city's large stock of old buildings.

"They're going to be a drag on the city," Harrington said of the

Who Is The 'Mayor' Of Houghs Neck?

The Houghs Neck Community Council is planning to hold a contest to select a Mayor of Houghs Neck.

No, the Neck is not a breakaway province, the Kosovo of Quincy, although some folks in other parts of the city think it sometimes acts that way.

The title "Mayor of Houghs Neck" will be an honorary designation only with no political clout, much like similar offices in South Boston and Dorchester.

"By hosting this contest, we hope to promote the spirit of The Neck and raise money for programs sponsored by the Houghs Neck Community Council, renovation of the Council Center and the Council Scholarship Fund," said Council President Margaret Laforest.

"We invite you to start a campaign, host events and coffee hours, sell Houghs Neck merchandise, whatever your imagination can think of to raise money and have fun doing it.

"Your events will be promoted by the Council and we will assist you without showing any preference over any candidate.

"The candidate who raises the most 'campaign money' between now and July 1 earns the privilege and bragging rights to be called Mayor of Houghs Neck and will be awarded the perpetual Houghs Neck Flounder Trophy."

The new mayor will be "inaugurated" at the July 3 Family Fun Day at Edgewater Beach.

Candidates can nominate themselves by calling Laforest at 617-471-1806.

Quincy Medical Center Participating Guidelines Program Improves Stroke Care

Quincy Medical Center is participating in the American Stroke Association's Get With The GuidelinesSM-Stroke (GWTG-Stroke) program, with the goal of improving the overall quality of care for stroke patients by improving acute stroke treatment and preventing future strokes and cardiovascular events.

Get with the Guidelines is a partnership with the AHA, the American Stroke Association and the Brain Attack Association to improve quality measures in three modalities: Heart Failure, Coronary Artery Disease and Stroke. In 2007, QMC participated in and was recognized in two of the three GWTG modalities: Heart Failure and Coronary Artery Disease (CAD). This year, QMC is participating in all three modalities, including GWTG-Stroke.

GWTG-Stroke was developed to help hospitals employ proven science-based treatment guidelines, including those developed by the American Stroke Association, American Heart Association and Brain Attack Coalition. These guidelines address acute stroke management, primary prevention of cardiovascular diseases, secondary prevention of strokes and the establishment of primary stroke centers.

As a GWTG-Stroke participating hospital, Quincy Medical Center is encouraged to develop a comprehensive system for providing rapid diagnosis and treatment of stroke when patients are admitted to the emergency department. This includes always being equipped to provide brain-imaging scans, making neurologists available to conduct patient evaluations and using clot-busting medications when appropriate.

Quincy Medical Center is also increasing its efforts to prevent secondary strokes through the aggressive use of medications such as statins and anti-platelets as indicated in the secondary stroke prevention guidelines. Other methods include the treatment of atrial fibrillation and atherosclerosis and management of smoking cessation, weight, exercise, diabetes and cholesterol.

Through GWTG-Stroke, the American Stroke Association provides Quincy Medical Center training and staffing recommendations, care maps, discharge protocols, standing orders, data-collection and measurement tools. The program also facilitates creating and sharing best practices among participating hospitals.

Mayor Questions Location B.J.'s Wholesale Eyes Crown Colony Site

B.J.'s Wholesale Club, Inc. believes a retail warehouse at Crown Colony is a good move but Mayor Thomas Koch is not convinced.

The company's attorney Edward Fleming filed all the papers for the move and a $4000 filing fee on April 16.

Fleming applied for a Special Permit for his client, B.J.'s Wholesale Club, Inc., to locate a retail warehouse at 200 Crown Colony Drive, the former site of the Patriot Ledger's printing plant.

"I'm not convinced that it's the right location for them," Koch said.

At their last meeting, the City Council received official notice of the company's plans through City Clerk Joseph Shea who notified councillors of the application for a Special Permit.

Councillors will consider the request when they meet as the city's Special Permit Granting Authority.

Councillors Seek Update On Safety Plans for City Parks

Ward 5 Councillor Douglas Gutro requested hearings on safety issues at the city's parks after citing a recent incident at Merrymount Park.

Gutro described a brush fire that occurred Thursday, April 6 and said he wants to be certain, "The park is properly protected."

The blaze was quickly extinguished by firefighters but the incident disturbed area residents as did recent incidents at Faxon Park, according to Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi who said he'd considered a similar resolution.

Councillors agreed that the issue deserves study and sent Gutro's resolution to the Parks and Recreation Committee.

The committee will hold hearings on the incidents and seek a report on efforts to ensure that the parks remain safe, and clean for all.

Councillors Want Explanation

New Meter Fees Up To $3,000 Outrage Large Building Owners

By LAURA GRIFFIN

Many of the city's large building owners are outraged over new water meter maintenance fees ranging from $93 to over $3000 that were tacked on to their water and sewer bills on the March billing, according to Councillor Michael McFarland.

McFarland told the Finance Committee that he's heard complaints about the new fees from the "owners of condos, apartment buildings, senior citizen buildings, and large commercial buildings."

"It's a pretty staggering bump," said Ward 5 Councillor Douglas Gutro who reported similar complaints from the owners of condominiums and apartment buildings in his area.

"I never remember a fee being put into place for these meters," McFarland said Monday during the Committee's review of the $32 million Honeywell Energy program initiated last year.

Gutro's recollections were similar, "I thought I'd read everything." In fact, Gutro directed Jim Freeman, Project Manager for Honeywell, to provide documentation on the meter fees.

"I want something in writing," Gutro requested a full report including the cost to the city of maintaining water meter and the history of the fee.

Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi, also, questioned the new fees. He cited state laws which prohibit charging a higher rate for fees than the services actually cost the city.

McFarland said that it appears that the fees were legally advertised in mid-August of 2007 when the council was not in session. However, there was no further mention of the fees during discussions of the energy program.

As a result of the councillors' complaints, Mayor Thomas Koch promised to review the fee structure which was put in place prior to his administration.

"Much like the City Council, the administration was not aware that any kind of fee structure was part of the Honeywell contract signed last year. This issue is now part of our overall review of this contract and its provisions," said Christopher Walker, spokesman for Koch.

The committee also reviewed the current status of the $32 million Honeywell Energy Program, progress on installations, and discussed the interest rate on the bond.

HBO's John Adams: A Missing Scene

HBO's "John Adams" TV mini-series racked up rave reviews.

"A blockbuster," says Mark Carey, director of Discover Quincy, the city's tourism agency.

And, he notes: "HBO told me the opening audience was comparable to that of The Sopranos."

The impact is expected to result in the city's biggest tourism boom in its history this summer.

But the seven-part series disappointed me a little. It missed what would have been a great scene.

The series, of course, was based on David McCullough's Pulitzer Prize biography of Adams published in 2001.

The book, with sales near three million, sent the tourist numbers soaring from an estimated 89,000 in 2000 to some 227,000 last year.

The mini-series, seen by millions, is expected to bring many, many new and many, many more visitors to the city.

McCullough's book also rightfully boosted Adams' status in history and took him out from behind Thomas Jefferson's shadow, where some historians had placed him and forgot him.

Paul Giamatti and Laura Linney turned in convincing and what could be award winning performances as John and Abigail Adams.

Overall, it was an outstanding series although it seemed to take a little liberty here and there with McCullough's book.

But the thing that disappointed me the most was something we didn't even get to see. What I think would have been a most memorable scene but never made it to the screen.

The town of Quincy and the country was preparing to celebrate the 50th anniversary of the Declaration of Independence July 4, 1826.

Four days before the actual celebration, the chairman of the planning committee called on Adams at "Peacefield," the family home on Adams Street often today called the Adams Mansion.

He asked the second President and patriot if he would give a 50th anniversary July 4th toast to his fellow Quincy citizens.

Adams replied: "I will give you independence forever!"

Asked if he would like to add to that, he declared: "Not a syllable."

I think that would have been a most fitting and memorable scene.

Independence was what Adams was all about. Although short physically, he was a patriotic giant in winning this country's independence and preserving it.

Jefferson wrote the Declaration of Independence, but Adams was the one that pushed it through the Continental Congress to adoption.

Jefferson himself acknowledged that when he praised Adams as "...the most efficient agent in procuring a public Declaration of Independence."

You might say Adams delivered the country's birth certificate.

Another thing that bothered me about the HBO mini-

CAREY

PAUL GIAMATTI and Laura Linney as John and Abigail Adams in the HBO mini-series.

series was the fact Quincy was never mentioned.

Maybe it was to avoid viewer confusion. Quincy was part of Braintree in the early episodes.

But in the seventh and final entitled "Peacefield," Quincy was the town of Quincy. They could have at least mentioned Quincy at that point as the location of "Peacefield."

But Carey doesn't think the omission will affect visitors.

"They'll find us," he says as he and the city get ready for a "Discover Quincy, Celebrate Adams" campaign.

That July 4, 1826 was a day of irony: The 50th anniversary of the Declaration of Independence and the deaths of the two men most responsible for it.

Adams was stricken in his favorite wing chair in his second floor study at "Peacefield."

Adams and Jefferson, once close allies, had a falling out but reconciled in later years through the efforts of Abigail as peacemaker.

Among Adams' last words as he lay dying that day were "Jefferson survives." He thought Jefferson had outlived him. But actually Jefferson had died earlier that same day at Monticello in Virginia.

Adams was three months from his 91st birthday. Jefferson was 83.

Adams survived Abigail, his wife of 54 years, by eight years.

He lived to see his son, John Quincy Adams, become the sixth president in 1825. Abigail, the first woman to be the wife of one U.S. president and the mother of a second, never knew that second honor. She died in 1818.

John Quincy was in Washington when his father died but did not learn of his death until several days later.

A letter from the family informing him that his father was gravely ill and dated July 4-didn't arrive at the White House until July 9.

He and his son, John, immediately set out for Quincy by carriage and enroute was told of his father's death.

They arrived here July 13. John Adams' funeral had already been held July 7.

News traveled slowly in those days, long before radio and television. No such thing as instant news bulletins.

If there had been, imagine the flurry all day that July 4th with the media-especially network and cable TV-staked out at "Peacefield" here and Monticello in Virginia.

Imagine the bold newspaper headlines: "Adams, Jefferson Dead," "Jefferson, Adams Die On Their Day."

The HBO mini-series should bring on the tourists by the thousands.

But let's just hope the price of gasoline-on its way to $4 and probably higher -doesn't keep a lot of them home.

Scenes From Yesterday

Wollaston, Mass. Metropolitan Boulevard

THIS OLD POSTCARD is a view of the Metropolitan Boulevard, now known as Quincy Shore Drive, just after it was built 100 years ago in 1908. In the distance was Rye Island where the roadway ended at today's Fenno Street. It wasn't until 1912 that Rye Island was leveled and the Boulevard was continued another two-thirds of a mile over Black's Creek to Furnace Brook Parkway. The 24-foot wide roadway shown here was built by building a dike in the salt marshes along Quincy's shore. The fence on the right was along the steep drop to the marsh below, while on the left the fill was sloped towards the water thus creating what we know now as Wollaston Beach. Before the roadway was built, there were only three small beaches along the waterfront. This view is across from today's Beachcomber. The low cottages on the right are still extant and today Tony's Clam Shop is in the second house beyond them. In the distance the gambrel roofed house was most recently home to Matilda's snack shop. A 'Thank You' From Joanne Dondero

I would like to take this opportunity to thank the Quincy City Council, the Ward 5 Community Association and Senator Morrissey for the distinguished awards they have presented to me over the past several weeks as the proprietor of Abigail's Crossing Gifts. These wards were truly a surprise and an honor bestowed upon me and I appreciate them tremendously.

I would also like to thank my faithful staff who have always been more like family to me. We have had many great years together of sharing laughs and tears with each other. I could not have accomplished what I had without your help. We were a team! I hope we continue to be a part of each other's lives. I will miss you.

I certainly cannot forget our customers! If it were not for the support of our faithful customers, Abigail's Crossing Gifts would not have existed as long as it had. I thank you all so very much from the bottom of my heart. You have made my life richer and fuller.

Lastly, I would like to thank my husband Hank, my kids, Jonna, Jennifer, Mark and Caroline and my family. They have always supported my dream and me. Their encouragement, love, patience and support do not go unrecognized. It is because of my love for them that this was an easy decision.

My years as a business owner in Quincy Center were very special to me. It was a challenge and an accomplishment. It was something that I put my whole heart into. I have met many wonderful people along the way and have so many memories to carry me through the rest of my life. Now it is time to start a new chapter in my life and I am very excited about it. I certainly will miss my usual routine and everybody in it, but I know that I will still be very busy doing other things now.

I wish Mary Ellen and Christian Boussy, the new owners of Barrett's Gifts (at my old location), the very best of luck in their new endeavor as gift shop owners in Quincy. I know the people of Quincy will be very supportive of them as they were to me, and who knows...you may get a surprise once and awhile to see who will be ringing you up behind the counter!

Budget Cut Blamed On Marsh Opposition

By FRANK McCAULEY

Dr. Joseph McDermott, chairman of the Conservation Commission, said that his budget was cut because the commission opposed the filling of a section of the Montclair marshes for a $4 million dollar bakery.

Rep. Joseph E. Brett, chairman of the Committee to Save the Montclair Marshes said that two scientists hired by the committee say the marsh is in good condition.

The 68-acre marsh south of the Neponset River and north of Harriet Avenue was the proposed site of Kasanof's Bakery. (Editor's note: The bakery was never built, the parcel in question became the location of the State Street South complex.)

COUNCIL APPROVES SHIPYARD PARKING AREA

A rezoning request allowing General Dynamics to convert an unused lot into a parking area was approved by the City Council by a 7 to 1 vote; Councillor Clifford H. Marshall was in opposition.

The council approved the rezoning only after receiving assurances by General Dynamics attorney Jordan Zisk that the company will take several steps to isolate the parking area from adjacent one-family homes.

Marie's Kitchen

Brenda's Peanut Butter And Jelly Cupcakes

One Sunday my husband and I went to visit my brother Phil and sister-in-law Teresa while their family had just finished their weekly Sunday dinner.

As it was dessert time by the time we got there, their daughter-in-law Brenda was serving the children peanut butter and jelly cupcakes. Who doesn't like that combo? So naturally I asked for the recipe and so enjoyed it, I had to share it with all of you.

PEANUT BUTTER AND JELLY CUPCAKES

- 2 1/2 cups flour
- 3 teaspoons baking powder
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 stick unsalted butter (room temperature)
- 1 1/2 cups light brown sugar
- 3/4 cup chunky peanut butter
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 3 eggs
- 1 cup half and half cream (fat free if desired)
- 4 ounces favorite jelly (about 6 heaping tablespoons)

Preheat oven to 350 degrees

Mix the flour, baking powder and salt together and set aside.

Cream the butter and sugar. Add the peanut butter and vanilla and continue beating until well blended. Add the eggs, one at a time, mixing well after each one. Then alternately, add the half and half and dry ingredients beating well.

Dollop the jelly over the cupcake batter and swirl into the batter with a long knife or spatula. Don't overmix.

Spoon the batter into cupcake papers, filling each about 2/3 full. Bake for 25-30 minutes. Remove from oven and cool.

PEANUT BUTTER FROSTING

- 1/2 stick unsalted butter, room temperature
- 1/2 cup smooth peanut butter
- 2 cups powdered sugar
- 2 tablespoons milk

Cream the butter, peanut butter and sugar together. Gradually add the milk and beat until creamy. Add more milk if needed. Ice cupcakes, add a swirl of jelly, and sprinkle with chopped peanuts.

Proposal Needs School Committee ApprovalCouncil Awaits School Committee Vote On Centralized Maintenance Dept.

City Councillors last week postponed discussion of Mayor Thomas Koch's proposal to centralize all of the city's building and maintenance departments pending a vote on the plan by the School Committee.

Under Koch's proposal, the centralized department would coordinate the construction, alteration, repair and maintenance of all public buildings, including libraries and schools.

However, City Solicitor James Timmins told the councillors that state law requires that the School Committee first approve the inclusion of school buildings in the new department and relinquish their authority over school building maintenance.

Otherwise, Timmins said that school buildings can not be included under any centralized department. The School Committee's next meeting is May 7.

Following Timmins' statements, Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi suggested that the council delay advertising the change in the city's code until after a School Committee vote.

However, Councillor John Keenan said the proposal will be included in the mayor's budget and any delay could affect the timeline on budget discussions. Councillors agreed to advertise the proposal.

Under Koch's plan, the centralized department would function under one commissioner of building, construction and maintenance and would involve no additional jobs.

This commissioner who must be appointed or re-appointed annually would "supervise the construction, alteration, repair and maintenance of all public buildings, including the Thomas Crane Public Library."

In describing the benefits of the plan, Koch said, "This proposal will streamline building maintenance to ensure we place the right resources in the right places, and ultimately, save taxpayer money with long-range planning."

After the meeting, Chris Walker, the mayor's policy director, said that there would be no savings in the 2009 budget but added, "Down the road, you can expect savings when you streamline departments."

A fund-raiser for the Vin Moscardelli Scholarship Fund will be held Sunday, May 10 from 1 to 5 p.m. at the Quincy Sons of Italy Social Center, 120 Quarry St.

Mr. Moscardelli, former principal of Central Junior High School and founder of the Central Real Estate, died last July.

He was honored in 2007 as The Quincy Sun Citizen of The Year for his volunteer support of youth and high school sports.

Mary Ellen Boussy rang up the first sale at her new store, Barrett's Gifts, 1360 Hancock St., Quincy Center, shortly after the red ribbon was cut at 12:30 p.m. last Thursday.

The store is located at the site of the former Abigail's Crossing.

On hand for the ribbon-cutting were Mayor Thomas Koch, Maralin Manning, executive director of Quincy Business Association (QBA), Dean Rizzo, executive director of Quincy 2000, and Joanne Dondero, former owner of Abigail's Crossing.

"It's good for the city to have a first-class retail shop in Quincy Center," Koch said after congratulating the new shop's owners, Mary Ellen and her husband, Christian.

"This is terrific," Manning said of the new shop. Manning was joined by Dondero in welcoming the young couple to the Quincy business community.

Dondero closed Abigail's Crossing in late March in order to devote more time to her family. She retains her membership in the QBA and encouraged the Boussys in their new venture.

Also on hand supporting the new venture were their new business neighbors, relatives, friends and passers-by, including the Boussy's parents, children, aunts and uncles.

"I'm extremely proud and excited," said Irene Daly, Mary Ellen's mother. Her husband, Paul Daly, purchased the first sale item.

Tom and Barbara Boussy, Christian's parents, were also on hand to congratulate the new entrepreneurs.

There are still some reminders of the earlier shop in Barrett's today like the fragrance of candles and an abundance of Vera Bradley items tagged for sale. However, there's also a new approach which will put the Boussy's mark on the venture.

The Boussy's hope to tap into the new interest in the Adams family history with items and souvenirs of Quincy's historic past and with items highlighting Quincy's beaches and shoreline.

Barrett's is named after Christian Boussy's late grandfather, Edward Barrett, a longtime resident of Houghs Neck who worked for over 29 years at the Fore River Shipyard.

Mary Ellen Boussy said she learned Abigail's Crossing was closing and thought it was a great opportunity. "I said, 'Wouldn't that be great to own a gift store?'"

Mary Ellen said her husband liked the idea so they moved forward and talked to Dondero. She expects to learn a lot about the retail business.

"I've been at home with my kids for the last four years," she said.

While the Boussy's live in Pembroke with their two children, Sydney, 4, and Samuel, 3, they have deep roots in Quincy. Mary Ellen was raised on Adams Shore and graduated in 1989 from the Woodward School for Girls.

Mary Ellen is named after her grandmother, the late Mary Ellen Balcius who died recently. Mrs. Balcius worked in the city's Building Department for decades, helped found the city's retiree group and was a nominee for Citizen of the Year.

Christian Boussy, a Weymouth fireman, grew up in Houghs Neck. His parents, Tom and Barbara Boussy of Houghs Neck, also joined in the opening festivities.

FIRE SAFETY

by Captain Tom Lyons
Fire Prevention Bureau
Quincy Fire Department

Fire Prevention: Well Done!

I received a call from a resident concerning a fire prevention issue. After discussing it with him, the individual conveyed an experience he had over the weekend involving our own fire department emergency personnel.

He wanted to speak with the Chief of the Fire Department to convey his impression of the work performed by the responding firefighters at that weekend incident. I will attempt to convey the gist of his comments to you here.

Apparently he was a witness to a medical incident requiring the presence of our own Engine 4. The incident was such that immediate control by emergency personnel was a necessity. The resulting incident report indicates that Captain Jim Kennedy responded to the medical assist with firefighters Sean Breslin and Timothy Ho.

This resident conveyed how Kennedy took immediate command of the incident bringing needed control to a difficult situation. It was conveyed to me that the captain's assessment of the patient was swift and direct. The care delivered was quick and decisive.

During all of this, a report was given to the responding ambulance to facilitate immediate follow-up care and transport to the Medical Center. All and all, the caller was quite impressed, while generous in his comments, compliments and appreciation for the work performed by Captain Kennedy and his crew. We'll take a call like that any day.

Having been to so many of these incidents in the past, a decisive assessment and the assurance that comes with professional assistance, can bring that important sense of control to a chaotic and frightening situation for family members as well. Knowing more of the incident than conveyed here, I understand that it was needed, and much appreciated.

Captain Kennedy and his crew's arrival brought that intangible assurance that comes with commitment, training and experience. Well done!

In the fire service, we are aware of the importance of immediate care as it applies to a medical incident. It is our earnest desire to respond and offer quality care and attention. Time can be a determining factor in success or failure. We're here to help, we want to be there for you if need be.

So let me take this opportunity to remind everyone to make certain the numerical address of your home be clearly visible with contrasting colored numbers in front of your house. The presence of these numbers will help facilitate a quick response; it did in this instance.

Thank you.

Council Approves Rezoning Parcels For Lowe's Outlet

City councillors have unanimously approved zoning changes on Columbia Street and Penn Street in their first steps toward clearing plans for a Lowe's Home Improvement outlet on Burgin Parkway.

Parcels on Columbia Street and Penn Street were rezoned from Industrial A to Planned Unit Development (PUD) and a parcel on Columbia Street was rezoned to Open Space.

Both votes followed public hearings at which residents, in nearly equal numbers, spoke in support and in opposition to the Lowe's Warehouse plan.

Councillors, also, directed

McDermott Beechwood Speaker

Patrick McDermott, Norfolk County Registrar of Probate Court will be guest speaker at Beechwood's Current Events Breakfast, May 7 at 9 a.m.

McDermott will discuss his experience as Registrar of Probate Court and about his current position, and as an attorney and city councillor.

For more information and reservations for the breakfast, call Maryann Mahony at 617-471-5712.

Both the Parks and Recreation Board and the state legislature must approve the closing of Grasso Park.

City Solicitor James Timmins outlined the legal process for selling public land in Massachusetts when discussing two slivers of land in another area of the city.

Timmins said that the city must first declare the parcel surplus, then have it appraised, and then advertised for bids before sale to a private individual or company.

A Job Well Done

On Monday, April 21, at approximately 11:30 a.m., Officers Daniel Francis and Steve Elmes were dispatched to the area of Hancock Street and School Street to assist South Shore Mental Health Services with one of their patients, who just assaulted one of their clinicians.

Sgt. Sean Duggan was in the area and he arrived on scene first. He notified communications via police radio he had a male in sight in the middle of the intersection waving his arms and screaming at passing cars. Believing this could be the suspect, Sgt. Duggan stated he pulled up to the suspect and attempted to speak with him, but the suspect kicked the door of the police cruiser.

Sgt. Duggan attempted to exit his vehicle but the suspect kicked at his driver side window repeatedly. Sergeant Duggan drew his OC spray and ordered the suspect to the ground. When the suspect complied, Sgt. Duggan exited his vehicle. The suspect then got up, grabbed a heavy metal trashcan cover and swung it in the direction of the Sergeant. At this time, traffic was stopped and a crowd of about 30 pedestrians had stopped to watch.

Sgt. Duggan drew his baton and after warning the suspect to put the weapon down, he struck the suspect once and then the suspect dropped the cover. The suspect then lunged toward Sgt. Duggan and tried to kick him. Officer Francis arrived and pulled out his baton while Sergeant Duggan continued to order the suspect to the ground. Since the suspect refused to obey the order, Sgt. Duggan sprayed the suspect with mace and he immediately went to the ground.

The suspect was then handcuffed and an ambulance was dispatched to care for him as well as a minor hand injury to Sgt. Duggan. Officer Elmes arrived on scene and held the suspect while Officer Francis met with the caller/victim.

The victim confirmed that the suspect is one of her clients. She said that she first noticed the suspect lying on the sidewalk across the street from her office, so she went outside to see if he was having problems. She said that the suspect was highly agitated, claiming that he had no money and blaming her.

The victim said the suspect then threw a handful of sand and pebbles at her. She recognized the situation as potentially dangerous and hurriedly walked away. She saw the suspect quickly stand up and run towards her. Fearing that the suspect was going to physically attack her, and knowing that he had violent outbursts in the past, he was diagnosed as schizophrenic, that he often does not take his medication and has heroin and cocaine problems, the victim fled to her office and locked the door, then called the police.

The suspect, a 43-year-old Hull resident, was transported to Quincy Medical Center by Fallon Ambulance for an evaluation. The attending physician and psychiatric staff determined that the suspect was in need of additional psychiatric care.

Officer Francis questioned the suspect at the Medical Center and learned from the suspect that he was angry and was going to fight with the first "cop" that arrived.

The suspect was charged with "Assault", by throwing the sand and pebbles at the victim, "Assault by Means of a Dangerous Weapon" by using a shod foot attempting to kick Sergeant Duggan, "Assault by Means of a Dangerous Weapon" by attacking Sgt. Duggan with a trash can lid, "Resisting Arrest", "Disorderly Conduct" and "Malicious Destruction of Property", by damaging the police cruiser.

In this case, the officers were aware the suspect was under the care of a mental health agency, but he was angry and distressed - this was all they knew. The officers handled the situation with compassion toward the suspect, using the least amount of force to protect themselves as well as the suspect, in order to get him back on track to emotional stability.

Maria Droste Fashion Show Raises Over $70,000

Some 380 persons attending the 2008 spring fashion benefit for Maria Droste Counseling Agency helped raise more than $70,000 for the agency which is dedicated to social service.

The agency established in Quincy in 1992 is staffed and operated by the Sisters of the Good Shepherd. Several clinically trained professionals serve as volunteers.

The keynote speaker, Boston Fire Department Lt. Willie Ostiguy, outlined the need for such counseling services as he related his own experiences in an inspirational message at the event.

Ostiguy, Board Chairman of the Gavin Foundation, is active in numerous organizations fostering recovery, similar to Maria Droste Agency and the Friends of Darlene Sheehan. Ostiguy was the 2007 recipient of the Joe Walsh Award from the South Boston Collaborative.

This is the third year that the Friends of Darlene paired with supporters of Maria Droste for a successful fundraiser. Once again, the occasion was dedicated to Darlene Sheehan who worked long and hard to aid addicts, help victims, and prevent addictions.

Honorary chairs for the event were Mayor Thomas Koch and his wife, Christine, with co-chairs Rep. Bruce Ayers and his wife, Maureen.

The fashion show, with local volunteer model, and dinner were held at Lantana's in Randolph.

The Maria Droste Agency provides counseling for individuals as young as five to senior over 75, for couples and for family groups. Clients pay costs set on a sliding scale, based on their ability to pay and resources.

The agency is located at 1354 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

Real Estate: Yes, It's Safe to Buy

Many renters have put aside their quest for home ownership, at least for now, because of the current state of the real estate market. Their fear is that prices aren't finished dropping and that a year from now they could be upside down — owing more on the home than it's worth.

If you're looking for an investment with the hope of making a large profit in two years, then yes, you have reason to be concerned.

However, if you're looking for a home for your family, a place you can live in for many years, then the current market needn't be a major concern if you're careful.

Here are some considerations:

- Don't fall into the same trap that caused much of the current mortgage crisis. Aim for a fixed-rate 30-year loan. That way you'll know from year to year what your payments will be.

- Get your pre-approval and your mortgage letter first. With the letter in hand, you'll be able to strike immediately when you find a house you like.

- Don't let a lender entice you into taking the full amount of mortgage you qualify for. Add in your own monthly safety cushion. After all, you're the one who has to make the payments. Give yourself breathing room.

- Beware of buying in a neighborhood with a lot of For Sale signs. Ask your realtor for a list of recent sales. Sales signs with no recent sales could mean the neighborhood hasn't bottomed out yet. If the houses are abandoned, you could end up living in a ghost town.

- Check Zillow.com for comparable sales in your target area and look at Realtor.com for information and photos. You can weed out a lot of houses just by looking at the pictures.

- Don't buy the first house in a new subdivision, especially one that isn't finished. If the builder goes under, you could end up losing your down payment.

- Your best bet is to find a seller with a house that's been on the market for six months or more. By now, the seller's illusion of a quick sale has passed, and he or she will be more motivated to seriously consider all offers.

- Use a carefully chosen real-estate agent for protection. You're less likely to be a victim of fraud.

BBB Offers Advice On What To Keep, What To Shred

Spring Cleaning? Prevent ID Theft

Spring is here and now is a good time to rid the house of paperwork that has accumulated over the past year.

Better Business Bureau (BBB) warns that, when it comes to reviewing and cleaning out financial records, failing to shred sensitive documents can put everyone at risk of ID theft.

Last year alone 8.1 million Americans became victims of ID theft resulting in the loss of $45 billion according to a 2008 report from Javelin Strategy and Research. The report notes that, contrary to popular belief, only 12 percent of ID theft is perpetrated online. The vast majority of ID theft occurs when the thief has direct contact with the victim's personal information such as through a stolen or lost wallet, or by rifling through the victim's mailbox or trash.

"When people think of ID theft they almost immediately focus on hackers and online security," said Paula Fleming, BBB spokesperson. "But the truth is most ID theft happens when people have failed to secure or properly destroy important financial information including paper documents, IDs, and credit cards."

Properly destroying sensitive personal and financial documents is a key step in ID theft prevention and BBB offers the following guide on when to shred the following documents:

Canceled checks

Canceled checks with no long-term significance for tax or other purposes can be destroyed after one year. However, canceled checks that support tax returns, such as charitable contributions or tax payments, should be held for at least seven years — long enough to cover the six-year tax assessment period.

BBB advises that consumers indefinitely keep any canceled checks and related receipts or documents for a home purchase or sale, renovations or other improvements to owned property, and non-deductible contributions to an Individual Retirement Account.

Deposit, ATM, credit card, debit card receipts

Consumers should save credit, debit, and ATM receipts until the transaction appears on their statement and they have verified that the information is accurate.

Credit card and bank account statements

Credit card and bank account statements with no tax or other long-term significance can be discarded after a year; remaining statements should be kept for up to seven years. If a consumer receives a detailed annual statement, they should keep it and shred the corresponding monthly statements.

Credit card contracts, other loan agreements

Credit card contracts and loan agreements should be kept for as long as the account is active in case the consumer has a dispute with their lender over the terms of the contract.

Documentation of a purchase or sale of stocks, bonds, other investments

Investors should retain documentation of a purchase or sale for as long as they own the investment and then seven years beyond that time. Monthly retirement and monthly investment account statements can be shredded annually after being reconciled with the year-end statement.

Paycheck stubs

Paycheck stubs can be shredded yearly after the income has been reconciled with a W-2 or other tax forms.

Utility or monthly bills

Monthly bills should be shredded the year after being received by the consumer. This way, if it's a power bill, for example, consumers can compare this month's bill to last year's bill for any major changes before shredding it.

Shred-it Checklist -

Don't just toss it, shred it!

- Documents that include Social Security numbers, birthdates, PIN numbers or passwords

- Banking documents and other financial information

- Leases, contracts or letters that include signatures

- Pre-approved credit card applications

- Medical or dental bills

- Travel itineraries

- Used airline tickets

Simple Steps

To A Weed-Free Lawn

(NAPS) — A beautiful lawn is supposed to be thick and green. It's not supposed to have bright yellow dandelions, red blooming clover and scraggly crabgrass and nutgrass.

Although it's impossible to kill every single weed, most can be prevented, says Bayer Advanced Garden Expert Lance Walheim, author of "Lawn Care for Dummies."

"Weed control is more than making a pretty yard. Weeds compete with grasses for water and nutrients," says Walheim. "A well-cared for, vigorous lawn will resist weed invasions."

Here are five steps to keep your yard in top shape for weed resistance:

1. Mow High: Mowing at the upper end of the recommended height for your grass type encourages deeper roots and better heat and drought tolerance since the grass helps shade the soil to reduce evaporation and maximize soil moisture content. This can help reduce the need for more frequent watering. Set your mower at 1 1/2 inches high for common Bermuda; 1 inch high for hybrid Bermuda; 3 inches high for tall fescue; 2 1/2 inches for Kentucky blue grass; and 2 1/2 to 3 inches for St. Augustine.

2. Water Properly: Wet the soil down to a depth of six to eight inches. Shallow watering results in a shallow root system. To check the depth of moisture, insert a rod or screwdriver into the soil; it will stop when it reaches dry dirt.

3. Fertilize at the right time of year for your particular type of grass (usually fall or spring for cool-season lawns and late spring and early summer for warm-season lawns) and control insects such as grubs that eat grass roots.

4. Aerate (remove small cores of soil) and dethatch as needed for better water and nutrient penetration.

5. Kill weeds: Many products on the market require you to know what kind of weeds you have in your lawn. Bayer Advanced All-In-One Lawn Weed & Grass Killer works two ways to kill over 200 kinds of broadleaf weeds including dandelions and clover and grassy weeds such as crabgrass in one easy step without harming your lawn. For St. Augustine and similar lawns, Bayer Advanced Southern Weed Killer for Lawns controls 200 types of common broadleaf weeds such as dandelions, dollarweed and clover. Always read and follow label instructions.

Creating A Flower Bed With Curb Appeal

(NAPS) - Whether you're thinking of selling your home or just hoping to impress your guests, you can plant the seeds of love at first sight with the help of a beautiful flower border. Creating one, however, takes careful planning.

It's not always about blooming plants. Dramatic foliage, bright berries or fruit, and even colorful branches can all contribute dramatic hues.

Here's a checklist for a colorful garden bed:

- Annuals: Quick-blooming annuals are the all-important fillers in the flowerbed. Use them wherever there's room. Plant pansies, violas, calendulas and primroses for spring and fall color, then follow up with such heat lovers as zinnias, marigolds and vinca.

- Bulbs: Spring bulbs such as tulips and daffodils provide carefree color year after year, but don't forget the summer bloomers including dahlias and canna. Also consider planting low-growing annuals and perennials on top of the bulbs. They'll create a colorful carpet the bulbs will push through and bloom above.

- Perennials: Count on these to be the workhorse of your bed. Campanula, dianthus, geranium and phlox for spring and early summer; yarrow, coreopsis, daylilies and rudbeckia for midsummer; and asters, pennstemon and mums for fall. Don't forget the great foliage plants such as ornamental grasses, hostas and artemisia.

- Shrubs: Shrubs are the backbone and backdrop of the flower border. Plants such as shrub roses, viburnum and dwarf crepe myrtles provide structure and organization and can contribute a long season of color and interest. Their foliage makes everything else stand out and look more dramatic. Look for plants that bring long seasons of color beyond bloom. There are colorful foliaged barberries, bright-fruited rugosa roses and viburnums and shrubs like crepe myrtles and serviceberries with stunning fall foliage color. Plants with showy branches such as the red-twigged dogwood can provide color in winter.

You can protect all your flowers and shrubs from insects and diseases and feed them too with the help of Bayer Advanced All-In-One Rose & Flower Care. Just mix with water and pour around the base of the plant. Apply every six weeks for protection. Always read and follow label instructions.
